A SHOCK—Ever wake up at 5 a.m. and find a two-ton tractor gnawing away at the side of your house? That's what happened to Leroy Dillon, Route 5, Griessen Road and Cedar, Saturday. The tractor, owner unknown, had apparently been placed in low gear on Cedar, then headed towards the Dillon home. the tractor went through a wire fence, crossed the Dillon yard and came to a halt against the house. The wheels continued to turn, digging in about two feet by the time Dillon discovered the machine. It was still running. Damage to the house was slight. (Democrat-Capital photo.)

Ky Plans To Increase Army By 55,000 Men

Overhaul At Every Level Is Expected

SAIGON (AP) U.S. Marines hunted around Khe Sanh Saturday for fresh contact with a North Vietnamese battalion whose brand-new uniforms and sleek equipment testified to Hano..s continuing buildup of men and supplies below the demilitarized zone.

Allied military authorities consider the area below the DMZ will be one of two targets for a major Communist offensive before the summer ends. The other is the central highlands.

The Marines foiled an ambush attempt by the enemy battalion in one of a series of fights Friday in which American, Korean and South Vietnamese troops were reported to have killed nearly 300 Communist soldiers.

The well-armed and neatly garbed North Vietnamese regulars, estimated at 500, had sought to trap a convoy on Route 9 five miles east of Khe Sanh, a Leatherneck base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

AP correspondent John Lengel reported from the scene the Marines killed 34 and drove the rest from roadside emplacements in a five-hour battle that cost them 16 dead and 39 wounded.

"No doubt about it," said Col. James R. Stockman, Arlington, Va., commander of the 3rd Marine Regiment. "It was quite a fight. Five hours. They were there to stay."

In contrast to the surge of activity Friday, the U.S. Command said no major contact had been reported Saturday in any of 31 allied operations under way across the country. This was typical of the up-and-down pattern of the war.

Eastward from Khe Sanh, near the city of Hue, burned huts in two hamlets still smouldered on the battleground where South Vietnamese airborne troops said they killed 216 of the enemy Friday. About 5,000 peasants were reported being moved from the area for resettlement in refugee centers near Hue.

Attention continued to focus on the northern sector, where the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong still were expected to lash out soon.

50 Years In Service

Hoover Marks Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover marks his 50th anniversary with the Justice Department this week, revered by many as a hero of the Republic, criticized by others as an over-sensitive prima donna and a dictator.

And, although he's 72 years old—two years over the mandatory retirement age for federal employes—Hoover has given no indication he plans to step down as director of the organization he built. Three years ago President Johnson, by executive order, waived mandatory retirement.

There are those high in government who see Hoover's principal value to the nation as that of an anomaly. In an era of permissiveness, changing values and morals—often violent change—Hoover represents continuity; the stern, uncompromising, unchanging man of nononsense law enforcement.

Hoover was born Jan. 1, 1895, in Washington, the son of Dickerson Naylor Hoover, a Coast and Geodetic Survey employe, and the former Anna Marie Scheitlin, a niece of Switzerland's first consul general in the United States.

Most accounts say Hoover's mother ruled her household—and her youngest son—with a strict discipline, punishing almost with a military impartility.

As a youngster, Hoover was a boy soprano in a church choir, taught Sunday school and played on the church baseball team. It was during a baseball game that a ball smashed his nose, giving him his tough-as-a-bulldog look.

Hoover worked for the Library of Congress and went to school nights to earn his law degree. On July 26, 1917, his law degree from George Washington University in hand, Hoover was hired as a law clerk in the Alien Enemy Registration Section. Within two years he was named to prosecute aliens seized in roundups of suspected subversives.

On May 10, 1924, Atty. Gen. Harlan Fiske Stone designated Hoover acting director of the Bureau of Investigation—it didn't become the Federal Bureau of Investigation until 1935.

Hoover's record of longevity in his job is unsurpassed—there is no government official of equal rank outside of Congress who has kept his job as long. Hoover has served under 15 attorneys general—his immediate boss—and seven presidents.

Today's FBI is vastly different from the small bureau of incompetents and political hacks that Hoover inherited in 1924—and from the FBI that shot it out against John Dillinger, the Barkers, Baby Face Nelson and the other gangsters of the '30s.

The FBI now is a middle-aged organization. About 70 per cent of the bureau's 6,600 agents, and 42 per cent of its total 15,325 employes, have been with the FBI more than 10 years. The biggest single group of agents, nearly 2,400, have been in the bureau 15 to 19 years.

In 1956 only 26 percent of FBI employes had been with the bureau more than 10 years.

Sandburg Dies At His Ranch

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP) — White-topped Carl Sandburg, Pultizer Prize-winning poet, historian, novelist and Lincoln biographer, died quietly at his beloved goat ranch in western North Carolina Saturday.

His wife, Paula, describing his death as "a beautiful passing", said her husband "slowly breathed away."

Sandburg, one of the great men of American letters, had celebrated his 88th birthday last Jan. 6. He predicted, on the occasion of his 88th birthday, that he would die in his 99th year.

In Washington, President Johnson mourned Sandburg's death, saying: "Carl Sandburg gave us the truest and most enduring vision of our own greatness . . . there is no end to the legacy he leaves us."

The usually smiling writer had spent much of the last year reading, most of the time in bed, and keeping up with current events. He occasionally took a halting stroll around his small ranch, and during good weather strummed his guitar on the front porch.

About a month ago he suffered was described as a "heart stroke," and had been conscious only at times since then. But Mrs. Sandburg, 80, said she had not expected his death.

He awoke in a semi-conscious condition Saturday morning, Mrs. Sandburg said.

"He had difficulty in breathing from about 8 o'clock," she said.

The two nurses who had been in constant attendance in recent months attempted to keep him alive with artificial respiration. His physician, Dr. D.I. Campbell King, was called. The poet died shortly after King arrived.

A private funeral service will be Monday at St. John's of the Wilderness Episcopal Church near the ranch.

Mrs. Sandburg said the body will be cremated and the ashes scattered around "Remembrance Rock" near Sandburg's birthplace at Galesburg, Ill. original copies of many of the author's works and memoirs are at Galesburg.

In addition to his wife, survivors include three daughters. They are Mrs. Barney Crile, wife of a Cleveland, Ohio, surgeon, and Margaret and Janet Sandburg, who reside at the Flat Rock ranch.

Sandburg had lived at the little ranch "Connemara," in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains for the last 22 years. He hadn't done any serious writing since being hospitalized with an intestinal condition in 1965.

The sparkling white house was built by Christopher G. Memminger, treasurer of the Confederacy during the Civil War. It was there that Sandburg, known as the "prairie poet", wrote much of his Lincoln biography, hailed by many critics as his greatest work.

Election To Decide Type Rule

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Will it be the mountain for continuation as a commonwealth, the tree for statehood, or the wheel for independence?

The betting is on the mountain in Puerto Rico's plebiscite Sunday to settle the decades-old controvery on this island's status. Each ballot has a symbol of a mountain, tree and wheel for the voters' three choices.

The chief supporter of commonwealth is the four-time governor, Luis Munoz Marin. He says the main purpose of the plebiscite is to decide once and for all the island's future.

"This is the first time in history all three choices have been before the people," he says. "This should end the sterile debate over the island's status, hopefull for good, at least for a few generations."

While there appears little doubt that commonwealth will win a majority of the vote, many here feel it will need at least 60 per cent of the vote to get the victory it wants.

Advocates of statehood have been steadily gaining strength over the past few years, and it is felt that if they can get close to 40 per cent of the vote, they can point to a continuing trend in favor of statehood.

Industrialist Luis Ferre of Ponce is leading the fight for statehood.

Independence is given no chance. Forecasters say its share of the vote will be under two per cent. Most major independence groups are boycotting the plebiscite on the ground that it is illegal and deceptive.

Hector Alvarez Silva, a university educator, is the chief advocate of independence.

Indicates Signs Of Peace

Nasser Ends Silence In Speech To Arabs

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser breaks a six-week public silence Sunday and in address to the nation is expected to put forth his proposals for an Arab course in the face of defeat in the Middle East war June 5-10. There are signs he will choose a peaceful one.

Indications are that Israel is prepared to withdraw from occupied Arab territory only if the Arabs end their state of war against Israel and accept the existence of the Jewish state as a Middle East nation.

But said one nonaligned diplomat here: "This would be the bitterest pill of all for Nasser to swallow and could easily amount to a suicidal act in view of prevailing Arab feelings. But if Nasser succeeds in finding a way around this apparently insurmountable obstacle, peace may finally return to the Middle East."

Nasser's last public speech was June 9, when he announced in a televised address that he was resigning as president because of Egypt's defeat in the war. He decided the next day to stay on, after the National Assembly had refused to accept his resignation.

Informants say Nasser would prefer a peaceful settlement to a "second round" that more militant Arab leaders have been calling for against Israel.

There was some support for the peaceful route in an article by Mohamed Hassanein Haikal, editor of the semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram. Haikal is believed to be Nasser's close confidant.

Haikal wrote: "People who achieve their objectives are usually those able to work out some sort of harmony in their thinking and that of the surrounding world; if they lose this harmony, they find themselves victims of isolation, no matter how strong or rich they may be."

Haikal contended the Arabs were faced with two alternatives: "Either increase our introversion and isolate ourselves from the rest of the world, or try to open ourselves to the world without despair or embarrassment."

The informants expressed the belief that Nasser was a big enough politician to take the second course.

Nasser's speech comes after the Cairo summit conference of sive pro-Soviet Arab leaders, convened specifically to adopt a united policy for "erasing the consequences of Israeli aggression."

Huge Deficit For The Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government racked up its biggest administrative budget deficit in eight years during the last 12 months, going $9.9 billion in the red.

The deficit was the second largest in "peacetime" history. Increased spending on the undeclared Vietnam war partially was responsible for the near-record total.

Government estimates of the deficit for the current fiscal year, which started July 1, range from $13.6 billion to more than $20 billion.

Vietnam war spending in the previous fiscal year topped $20 billion, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Budget Bureau Director Charles L. Schultze said in their report Friday.

They said receipts for fiscal 1967 totaled $115.8 billion — $1.2 billion below last January's estimate — while spending totaled $125.7 billion, $1 billion less than estimated then.

The Weather

Partly cloudy and warm through Monday with a chance of thunder showers late Monday. Low Sunday night upper 60s and low 70s. High Sunday near 90.

Dam Work Ahead

Army Lets Contract on Kaysinger

The Army Corps of Engineers awarded a $2,294,450 contract Friday to begin construction of the embankment for the Kaysinger Bluff Reservoir. The contract went to Western Contracting Corporation, Sioux City, Ia.

The Missouri congressional delegation was notified that Western Contracting Corporation of Sioux City, Ia., will do the work of excavation, embankment, clearing and grubbing. The dam site is in Benton County on the Osage river above Warsaw.

Work calls for excavation above rock of 1.1 million cubic yards and 500,000 cubic yards of rock. Also 1.8 million cubic yards will be used as fill and one million cubic yards for embankment construction.

An earlier contact on the dam, for 993,000 to the Clarkson Construction company, Kansas City, was started in the fall of 1965 and now is completed.

The dam will be a compacted earthfill structure, rising 100 feet above the normal level of the Lake of the Ozarks downsteam and will extend 5,000 feet across the valley. It will create a lake of 55,600 acres.

The 194-million-dollar project is scheduled for completion in 1973.

Hypnosis Used In Surgery

MOSCOW (AP) — Hypnosis before and after surgery has been found helpful in lung operations performed at the Rusakov hospital for children in Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Kansas City Law On Fair Housing

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A fair housing ordinance to prohibit discrimination in rental or sale of real estate was approved Friday by the city council of Kansas City.

The ordinance becomes effective July 31. It provides for a five-member commission appointed by the mayor to hear and investigate complaints, prosecute violators, and provides penalties including fines up to 500 and prison sentences up to one year, or both, on conviction.

Proposal Runs Into Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that Congress consider a declaration of war against North Vietnam ran into strong bipartisan opposition Saturday.

Critics said in interviews the former president's suggestion, made in response to questions put to him by 34 freshman GOP House members a week ago, would imply an all-out effort to destroy North Vietnam. This is an aim the administration repeatedly has disavowed.

Several senators saw in a formal declaration of war a greatly increased risk of armed conflict with Red China or the Soviet Union, or both.

Among those willing to express their views, only Sens. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said they thought it might be well to have Congress examine the legal aspects of a declaration of war.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, senior GOP member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said a war declaration carried too many ominous potentials.

"It would bring into play all of the belligerent acts permitted under international law," he said. "This is one reason I have opposed proposals to blockade the port of Haiphong because the question of freedom of the seas would be involved.

"A declaration of war might imply an invasion of North Vietnam, which I do not support at this point."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., a Foreign Relations committeeman, disagreed with the Eisenhower proposal, saying: "I believe we should move toward peace by retracting our bombing to the points where infiltration routes press through the 17th parallel. We can then know if North Vietnam will negotiate, as it has claimed it would so many times."

Session Ends At Legion Meeting

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Business sessions of the Missouri American Legion convention were suspended Saturday morning as delegates from over the state marched through the downtown section.

The parade of about 3,000 Legionnaires attracted a crowd estimated by Legion officials at 50,000.

Want Plan Adopted For Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm officials are considering a new attempt at getting the controversial acreage-poundage program approved for burley tobacco.

The plan has been rejected by growers voting in referenda, but has been approved by six years by growers of flue-cured tobacco.

The acreage-poundage plan would limit growers to plantings and marketing quotas based on past production.

The older program allows a grower to market all he produced on his acreage allotment.

In a referendum early this year, about 59 per cent of the burley growers voted for the new plan — short of the necessary two-thirds.

Under present law, an acreage-poundage program for burley cannot be submitted to a referendum before the 1969 crop but a referendum must be held late this year or early next year to determine whether growers want to continue the the old program.

Legislation may be offered yet this session which would limit the referendum to a question of growers accepting the acreage-poundage program or nothing.

Agriculture Department officials say the new program is much more effective in stabilizing supplies and preventing surpluses than the older one.

New Conference Ended

Negroes Protest White Newsmen

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Angry Negro delegates burst into a National Conference on Black Power news conference Saturday, protesting the presence of white newsmen who scrambled out a first-floor window of the Episcopal Diocese headquarters.

Several newsmen exhibited minor cuts and bruises after the brief, wild melee. A score of policemen arrived and restored order.

The Negro assailants stormed into the room minutes after the start of a news conference, called by leaders of the black power conference under way in Newark.

Television cameras went flying. Chairs were thrown.

About 35 white newsmen escaped through a low, first-floor window in the small room. Several newsmen were chased by Negroes down a back-yard area and into an alley.

Before the news conference started, one Negro delegate harangued newsmen outside the building, headquarters for the black power gathering.

"Get out of here," the Negro yelled. "We don't want you white newsmen."

An unidentified conference official said the group that broke inside belonged to a black nationalist organization. Several wore black and tan frock-like shirts.

The news conference was moved to a hotel after the attack.

Dr. Nathan Wright, conference chairman, said such a meeting with a broad spectrum of individuals is "fraught with potential peril," adding: "No pain, no progress."

Another black power leader, Floyd B. McKissick, said earlier that people had a constitutional right to revolt or use violence if they are victims of "intolerable conditions."

Used To Frighten Others

VC Prisoners Beaten To Death In Prison

DUC PHO, South Vietnam (AP) — Vietnamese men and women freed from a Viet Cong prison camp by U.S. paratroopers said Saturday inmates had been beaten to death in public executions to frighten other prisoners into submission.

Ho Huy Duc, 38, a soft-spoken teacher seized by guerrillas two years ago as he was walking to school, said he had been forced to witness three such executions, the last three weeks ago. He said the guards had beaten the victims to death with clubs and stones.

Speaking through an interpreter, Duc said at least 21 other prisoners had been deliberately starved to death by the guerrillas.

Duc, 18 other men and three women were freed from a jungle prison camp Thursday by a company of the 1st Brigade, U.S. 101st Airborne Division. The troopers found the bamboo stockade in hills about 300 miles north of Saigon.

"The prisoners were in pretty bad shape," 1st Lt. Corky Boswell of Chico, Calif., said. "The VC had beaten them and used them for laborers and fed them just enough to keep them alive."

Nguyen Van Phuong, 20, a militiaman captured a year ago, weighed less than 70 pounds, a medic said.

Another prisoner, Nguyen Cong Xuoc, 25, said there had been 36 prisoners in the compound, but an hour before the paratroopers arrived the guerrillas forced 12 of the strongest to leave.

"I think they killed them," he said.

Xuoc, a militiaman whose right arm was amputated because of wounds suffered in a battle with the Viet Cong in May, 1966, said he had been captured five months ago. He said he had killed seven guerrillas with a grenade in that battle.

At least 16 prisoners were starved to death during the time he was imprisoned, he said.

"I saw that," he said. "They were locked in the stocks, and the guards would not give them anything to eat."

Duc, the schoolteacher who also had been a hamlet chief, said the men executed by the guerrillas were killed "because they continued to oppose the Viet Cong."

The other prisoners were herded out of their thatched huts to watch, he said, and "they warned us we also would be killed if we tried to escape or oppose them."

Pettis County Can Get Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four additional counties in Missouri are now eligible for federal farm loans to restore operations affected by recent floods and rains.

The Farmers Home Administration announced Friday that farmers in Franklin, Monroe, Pettis and Warren can apply for the three per cent loans.

The FHA previously designated 53 counties where the loans will be available to farmers unable to obtain credit from local sources.

HELEN HENNESSY'S BOUTIQUE

Tired of Frock? Well, Throw It Away!

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Time was when Maizie, the burlesque queen, was the only kind of girl who tossed away her clothes. But now the most staid of ladies will be doing same —under different circumstances, of course.

A whole new category of clothes called "disposables" has been designed for summer travel and now we all can throw as we go.

To call these clothes "paper" is inaccurate. Avisco rayon and other nonwoven textile fibers are used for the fabric in the better disposables. The use of rayon as the main fiber provides absorbency and extra strength.

In these "throwaways," textile fabrics are distinctly better than paper. The textile fabrics are generally treated with a fire-retardant finish, they don't crease and your face won't turn red because you crackle as you move. You won't.

Some can even be hand- or machine-washed and some can even be dry cleaned. The most obvious advantage, though, comes in styling.

The fabrics are pleated, printed, ruffled, polycoated and draped in many of the newest disposable garments.

Not only are these disposables pretty. The variety of dresses and sportswear available for particular occasions is expanding every minute.

Say you're due to arrive at your first vacation spot at 6 in the evening. You would like to go out for dinner but not in your tired traveling clothes.

If you have been smart enough to take along a good supply of disposables you don't have to start on your first vacation night to build up your dirty laundry. You can open your suitcase (which could be disposable, too, if you want to go all out) and slip into a smart, sleeveless dinner dress with empire seaming and a deep ruffle around the hem. In case you didn't have a chance to hem the dress before you left home and it's a bit long for these mini times, just use the scissors.

Or you might just have emerged from the pool (PLEASE take the real McCoy for swimming "just in case") and want to change into a dry suit for sunning. Disposable bikinis, some of which are coated with a thin film of plastic for splashability (they might take a dunking as well as a splash, but I wouldn't try it) are perfect for sun bathing.

There's always one big dance on a summer holiday. If you don't want to spend a lot of money on a summer formal, and who does, consider a brightly printed long caftan.

Add some glitter jewelry and step out for the evening in an investment of about $6 that truly looks glamorous.

For daytime touring, museum visiting, shopping or just people-watching shift dresses are the ticket. And the styling of these casual dresses is excellent.

The only pitfall in disposable dressing is that you will probably be tempted to keep the dresses in your wardrobe. But they are designed to be dispensable.

After you have enjoyed them for a few wearings be resolute and throw as you go.

You'll quickly discover how pleasant it is to return home with a suitcase full of souvenirs instead of a suitcase filled with laundry.

THE ANTIQUITY OF MEXICO serves as background for the most contemporary idea of disposable dressing. The long caftan (left) is styled with a placket front and heightened collar from a nonwoven fabric. Add some glitter jewelry and step out for a summer dance in style. Plans for dinner and a night on the town might call for this fitted and flounced dress by Ann Pakradooni. Tuscany designs a "throwaway" shift (right) perfect for touring. Riotous shades of hot pink, emerald, navy and yellow mix in a psychedelic pattern. Tunnel collar can be zipped up or folded into a cowl effect. All these designs are in fabric containing Avisco rayon and all can be thrown away after a few wearings.

New York Seeks Both 'Queens'

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City, smitten by the Queen Mary and bidding against Communist China to get her, has disclosed a hankering for another soon-to-retire superliner—the Queen Elizabeth.

Mayor John V. Lindsay revealed the city's interest in the second Cunard ship Friday as he submitted a formal bid of about 2 million to buy the Queen Mary for conversion into a floating high school after she goes out of service this fall.

The Queen Elizabeth, due to retire in the fall of 1968, could also be used as a high school, Lindsay said.

When bids are opened in London Wednesday, the city will be in a pool with Communist China, interested in the vessel for scrap, and an Atlanta, Ga., businessman who has reportedly offered 2.5 million. He says he wants to turn the ship into an exhibition and shopping center.

Early Distillers

Both George Washington and Thomas Jefferson owned distilleries, and the industry received its greatest encouragement during Washington's administration because of the need of the new federal government for revenues.

General Suharto Being Attacked

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—"I punished Gen. Suharto last night. I took his picture down from my wall."

This statement from an average Indonesian reflects growing disappointment in the leadership of the chunky, 47-year-old general who succeeded Sukarno.

Suharto rode the crest of popularity following the 1965 coup attempt and the struggle to topple Sukano. A few months ago Suharto was above criticism. Now he is being attacked by many groups—political parties who resent the takeover of government and society by the military machine; disenchanted students and intellectuals; active pro-Sukarno and Communist underground forces; young military officers who enviously watch generals using new positions of power.

Suharto as a general and a man is still a popular figure, but as a leader he is being challenged to turn lofty phrases into practical deeds.

Actually, Suharto has accomplished much in bringing about economic and social stability, but much of his work goes unnoticed.

Several intellectual leaders here believe clearcut decisions could remove overnight much of the ill will against his government. They suggest decisions are needed on political parties, general elections, corruption, the role of the military, the economy, and dozens more.

Ironically, part of Suharto's trouble is his lack of showmanship. Sukarno held this country enthralled for 22 years. Despite widespread distaste for Sukarno's policies, most Indonesians loved his flamboyant personality.

Suharto has launched several key projects largely unnoticed even by many political leaders. Exports are up, inflation is down, government subsidies have been chopped away and international faith has been restored in Indonesia.

Suharto's political successes are more difficult to define. Although he has developed a fine economic brain trust, he leans heavily on fellow generals for political advice. This leads to increasing isolation from political reality.

Suharto is virtually forced to rely on loyalty rather than performance at this juncture, one Western military attache says, since the armed forces are still too divided for Suharto to attempt any tough house cleaning.

Suharto and his generals believe the civilians have failed in their attempts to run Indonesia. The military, at this point, is attempting to do it all.

Some political circles fear that Suharto, if increasingly rebuffed by Parliament, students and political parties, will grow increasingly repressive.

Foreign Minister Adam Malik, perhaps the single most competent man in the government, has been increasingly isolated from Suharto. Malik has no political party behind him. He will almost certainly remain as foreign minister because of his international prestige, but on the internal scene he is growing weaker.

Suharto's decision to delay elections slated for 1968—and already approved by Congress—brought new rounds of attacks from the two largest political parties. Both fear further delay will bring a tighter military grip.

Former Vice President Mohammed Hatta, whose attempts to form a new party were squashed by Suharto, says: "There is still no democracy in Indonesia."

Suharto can't begin a wholesale crackdown on corruption without shattering the tenuous military unity. Dozens of his generals might go to jail. Thus a real anticorruption drive seems far distant.

High-level corruption is causing increasing disgust among a host of colonels and majors in the army.

Several serious political leaders and intellectuals believe the best policy is to walk softly. One explains: "A rash move, like a big student demonstration against Suharto, could only cause a tougher crackdown on us."

The nagging question is how long the delicate balance will be maintained, how long the drifting will continue.

Paris Folds Fashion Tents

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS—(NEA)—When the Paris fashion collections for fall '67 open on July 24, skirt lengths will be short, long and in between.

But the hemline won't be the biggest news. For several seasons now we have seen enough tents to bivouac Napoleon's army. And now the waist is back.

Even belts will be worn at the natural waistline—not up under the bosom or slung around the hips. And women will have to relearn to tuck in their tummies and do something about the bulges which the tent so conveniently masked.

Generally speaking the silhouette for fall will be more wasp-shaped than tent-shaped and completely feminine.

Natural shoulders, belts, long sleeves, covered knees, fancy hose and slimmer heels tell the rest of the story to be unfolded during the couture collections here.

The new shape may spell the passing of the Twiggy figure, too. For the mannequins selected by the couturiers all are the outdoorsy type rather than ethereal wraiths.

At Dior, head designer Marc Bohan says his leit-motif is "femininity at all costs, plus a great diversity." Length of skirt? "Well, this will depend entirely on the function of the dress. But the straight skirt is definitely replaced by a graceful, swinging line."

Michel Goma, who designs for Jean Patou is on the longer-than miniskirt side of the fence. "Knees will vanish and I suggest different lengths for different occasions." His daytime clothes will be functional and easy-going with belts on nearly everything. Hose will harmonize with the ensemble. He will show a lot of black, rich brown and white.

Pomarede at Jacques Heim has opted for the feline, mysterious woman, far removed from his culotted type of last season. Pomarede, who is Madame De Gaulle's couturier, has gone to the cathedrals for his color card—all inspired by church windows. New is a Touareg blue deep and somber.

Gerard Pipart for Nina Ricci has worked on three principal lengths for skirts—all longer than mini—definitely underlined waistline and muted colors. Daytime skirts will hit the knee, sports skirts will have longer hems in the good old British tradition and all lengths will turn up for evening.

Every collection will feature blouses. Soft, fluttery and feminine, they will replace the twin sweater set which has become a sort of uniform for so many women.

The Tutankhamen exhibition here for which people have been lining up from dawn to evening for the past five months is an influence which will permeate the collections with all sorts of Egyptian inspirations — especially in jewelry.

All told, it looks as though the long hidden feminine figure will once more come into its own when the curtain goes down on the Paris fall fashion collections this time around. So it's time to start the battle of the bulge. We've had it easy in loose clothes long enough.

Posthumous Medal For Windsor Soldier

POSTHUMOUS AWARD—The Rev. and Mrs. Everett Kelly, Windsor, shown on the right, receive Medals awarded their son, Private First Class William P. Kelly, who was killed in action against hostile forces in Viet Nam, April 1. The medals were presented by Col. Schack, left, of the Survivor's Assistance Office, at a ceremony at Richards-Gebaur AFB on July 8.

Private First Class William P. Kelly, Windsor, with the United States Infantry when he was killed in action in Vietnam April 1, July 8 was awarded the Bronze Star Medal, posthumously. He was also awarded the Purple Heart Medal.

His parents, Rev. and Mrs. Everett Kelly, Windsor, received the medals from Survivor's Assistance Officer, 2Lt. W. F. Hyde and Col. Schack at a ceremony in the Headquarters, Second Region, Army Air Defense Command, Richards-Gebaur AFB.

The bronze star medal is the third highest that can be awarded a soldier for bravery. The action for which the two medals were awarded involved a vassive search and destroy mission, according to Army records.

Kelly's company had assumed defensive positions and were subject to an intensive mortar attack, followed by a ground battle. "When the Viet Cong attack was momentarily halted, Private First Class Kelly unhesitatingly moved forward with his unit on a counterattack. This unexpected manuever caused confusion in the hostile ranks and after severe losses of personnel, the Viet Cong were forced to retreat," the Army reported.

Kelly was a graduate of Windsor High School, class of 1965.

His father is a minister in the Assembly of God Church.

Heating Bills Cut By Storm-Screen Combinations

What can be done to lessen heating bills — build a bonfire on the living room floor, use heated rocks to warm the beds, move to the tropics?

Most homeowners wouldn't contemplate such drastic action, and fortunately, it isn't really necessary. One of the largest areas for home heat loss is through glass and cracks around windows and doors. Plugging these exits can be a giant step toward making home less costly to 'operate" in cold weather, and more comfortable all year.

Combination windows and doors added to a home provide this protection as well as offering several other advantages. The possible annual savings on heating bills alone will go a long way to recover the cost of the combination storm and screen windows and doors.

Calculations from Manual "J" of the National Warm Air and Air Conditioning Association illustrate the potential savings.

For a one-story house with 1,500 square feet of floor space and 192 square feet of window space, in the northern part of the United States (Zone A), the annual fuel bill without storm windows is estimated at $103. If combination storm windows were added to this house, estimated fuel cost would decrease to approximately $50 annually — a savings of $53 a year.

Comparable savings are projected for other areas of the country. Based on the same size house, fuel cost without storm windows is estimated at $74.42, in Zone B, the middle portion of the country. With storm windows, estimated heating cost declines to $36.34, a savings of $38.08.

Even in Zone C, the southern part of the country, there are estimated savings of $15.24, with estimated heating costs of $29.98, without storm windows, and $14.74, with storm windows.

Besides saving cash on fuel costs, combination storm-screen windows and doors add to year-round comfort.

Easier maintenance is an appreciated advantage, too. Combination windows eliminate "sweating" and peeling, thereby reducing need for painting and repairs around windows. And, as seasons change, there's no more taking down and putting up of screens or storm windows.

For additional ease in maintenance, the homeowner might consider combination windows and doors with Fiberglas screening. This screening material is guaranteed not to rust, dent, stretch or shrink.

INTIMATE VIEWS of wilderness beauty are offered all along the Appalachian Trail, as in the Great Smokies shown here.

World's Greatest Footpath Hobby of Thousands

By JIM CROSSLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Care must be taken that energetic beavers, with their dam building and flooding, do not obliterate the path and make you lose your way.

Possessions must be hung in elevated positions so that porcupines do not devour them.

Watch out for groups of free-running hogs in addition to deer, moose and bear.

But for those willing to risk these hazards, a great adventure beckons.

The Appalachian Trail runs through 14 states from Maine to near Atlanta, Ga. It is within a day's drive to half the population of the United States. Use is free, travel is inexpensive, it's healthful and fun.

It has been described as 2,050 miles long and four feet wide.

Though it parallels them, this is no retracing of historic Indian trails. The Indians didn't need exercise the way we do and their pathways led along the flatlands of the rivers.

For scenic beauty to traverse the wilderness that is left, the Appalachian Trail sticks as closely as possible to the spines of the mountain systems along the East Coast.

More than the world's greatest footpath, the Appalachian Trail has the curious character of an organization. Probably this is because it is the creation of thousands of volunteers, grouped in clubs. They even have their own little newspaper. Since the trail was begun in 1923, these volunteers have prepared and marked various sections and they clear the pathway each spring.

It is a hobby for those thousands and it can become the hobby of anyone who likes it—hike you must—for a day, a week or a month.

Last year a newspaperman traveled the entire length, one of the few who have done it.

It took him from June 5 to Nov. 5. Cost was $1,000 which is evidence of the economy of Appalachian Trail visits.

There are many lean-tos and cabins for sleeping, as well as commercial accommodations near the trail. It is the closest thing America offers to Europe's chain of youth hostels used by sightseers for low-cost trips.

No visit to the Appalachian Trail should be attempted without obtaining the 35-cent pamphlet, "Suggestions for Appalachian Trail Users."

This and detailed guidebooks which can be bought for various sections also indicate the volunteer nature of this unusual project. They are published by the nonprofit Appalachian Trail Conference, Inc., 1718 N St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. The publications advise what to carry (a minimum) and where you can park your car to get on the trail.

There is a somewhat similiar project on the West Coast, the Pacific Coast Trail through Washington, Oregon and California—from Canada to Mexico. For details, write Department of the Interior, Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Here's the Inside Info On Selecting a Sofabed

By AILEEN SNODDY
Consumer Affairs Specialist
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A positive attitude helps a customer select a convertible or sofabed. The world of convertibles continues to change. Those looking for a dual-purpose unit need to know that options are available for convertibles as for upholstered non-sleep units.

No matter what a person buys, the best test is to sit and lie on a unit before making up your mind. Even in a company showroom, Bob Tyler, assistant manager of product planning and marketing for Simmons, insisted his audience stretch out and test the sofabeds while he explained the construction.

Much of the problem consumers face when buying a unit comes in the retail store, Tyler feels, where the salesman doesn't insist on a good in-use trial and also doesn't explain features and construction enough.

Currently the best-sellers are 66 to 72 inches long with double bed and the lower-cost units start with high density foam. As the price increases, Tyler explains, units include polyfoam with rubber and innersprings. More expensive sleepsofas offer cushions that are wrapped in Dacron and then a protective bag.

Basic construction has improved markedly, Tyler explains, in sleepsofas and good design, plus high fashion patterns, and color in fabrics replaces the once uninspired look of a convertible. In fact, upholstery fabric is one of the major costs of upholstered furniture. It can change the price $170 on a unit, depending upon the fabric selected.

Well-designed units now have closed fronts so there is no giveaway that it is a sleepsofa. Also check for rolled bars and units that do not have sharp edges. Counterbalance features are becoming more important to the homemaker who worries about how she is going to vacuum behind or around the sofa. Convertible designers, Tyler points out, came up with a technique that allows a homemaker to tilt the heavy sofa forward for cleaning.

Returning to the points to check before buying, Tyler suggests a potential convertible buyer check the unit for comfortable pitch of the back, arm and seat. As designs improve, so does the initial comfort of convertibles for sitting —this lack of comfort, the industry knows, was an early drawback.

Gobel Discusses Activities

By GEORGE GOBEL
(For Cynthia Lowry)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —I've been traveling quite a lot lately —touring in "The Odd Couple." During the past 12 months we've played 17 different cities.

And that is no life for anybody who doesn't drink. Actually, it's not much of a life for someone who does.

It's a little better for single fellows, because they can find things to keep them busy offstage—like getting mixed up with strange women wherever they go. But that's not for me. I got mixed up with a strange woman years ago and I married her.

Then there are some performers hitting new towns who immediately go out to see all the sights. But that seems pretty tame to me. I've already seen my mother-in-law lurching toward the breakfast table in her lavender housecoat and pin curlers, and no other sight I might see anyplace could possibly top that.

But getting back to the important thing—which is how to kill time when not performing. I can't drink like Dean Martin, because he drinks tall and I'm only 5 foot 5. I can't drink like Jackie Gleason because he drinks heavy and soaking wet I don't weigh more than 145 pounds. That naturally cuts down on what's left for me to do.

So I've started taking college courses by correspondence.

Doing that makes me a lot less lonely because I strike up a lot of interesting acquaintances with the postmen who bring my lessons. Getting a higher education is a big thing with me because I had to quit my formal schooling pretty early. In fact, I entered this correspondence school with their most basic course.

It's called First Principles of Everything. You know—finger painting, building with blocks and things like that.

But take my brother, Rudolph. He went away to college. I think he took physical education. At least, when he came home, he knew every hold you could get in a rumble seat.

I guess my Uncle Otto who lived with us must have gone to college, too. All I know is that he was away for four years, and when he came back, he'd learned how to make license plates.

Don't get me wrong though. I love my family. The fact is, I'm looking forward to the day when I'll be spending most of my time at home. In all honesty, I miss Alice. That's like Nasser missing Israel's Moshe Dayan. But it's true.

Red Cross Gift Plan For Viet

Pettis County Chapter, American Red Cross, will join with other Red Cross chapters in making and filling gift bags to be given to United States servicemen in Vietnam for Christmas. Mrs. Bill Padgett, a member of the Red Cross board of directors, is chairman of the project and is asking for co-operation from organizations or individuals in the county.

Bags are to be made of green or red denim. Mrs. Padgett plans to cut the material to size and requests help in sewing it.

Contents of the bags will include a variety of small articles such as ballpoint pens, paperback books, plastic saop cases, writing paper with self-seal envelopes; small address books, plastic toothbrush holders, terry cloth washcloths other than white or light color. Also sought are nail clilpers, plastic cigarette cases, combs, pocket-size games, mailing size voice tapes (reels of three in tapes 150 inches long), small tins of nuts or candy, vacuum packed; windproof cigarette lighters, small plastic snapshot holders, small kitchen size and sandwich-type plastic bags, minimum of three; wipe and shine packet shoe polish.

All articles donated must be new but it is permissible to include items bearing commercial names.

Shipment of filled bags will be made between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15,but Mrs. Padgett hopes to have all bags filled and ready before that time.

Pettis County Chapter is one of nearly 1,400 chapters in the nation-wide program with a goal of making and filling at least 525,000 gift bags.

The program was launched because of the need for this service, according to Mrs. Padgett, and a similar program last year in other communities was received with enthusiasm by servicemen in Vietnam. Hundreds of letters of appreciation from men in every military rank were received.

Any individual or organization wishing to participate may call the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

PROTECTING BRASS

For brass hardware that stays bright and new looking, apply a spray coating of clear lacquer.

Gentle Potato Treatment

In some years, and with some varieties of potatoes, the foliage does not die down in early to mid-July. If there is reasonably cool weather (night temperatures below 75) growers could leave potatoes in the ground a little longer. If it is hot weather during mid-July, even though the vines haven't died down, it might be the best policy to dig the potatoes.

This is really a judgment decision on the grower's part. Temperatures, condition of the vines and perhaps other factors will enter into the decision. But usually there is no advantage in leaving potatoes in the ground after mid-July.

Now, when digging potatoes, use care! Every bruise, every gouge or puncture can mean trouble with rotting and decay. Growers are urged to use canvas gloves and place potatoes in containers like eggs in a carton.

Remove potatoes from sunlight or any bright light immediately after harvest. Potatoes should be spread out in a single layer in a covered place, away from strong light, but in good ventilation. During this period of three or four days, the potatoes will "set" the skins and become "storage acclimated."

During this period it would be advisable to remove all potatoes that show damage from insects, diseases or mechanical injury. Damaged potatoes should be put in separate containers and consumed first. After this pre-storage treatment, potatoes should be stored in as cool a place as possible.

Just prior to storage it might be advisable to treat all potatoes intended for storage over three months with a sprout inhibiting hormone, available at drug and garden supply houses. Follow directions for use on the label.

It must be emphasized that potatoes need to be stored in an area where there is no light or where the light is subdued. Exposure of potato tubers to light will cause the area just under the skin to turn green. The green is harmless chlorophyll, but associated with the chlorophyll is a material called solanin, which is toxic and can make a person quite ill.

Election Laws

Study To Be Made For Modernization

By LARRY HALL
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — At long last a study is going to be made in an attempt to modernize Missouri's horse and buggy election laws.

The legislature passed a bill setting up a 16-member commission to do the job—five senators, five representatives, five appointed by the governor and Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick.

The election laws are so confused now that you can't even find out which counties have approved voter registration. Poll closing times differ. Voter secrecy is not statewide. And absentee ballots, not being counted at the same time as regular ballots, can be manipulated almost at will.

Here's the way Dr. Robert F. Karsch, professor of political science at the University of Missouri, put it in a monograph he wrote about political parties and elections.

"Elections in Missouri are conducted under a conglomerate of statutes pieced together over the decades with little regard for either consistency or logic.

"Each political party for its own interests, is generally reluctant to endorse or promote changes, preferring the jungle as they have learned to live in it to any major alterations that might bring unforseen results."

Dr. Karsch has been a major consultant to the secretary of state on election laws and can be expected to have a valuable role in the work of the new commission.

He points out that Missouri lacks a statewide registrations of voters—a measure that has been turned down by the legislature repeatedly.

He also comments on the fact that Missouri's voting age remains at 21, although it has been lowered to 18 in some states.

"There may be not rational conviction," he says, "in the non sequitur 'old enough to fight old enough to vote,' but there would seem to be a logical connection between ability to stand on one's own feet economically and ability to participate in public community decisions."

He also points out that Missouri's voter participation is relatively low, partly because of the many one-party pockets in the state—the Democrats in the big cities, "Little Dixies" in the Bootheel, and the Republicans in the Central Missouri Ozarks.

"Indifference, preoccupation with business or other pursuits, difficulty in getting to the polls and various inconveniences such as confusing voting techniques and the long 'long ballot' appear to be instrumental in keeping people from the polls."

Dr. Karsch also is critical of the "dog days primary" on the first Tuesday in August.

"The mechanics and techniques of elections," he says, "have not kept pace with the requirements of intelligent choice—expression in an age of advanced technology, rapid travel and instantaneous mass communications."

Many bills have been introduced in the legislature to change the primary date, including the most recent session, but all have failed—mostly because of the pressure of big city politicians who control blocs of voters who do not go on vacations in August.

Karsch is also critical of the long ballot that confronts Missouri voters and suggests many county and state offices well could be appointive.

He says few voters are able to go to the polls and be familiar with all the local, state and national candidates confronting them.

"The situation — is not one that promotes intelligent participation in one of the vital operations of Democracy."

He suggests "it would help some if representatives were elected for four-year terms rather than two years, staggering so that only half are voted on every two years.

"But the real trouble lies deeper. Observers have long inveighed against the evils of the 'long ballot', contending that some officials should be appointed rather than elected, not only relieving the burden on the voter but also increasing the likelihood of improving the quality of those who hold office.'

He says the long ballot causes "the citizens of Missouri (to) pay considerable price for this in electoral confusion, lowered quality of service and some unnecessary public salaries."

The mechanics of voting also came in for criticism. Voting machines are used only in St. Louis, St. Louis County and Kansas City but Karsch says they are cumbersome and difficult to operate.

There's a ray of light on that horizon, however. Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty and Clay County representative, pushed through a bill in the recent legislature to permit Clay to use a simpler electronic machine that is much cheaper than the big pull-the-lever types.

If it works as expected, the idea undoubtedly will spread to other heavily populated areas where counting of the long paper ballots is always slow.

Karsch also notes the voter lethargy in the many one-party pockets in Missouri.

"The relatively hopeless position of the minority party in non-competitive areas is bad for both parties," he said.

"It discourages the minority from trying to add to its ranks, and it encourages lethargy on the part of the majority party. Furthermore, there is no incentive to sharpen the issues and turn out the vote, with the result that the electorate itself tents to atrophy."

But now something may be done about all this. At least the legislature, after years of failure to act, has finally enacted an election law study commission with broad enough powers to review the whole archiac situation.

Basil Rathbone Was Most Noted 'Holmes'

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Basil Rathbone, the suave Shakespearean actor familiar to two generations of moviegoers as the screen's clipped-accented Sherlock Holmes, is dead of a heart attack. He was 75.

Rathbone played the role of Arthur Conan Doyle's deerstalker-capped, fictional sleuth in 16 films midway in his career as a Hollywood star.

Then, feeling his own personality was being submerged by that of Holmes, he abruptly quit the series and returned to his first love, the stage.

Rathbone had no history of heart trouble and was active until his death in his Manhattan apartment Friday.

Although he achieved popular fame and considerable fortune through the Holmes series, Rathbone usually referred to the experience derisively after he quit.

"I played Holmes for seven years, and nobody thought I could do anything else," he once complained.

He was born the son of an English mining engineer in Johannesburg, South Africa. As a boy he narrowly escaped death at the hands of the Boers and his father decided to send him to England to be educated.

At 18 he went to work for an insurance company, an experience he found "frightfully dull and uninvigorating." Soon after he left and joined a Shakespearean troupe managed by his cousin, Sir Frank Benson.

His first stage appearance was at the Theater Royal in Ipswich as Horatio in "The Taming of the Shrew." He was good enough so that his cousin brought him to the United States on tour in 1912.

During World War I he was a kilted captain in the Liverpool Scottish Regiment. He once explained his war experience to an interviewer thus: "All I did, old man, was disguise myself as a tree — that's correct, a tree — and cross no-man's land to gather a bit of information from the German lines."

Rathbone's first movie, a silent one, was "The Masked Bride" in 1925. With the advent of talkies his crisp well-modulated voice stood him in good stead.

His Hollywood career included more than 100 films.

Among them were "David Copperfield," "Anna Karenina" and "Romeo and Juliet."

In recent years he had turned to television. Rathbone loved acting and took secondary roles, no matter how small, because he enjoyed them.

Earlier this year, playing the Duke of York in a television drama, "Soldier in Love," he told an interviewer: "If you close your eyes during the first act you may very well miss me. But when it is no longer a matter of being a romantic star, an actor can play what he wants to play. And I wanted to play the Duke of York."

He is survived by his wife, the former Ouida Bergere, whom he married in 1926, their daughter, Cynthia, and a son Rodion, by his previous marrige to Ethel Marian Forman which ended in divorce.

A funeral service will be held Tuesday morning at St. James Episcopal church.

Danger Seen In TV Sets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 9,000 color television set owners and their families may be exposed to harmful radioactive rays from their sets, says the government.

It urged the unknown owners of the large-screen color consoles and table models manufactured by the General Electric Co. and sold between Sept. 1, 1966 and May 31, 1967 to pull the plugs and keep their television screens dark pending a check on possible radioactivity.

The warning came Friday from Surgeon General William H. Stewart, who said a painstaking nationwide search by General Electric had failed to turn up the 9,000 sets.

That's about one-tenth of the television sets the company feared might be emitting potentially harmful X-rays from certain tubes.

Even if the sets are issuing such rays, the extent of the harm they could cause was not precisely known.

Dr. Stewart described such rays as "a potential hazard to human health." A Public Health Service spokesman said later he saw no need for any owners of one of the sets to consult a doctor.

A GE spokesmak said the color sets involved have 18-, 20-, 22- and 23-inch screens.

The tubes involved were identified by the numbers 6EF4 and 6LO6.

Owners of such sets were urged to notify GE dealers or service centers or state or local health departments before using them.

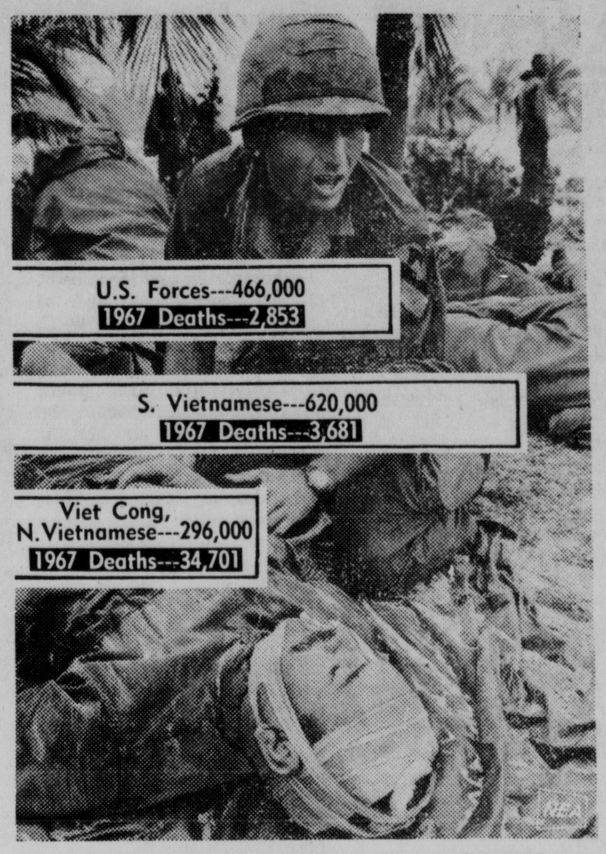

In Syracuse, N.Y., a GE spokesman said the sets involved "have a blue fine tune gauge above the control knobs and have on the back of the set either a serial number sticker beginning with OA or OD or no serial number at all.

"Receivers which already have been modified have a red and white label pasted on the back covering regulator tube replacement."

War's Toll Shifting

The balance of allied casualties in Vietnam has shifted in recent months from the South Vietnamese forces to the United States troops. Though the year's total combat deaths shows the South Vietnamese higher than the United States, the reverse has actually been true in May, June and the first part of July. In fighting during the week ending July 8, for example, two Americans were killed for every South Vietnamese.

Fresh Plums for a Royal Sponge Mold

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Purple plums, red plums, all kinds of plums, add royal color to the summer fruit bowl. Enjoy them now.

For a change, use them in desserts, such as plum turnovers, fresh plum pie. Or for a delicate sponge dessert, try this recipe.

FRESH PLUM SPONGE ROLL

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup cold water
- 1½ cups fresh orange juice
- ¾ cup fresh lemon juice
- 1 cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 4 fresh whole plums
- 2 egg whites
- 2 cups (1 pound) sliced plums

PLUMS in a sponge mold.

Soften gelatin in cold water; place over hot water (not boiling) to dissolve. In large mixing bowl combine orange juice, lemon juice, ¾-cup of the sugar and salt. Mix well. Cut whole plums in half, remove pits, and place in any desired pattern in 6-cup mold. Pour ½-cup of the clear mixture over plums. Chill until firm. Place the remaining gelatin mixture in refrigerator to chill until about as thick as fresh egg whites, about one hour. Beat egg whites until they stand in soft peaks; gradually beat in remaining ¼-cup sugar and fold into gelatin. Fold in sliced plums. Turn into mold. Chill until firm and ready to serve. Unmold on serving plate. Garnish as desired. Serve as dessert. 10 to 12 servings.

Fresh Plum Charlotte: If you are not counting calories, fold 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, into the above mixture for a richer dessert.

Must Show Monetary Concern

By CLAUDE E. ERBSEN . .

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — United States aid officials in Brazil have been told to show greater concern for the American taxpayer's money, and make sure it produces results.

More than 3 billion of it has been spent in Brazil since World War II, and another quarter-billion has been programmed for this fiscal year.

Despite massive doses of cash, surplus food and the presence of more than 500 U.S. aid officials, Brazil is lagging substantially behind the goals of the Alliance for Progress.

Aid officials express concern with the resistance of some local officials to accept guidelines to make aid meaningful and productive.

"Development assistance is a vehicle for change," U.S. aid director Stuart H. Van Dyke has told his staff here, "and part of the process involves changes in the old ways of management."

Writing in a publication for aid employees, Van Dyke adds, "There is no better argument for stopping the whole process than evidence of poor management and waste."

Both have appeared in the U.S. aid program in Brazil.

One of its showcase projects, the Vila Kennedy housing development in the suburbs of Rio, has been described by Rep. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., as "a prime example of how visionary and totally unrealistic approaches can waste aid dollars."

An aid-financed synthetic rubber plant in Recife is idle most of the time because of poor planning and inadequate market research before it was built.

The ambitious school construction program for northeastern Brazil bogged down in graft and waste last year and had to be totally restructured this year, with substantially reduced goals.

Part of the problem can be attributed to poor controls by U.S. field personnel who "let bad programs get far before stepping in," according to one top U.S. aid official here.

The word now is to cut programs which show no sign of progress or encounter red tape or waste.

Stressing the need for good planning and administration, Van Dyke also wants his staff to insist on local participation and cooperation.

Reluctance to accept U.S. guidance and standards has been a problem in the Brazilian Northeast, for a long time the main target of U.S. assistance programs.

American officials also are disappointed at the failure of the Education Ministry to move faster in carrying out an agreement on higher education. The ministry was silent when the agreement came under heavy attack from students, some leftist leaders and the archbishop of Recife, Dom Helder Camara. They called it an attempt to denationalize Brazilian education.

Historic Trip For Pope Paul

ISTANBUL (AP) — Pope Paul VI sets foot three days from now in a land troublesome for Roman Catholicism even before the last papal visit 12 centuries ago.

Five early popes made the hazardous 1,000-mile voyage from Rome to Istanbul, then called Constantinople. The great schism between Roman Catholicism and the Eastern Orthodox was three centuries away but slowly building.

One pope died here. Another died on the way home. A third died after banishment from Constantinople by the Eastern emperor.

Like Pope Paul, each came to find reconciliation or to mediate peace.

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Army crew from the 117th Assault Helicopter Company, painted a stork on the side of its aircraft Friday after a Montagnard woman gave an in-flight birth to a five-pound boy.

The helicopter, flown by WO Robert Brown of Indianapolis, was racing to a hospital when the baby arrived.

"Before we were half way there we had an extra passenger," said SP. 5-C William Pickard, of St. Joseph, Mo., the crew chief.

Sgt. Dale Rogers of Salt Lake City, Utah, the copter's gunner, helped with the aerial delivery.

'We usually paint a little "charlie" on the side of the ship when we get one," said Pickard, referring to killing a Viet Cong. "But I'm putting on a stork this time."

Saw Quick Way To Kill Insects

The Sedalia Fire Department was called to 923 West Third Friday evening. According to fire reports, Mike Kinshella, age 5, was helping his older sister Victoria Lynn, 12, kill some insects by their back porch.

Mike apparently became anixous to do away with the ants in a hurry, so when Victoria went inside the house for a moment, Mike got an old gas can and dumped the contents onto the insects. He then struck a match and threw it on the gasoline. Fortunately it was a small amount of gasoline and only slight damage resulted to their backporch.

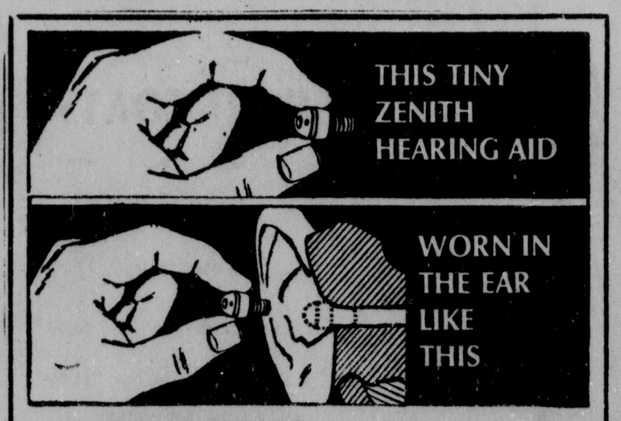

The fire was put out by Victoria with a garden hose, before the fireman arrived.

POST NASAL DRIP BEGINS IN THE NASOPHARYNX
To maintain moisture, the nasal passage' ways produce copious quantities of both a watery secretion and a thicker mucous. A certain quantity always lingers in the upper throat or nasopharynx. If an oversupply ac' cumulates, particularly of the mucous, the result is a post'nasal drip.
Some basic causes are air irritants, smoking, chemical or physical damages to membrane, gross deformities in nasal passageways, climate, altitude or humidity. Gargling is not considered effective. Do not neglect medical treatment of post-nasal drip. Otherwise the tissues thicken, result-in permanent deformities which require surgical correction.

Outline For Rose Diseases

By Lloyd Lewellen

Roses have their problems. They are bothered by insects, at least two serious diseases, and need fertilizing on a regular basis.

There is no excuse if bugs are on roses because insecticides are available to take care of these pests. The more common pests on roses are small green aphids, tiny yellow-orange soft-bodied thrips, mites and a variety of chewing insects.

Sevin is effective on many kinds of chewing insects. Diazinon or malathion will control many of the worst chewing and sucking insects. If mites are plentiful, use of kelthane or aramite is urged.

Get the advice of local nurserymen or garden center operators on which material will be most effective for specific insect problem. The key to good results from any insecticide is to follow the directions for application exactly.

Black spot and mildew are two rose diseases causing the most trouble. Black spot is noticeable mainly on the upper leaf surface as black, rounded to irregular spots with fringed margins. The spots turn yellow and some defoliation takes place if several spots are present on a single leaf.

Powdery mildew often appears as a flour-like coating on the leaves. Younger leaves infected with the fungus tend to curl and be more purplish than normal leaves. Badly infected flower buds do not open. Materials to use for black spot are phaltan, captan, maneb, ferbam or zineb. Phaltan also gives some protection from mildew.

To protect from mildew, in addition to phaltan, sulphur can be used. Karthane and Mildex will eradicate mildew if used properly. In most cases, insecticides and fungicides can be combined into a general-purpose spray or dust.

When the leaves are growing rapidly and during rainy weather, it may be necessary to spray plants once each week. Later in the season, however, when growth is less rapid and rains are less frequent, treatment at ten to twelve-day intervals is adequate.

Soil is unique and there can be no set formula for determining the ideal program for fertilizing roses. Trial and error is about the only reliable method although a soil test is often very revealing.

More rose problems are probably brought on by overfeeding than by starvation. Many experts recommend 6-10-4, 8-8-8 and similar analysis fertilizers.

Recommended use: one-fourth cup of fertilizer around each plant, scratched in, and watered well. A treatment once each month, May through September, is recommended.

If preferred, apply one-third to one-half cup of 6-10-4 or similar material per plant. Do this in April to stimulate growth, again in June to promote flowering, and in August to insure late summer blooms.

Hoosier State

It is not known how the name Hoosier began to be used as a nickname for Indiana. It may have come from the old Saxon word "hoozer," meaning "hill dweller."

In Spite Of Success

Hoss Looks Longingly At His Former Life

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is hard to swallow, but Dan Blocker solemnly said he'd take an oath on it.

Blocker, 39, 6-foot-4 and 285 pounds, with a 20-inch neck and, by my wife's borrowed tape measure, a 14-inch fist, earns $11,000 a week playing Hoss Cartwright on TV's "Bonanza."

With personal appearances and investments in real estate, banking and industries, he averages $50,000 a month.

Eight years of this have made him very, very, very rich, indeed.

Yet, Blocker swore, if he had his life to live over he'd still be a schoolteacher in Carlsbad, N.M.—"making $485 a month and happy with it."

"I'm a 39-year-old living with a decision I made at 29," he said.

"'Bonanza' has brought me all kinds of good things and some bad. Mainly, loss of privacy. We play to 500 million people around the world every week, and there's nowhere my family and I can go and participate like a normal family."

He cited an example from six years ago, when "Bonanza" was in only its third year.

He took his sons, Dirk and Dave, now 11 and 9, to see a baseball game.

"Some guy behind us kept egging his kid on to get my autograph. The boy didn't want to but finally, reluctantly, did. Of course, all the other kids in the grandstand came down for autographs, and if you turn them down they hate your guts.

"By the third inning there were 1,500 to 2,000 in line and this guy behind us—the same one who had egged his kid on-yelled: 'Hey, you louse, if you want to sign autographs, go down to Hollywood and Vine! Down in front!'

"We left. We never did see the damn ball game."

The same thing happens in any public place, said Blocker.

"We never missed a Coliseum relay until the third year of 'Bonanza.' My kids don't understand this. It throws their whole sense of values out of kilter. They can't understand why I can't go to an open house at their school. They don't have a father except at home."

For family excursions, the Blockers, including wife Dolphia and twin daughters Debbie and Danna, 13, substitute the swimming pool and table tennis at home in the San Fernando Valley.

"Like money or health, we don't appreciate the value of privacy until we've lost it," said Dan.

"Four years ago I attempted to go back to teaching, but my old principal said, 'forget it. You'll never be Mr. Blocker again. You'll always be Hoss.'"

Blocker got into acting almost by accident.

Fourteen pounds at birth in O'Donnell, Tex.-"the population was 800 counting dogs, sheep, cows, goats and chickens"-he hefted 100-pound sacks of salt and grain at 11 in his father's general store.

I was a lazy kid naturally, but my dad took that out of me," he said.

In time came the A.A.U. and Golden Gloves boxing championships of Texas; Sul Ross State College, Alpine, Tex.; Korea combat as an infantry sergeant, and marriage to his college sweetheart.

He taught school for a year at $225 a month in Sonora, Tex., then Carlsbad, N.M., and came to UCLA to study for his doctorate.

"I had kids to support, so an agent got me three days' work in 'Gunsmoke.' In my senior year of college I'd got talked into doing a play and discovered it was kind of dun.

After 'Gunsmoke' I took three days on the Jane Wyman Theater because I couldn't turn down the money. After a 'Playhouse 90' I withdrew from UCLA and never quite got around to going back."

Because drunks feel impelled to challenge him on account of his size and massive arms, he avoids bars and restaurants except for a small luncheon haunt frequented by actors near Paramount studios, where "Bonanza" is filmed.

Blocker said the amount of money he makes is "absolutely immoral."

Control Board Is Inactive

WASHINGTON (AP)—Young Simon Francis McHugh, who we a presidential secretary and landed a $26,000 seat on the Subversive Activities Control Board, could have ample time for lingering lunches with his bride.

For the five-man board-born 17 years ago during this country's anti—Communist upheavals—today has virtually nothing to do.

McHugh, 29, came on the job —what there is of it—Monday, 11 months after his marriage to Victoria McCammon, then one of President Johnson's favorite secretaries. He previously had been a $17,550 civil servant in the Small Business Administration.

Thursday, McHugh landed on the front page of the Wall Street Journal in a story that said rather flatly McHugh had been appointed to the plush job because of the marriage—and with the help of some greased skids through the Senate confirmation.

McHugh was unavailable for comment about the story. The White House press secretary, George Christian, called it a hatchet job and commented that "certainly the President's knowledge of an appointee is an important factor."

The incident provoked one member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Sen. Gordon L. Allott, R—Colo., to label the McHugh appointment "an outrage and a disgrace." As a taxpayer, Allott said, he was burned up.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the confirmation to the five-year term was handled routinely, with no pressure from the White House to speed or assure success.

But teapot tempest or not, the McHugh story focused attention on a board that has become something of an anachronism and has borne out former President Harry S. Truman's prophecy that the Communist registration law would be unenforceable.

The board was supposed to name Communists and their organizations. These were expected then to register as such with the attorney general.

It named quite a few—44 individuals, two dozen fronts, one "action" group—the party itself —and one "infiltrated" group.

But nobody ever has registered. And the courts have pulled virtually all the teeth from the McCarran Act, which created the board.

Today, there's only one case pending—and even that is stalled in the courts at least until autumn.

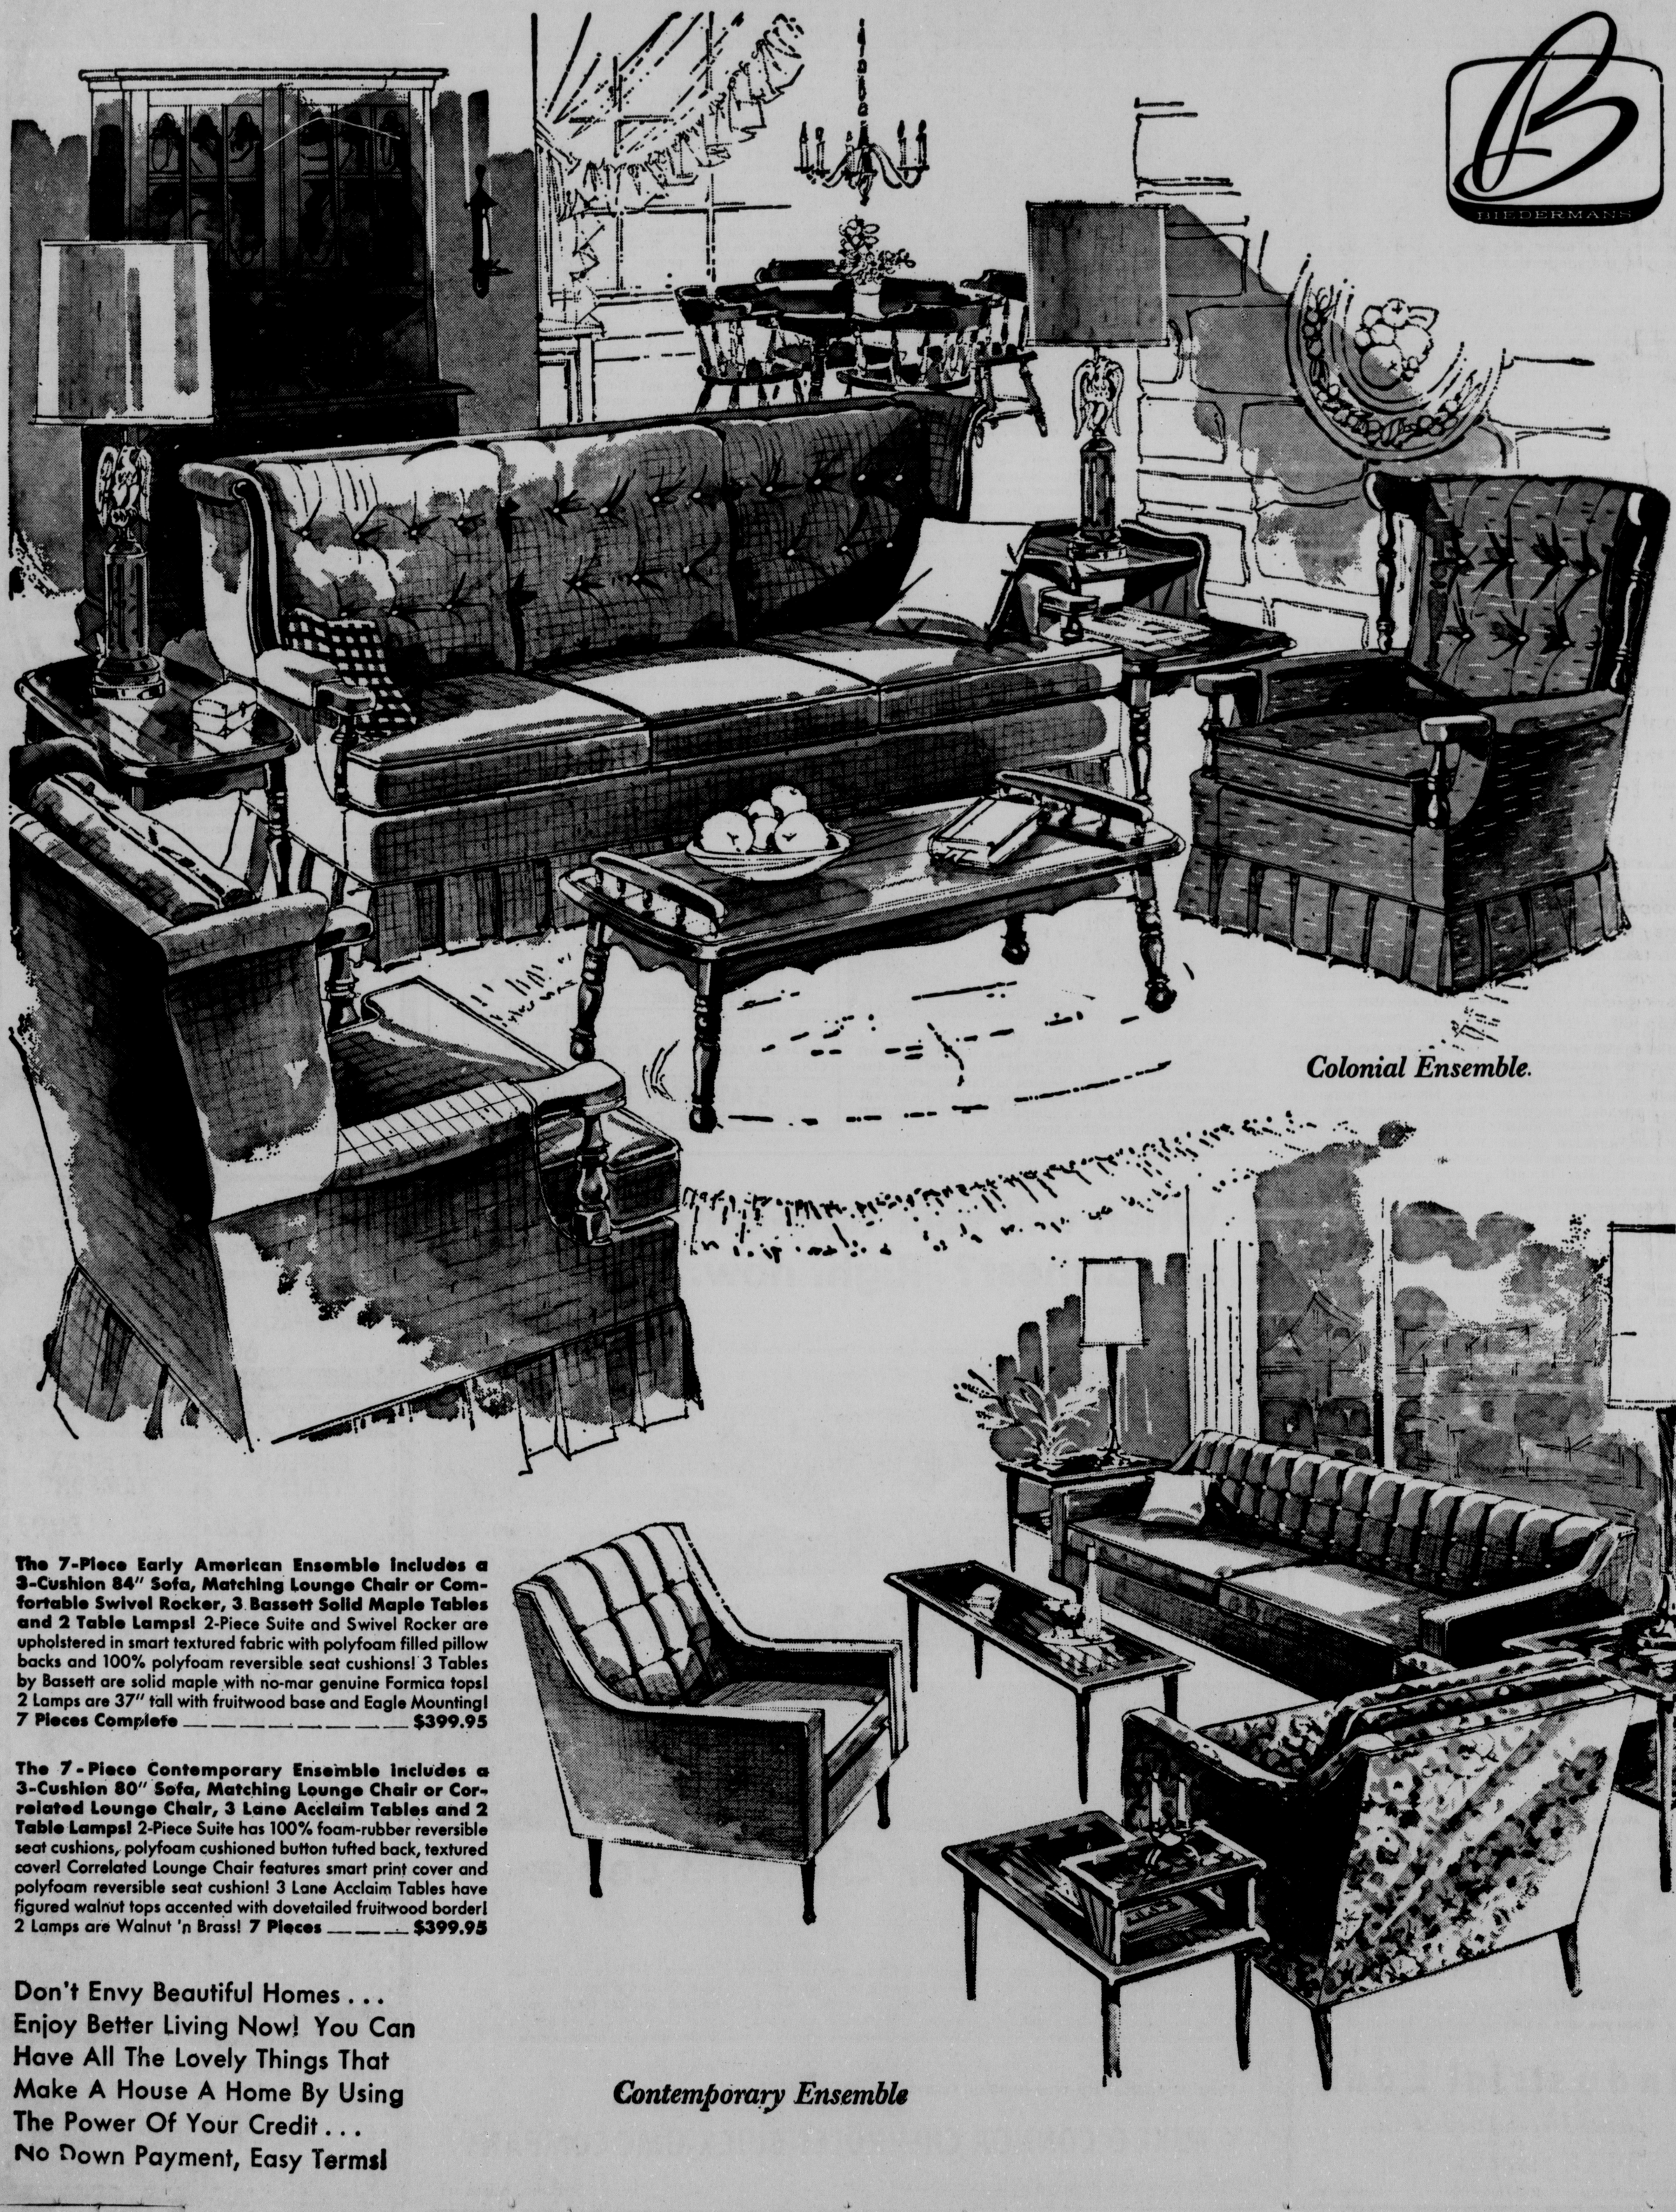

But the five men continue to hold offices that pay them a total of $130,000 a year. The board, with an authorized strength of 17 persons and an annual budget just under $300,000, sits two blocks from the White House.

John S. Patterson, an Illinois Republican who joined the board last September, acknowledged that the board's work pace isn't backbreaking.

"This is a deterrent type of job," he told a newsman. "It's a fire department-type operation, and we're waiting for a fire to break out."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual congressional baseball game hasn't even been played and already Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, manager-pitcher for the Democrats, has lodged a protest.

Udall said Thursday he has received reports that Republicans have been practicing for Wednesday's contest at D.C. Stadium.

"This is another of the typically devious and unsportsmanlike tactics of the GOP," he charged.

Rep. Silvio O. Conte of Massachusetts, veteran manager of the Republicans, wouldn't say whether the charge was true. But he described some of the pitches Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois planned to throw at the Democrats.

"There is the Johnson credibility gap ball," Conte said. "It appears to be something more than it really is."

Another pitch up Michel's sleeve, Conte continued, is "the McNamara escalator which approaches the batter knee high and rapidly rises out of sight."

But Udall said he would enter the game prepared with several pitches of his own.

"There's the Romney fadeaway," he warned. "This is a pitch which starts out in a sharp upward trajectory, appears to change position several times on the way to the plate, but ends up dropping sharply to the turf."

"And," Udall added, "there is the Nixon slider, a sneaky pitch which always comes inside and low."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's argument for an income tax surcharge has received another boost from Commerce Department figures showing personal income during June advanced to a record annual rate of $621.9 billion.

The June figure, paced by rising wages and salaries, represents a monthly advance of $3.7 billion, the biggest jump since January's $5.4-billion advance. Personal income has continued to rise throughout the economic sluggishness of the first half of 1967.

Johnson contends a surtax of at least six per cent in needed, partly to combat inflation during an economic upsurge expected in the second half of the year.

Rights Need Protection

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The United States "cannot raise a generation that believes in anarchy," Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., said Thursday in reference to recent unrest in Newark, N. J.

"The courts must make sure the rights of the majority are protected, as well as the rights of the individual," the House minority leader told the American Poultry and Hatchery Federation meeting in St. Louis.

Ford urged that the Senate take quick action on an anti-riot bill. He said the measure would give the attorney general an effective tool to cope with "outside agitators."

Ford also said he was opposed to the President's proposed 6 per cent surcharge on corporate and individual incomes because, "the administration has made no significant effort whatsoever to cut back non-essential nonmilitary spending."

Teriaki Steak: A Queen's Specialty

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

She surfs, plays eight musical instruments, is a winner at tennis and a freshman at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. But wait—there's more—she's a fine cook and a top finalist in the recent National College Queen Pageant in New York, along with 49 other outstanding college girls, one from each of our 50 states.

Her name is Mona Lei Sen and here's her highly rated Teriaki steak recipe which delighted the six men judges.

MONA LEI SEN and Teriaki steak.

TERIAKI STEAK

4 (1-inch) shell (New York) steaks
1 cup soy sauce
1 cup sugar
⅓ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon corn oil
1½ teaspoons powdered ginger
1 pinch monosodium glutamate
1½ teaspoons toasted sesame seed
3 green onions, chopped
1 tablespoon sherry

Trim steaks well. Mix marinade ingredients; pour over steaks in a flat pan. Let stand in sauce for 30 minutes. Broil approximately five minutes on each side for rare. Baste with sauce while broiling. Makes four servings.

NOTE: Teriaki steak is a favorite Japanese dish. For "pupus" (Hawaii term for cocktail appetizers) the meat is sliced very thin in 1-inch strips, marinated, threaded on bamboo sticks or small skewers and broiled.

Says UAW Demands Excessive

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. says the United Auto Workers Union is being unrealistic if it thinks its going to get every contract demand it makes.

William M. O'Brien, Chrysler vice president for personnel and a top negotiator, called the UAW package of demands "certainly all-inclusive."

As the second week of contract talks ended, O'Brien told newsmen the UAW's list of goals "covers every aspect of our relationship with them.

"It's probably the most ambitious set of demands we've ever received from the UAW, O'Brien said.

Douglas Fraser, head of the UAW's Chrysler department, agreed the union demands were greater than ever before.

"We have more problems than we've ever had before," he added.

Fraser outlined to Chrysler Friday the UAW demands aimed at solving one of the UAW's big problems—120,000 skilled workers at Big Three plants who claim the union has shortchanged them in past negotiations.

While the tradesmen are the highest-paid class of workers among UAW members in the auto field, they complain that their wages still fall short of those received by workers who do the same jobs outside the industry.

Seasoned Butters Are Just Great on Fresh Corn

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Fresh corn is without doubt one of nature's sweetest gifts to man. At least that's the way many people think. If you have any doubts, try the two following—corn-on-cob with seasoned butters and fresh corn pudding.

CORN ON COB is delicious with cold, sliced ham.

FRESH CORN-ON-THE-COB WITH SEASONED BUTTERS

6 ears fresh corn-on-the-cob
1 teaspoon salt
Corn butters

Husk fresh corn and remove silks. Place in large saucepan with water to cover. Add salt. Cook five to eight minutes or until tender (time depends upon maturity of corn). Remove from water and serve with one of the following butters. Soften butter and blend in any of the following ingredients. Serve with baked ham.

CORN BUTTERS

¼ cup butter or margarine
chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh chives
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh onion
1 tablespoon finely
½ teaspoon ground oregano
⅛ teaspoon minced fresh garlic

Six servings (one ear per serving).

COUNTRY CORN PUDDING

2 cups fresh corn, cut-off-the-cob
½ cup cottage cheese
3 tablespoons chopped fresh green pepper
3 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1½ cups light cream
½ cup dry bread crumbs

In large bowl combine corn, cottage cheese and green pepper. Add beaten eggs, salt, pepper, sugar and ginger. Stir in melted butter, cream and bread crumbs. Pour into buttered 1½-quart casserole. Place in pan of hot water and bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for about one hour or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serve immediately. Six to eight servings.

Needs Top Priority

Eisenhower Critical Of War's 'Gradualism'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower says it is time for Congress to decide whether to formally declare war against North Vietnam.

The five-star general also called for an end to what he termed "a war of gradualism" in Vietnam and said the conflict deserves top priority to insure an allied victory.

Eisenhower's views were published Friday in the Republican Congressional Committee Newsletter. They were given last Saturday in reply to questions put to him by 34 freshmen GOP representatives at his Gettysburg, Pa., home.

Eisenhower approved use of his comments in paraphrased form.

Questioned about a declaration of war, his paraphrased reply was: "With 450,000 U.S. troops now in Vietnam, it is time that Congress decided whether or not to declare a state of war exists with North Vietnam.

"Previous congressional resolutions of support provide only limited authority. Although Congress may decide that the previously approved resolution on Vietnam given President Johnson is sufficient, the issue of a declaration of war should at least be put before the Congress for decision."

Referring to U.S. efforts in Vietnam, the Newsletter said Eisenhower felt: "Since we're sending American boys to fight and die in a hard, cruel war in Vietnam, that war should be given first priority. Other goals, however attractive, should take second place.

"Tax increases would not be needed if we had set priorities earlier."

The Newsletter also attributed these paraphrased comments to the former president:

On the need to win—"When you must use force to support a national aim, for example in the defense of another country's freedom, there is no higher authority to which you can appeal. Therefore, you must win. To do that, you need all the power you have and you must use it quickly and secretly so as to achieve surprise. You cannot win a war of gradualism. At the same time, we must help the Vietnamese government to teach its people the value of freedom and self-government."

On treaties with the Soviet Union—"Although we must treat with the Russians, we should keep in mind that there is no assurance they will keep their word. The number of treaties they have broken is astronomical. So far as possible, solid guarantees must be obtained to make sure they will do what the paper says they will do."

On Republican chances—"Although it will take a lot of hard, unremitting work to win in 1968.

Joins A Study Tour Of Mexico

Dawn Roseboom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Roseboom, 1220 Liberty Park, an art major at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, where she will be a junior this fall, has joined a group of students from colleges and universities of Texas, Georgia, Florida and Missouri for a 6-week study tour of Mexico from July 19 to Aug. 19.

While there Miss Roseboom will go on a 2,000 mile tour of Mexico visiting archaeological "digs," and points of historical interest in Mexico City.

Considers Entering

WOODSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black is thinking seriously of running for Congress. The former child movie star expects to announce her decision within two weeks.

Mrs. Black, 39, a Republican, said Thursday she was considering entering a Nov. 14 special election race because State Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, Atherton attorney, had decided against running.

"He was my candidate," Mrs. Black said.

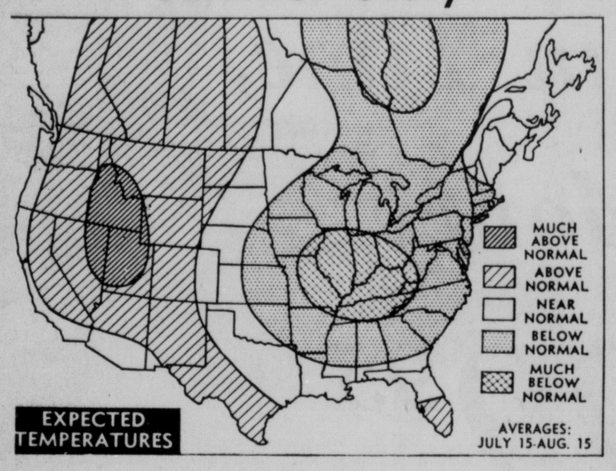

Gov. Ronald Reagan on Thursday set for Nov. 14 the special election to fill the 11th district seat vacated by the death of Rep. J. Arthur Younger. He died June 20 in Washington of leukemia.

If no candidate wins a majority in the Nov. 14 voting, a runoff election will be held Dec. 12.

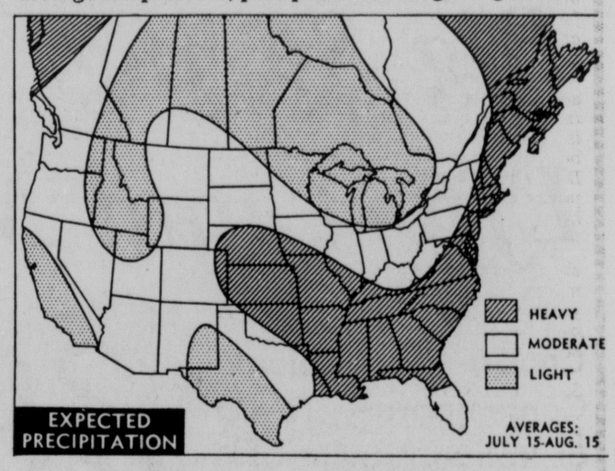

Three Republicans already have announced for the seat representing San Mateo County, immediately south of San Francisco on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

A WHIRLWIND OF HATS IS ENGULFING YOU: YOUTH BEAT has eyed an ominous sign for some months now . . . that hats are coming back for girls. Regardless of whether this momentous happening grows to a full-fledged style front, hats are here, this summer. Pert British actress Judy Geeson informed this column privately, over a month ago, that sombreros had sprung up with the spring flowers in England. Now a leading authority in the U. S. millinery world reveals all. Early this year young Parisiennes, for no reason, suddenly sported sombrero-type hats . . . fad jumped to England (where the smart set is smart enough to copy youth). This intercontinental headgear surge has hit U. S. Most popular is the soft, crushable, floppy-brimmed, girl sombrero (a la Greta Garbo) . . . also the Aussie digger (Australian cowboy type) that's stiffer brimmed . . . both circled by 3½ to 4-inch brims and in solid colors. Next, the snap brim (more like a man's everyday hat—high crown, small brim) in non-everyday colors like glaring orange, apple green, bright beige. In straws, grandpa's stiff yellow model is coming back some (it's shaped like the low-crowned Civil War ironclad, Monitor) . . . More graceful for girls is the Louisiana planter's version of white, thin straw, natural crown, fedora-type brim. Alas, guys, girls are stealing your hats, this summer . . . but the fierce force of fashion makes amends for this. Deep research has discovered: as skirts get shorter more heads hide under hats . . . and as bikinis get skimpier, the shrinkage of apparel is made up for by bigger beach hats.

CRUNCHY, CHEWY, TASTY BUGS — FUTURE DIET: Grandpop stuck to meat and potatoes . . . Dad scorned salads as a boy, but succumbed to them when courting mom. The American diet just in the last few years has increased in prodigious variety (all the new fresh frozen foods, for instance) . . . But (here, too) a disturbing portent looms for the future—You may eat insects. University of California's Dr. Ronald L. Taylor points out that shortages of staple foods plague the world . . . then spices up his entomology classes by serving fried caterpillars or chocolate-covered bees. Civilized man's aversion to dining on the earth's rich hordes of insects he calls "irrational". Tastier and "cleaner" than many of today's prized foods, insects are more than a "food of the future." At movies in South America toasted leaf-cutting ants are sold like popcorn . . . termites and caterpillars pop down appreciative gullets in Africa . . . both Japan and China highly esteem a juicy snack of silkworm pupae . . . while across our border in Mexico, the butterfly larva that hatches in the same plant that pulque, a national drink, is made from is savored to gulp down with the drink. To the hesitant beginner sampling this wonderful new larder of nature, Dr. Taylor suggests—raw, toasted, fried, boiled, curried, powdered or baked . . . your everyday, back yard grasshopper.

ALL IS NOT GOLD THAT GLITTERS, GUYS: Soviet Russia, General De Gaulle and U.S. government are all trying to muscle in on the gold supply . . . So why shouldn't U. S. youth, too (girls mostly, but boys, too . . . and, of course, boys bedecking girls in gold). Start came with the pierced ears frenzy—when doctors insisted on the sterility of 12K to 14K (karat) gold for earrings. Since then there has been a quiet upswing in young adult purchase of golden trinkets, the jewelry industry reports. More money scattered among more young people has made more geegaws in gold easier to afford . . . and new variety in designs (combining gold with precious stones and such) has stimulated teen tastes for gold ornaments. Meanwhile, the price of gold, by federal ukase, has remained frozen at 1934 prices (suppose this had happened with cars, education and clothes)! Some tips about buying the glittering stuff: Key to its value is the number of karats—pure gold is 24 karat (too soft to stand rough jewelry wear) . . . for every part of alloy added, one karat goes up the flue, but below 10 karat it's usually not considered quality gold . . . So when a girl (or a guy) gets gold adornment, it's nicest to receive it in 14K to 18K (always stamped right into the piece).

World News

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Haiti's ambassador to Mexico, Jules Pierra Audain, says he is resigning his post because of "the sepulcher peace now prevailing in my country."

Audain, the dean of the diplomatic corps in Mexico, told newsmen Thursday night he still considers himself a friend of Haitian President Francois Duvalier but plans to stay in Mexico, writing his memoirs and following his former profession as a civil engineer.

The popular diplomat said Duvalier's dictatorship is based on "such a psychosis of fear that nobody dares contradict him." He said he had often advised Duvalier to relax his rule but to no avail.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — An attorney for publisher Helio Fernandes, banished for a bitter editorial attack on the late former President Humberto Castello Branco, says he is asking the Brazilian supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus.

Fernandes was banished Thursday to the desolate island of Fernando de Noronha, 225 miles off Brazil's northeast coast. A front-page editorial in his paper after Castello Branco was killed in a plane collision Tuesday said the former president was calculating and merciless and humanity lost nothing by his death.

Justice Minister Luiz da Gama e Silva said the editorial was a threat to order. He asserted the banishment was not an arrest, "just a residence order."

Last year Castello Branco stripped the 44-year-old publisher, a frequent critic of the government, of his political rights.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — The first man found with LSD after the drug was outlawed in New Zealand was sentenced to six weeks in prison today.

Police told an Auckland magistrate that Mark Houghton Cawte Young, 26, a freelance writer, was found with 22 pieces of LSD- impregnated blotting paper on July 11, the day after legislation placed the drug under the narcotics act.

Young pleaded guilty.

Sparks and Split Seconds

By BOB COCHNAR and DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — J. Paul Getty, who is said to have more coin than anybody else in the whole world, has some advice for car owners on how to drive economically.

Oh, O.K., J. Paul! We promise not to roar away from stoplights in the Ferrari and we'll have the old Rolls in for check-up every five years.

Says 74-year-old Mr. Getty, from his small pad in jolly old England: "No cost-conscious motorist can afford to be without a chauffeur—even if he secretly plays the role himself."

Admittedly, Getty does know a few things about oil, beyond how it can be sold for profit. But he says he got all his dope on car economy from watching the painstaking performances of his chauffeurs. Here are some of his findings:

"A single faulty spark plug (cost 70 cents) causing misfiring in one cylinder can add $36.40 to the fuel bill for a motorist who averages 7,400 miles annually.

"An engine filter choked with dirt can cost $16.80 in the course of a year.

"Defective piston rings can add $14 to the bill.

"An error of five pounds in tire pressure reduces tire life by one-third, costing $8.40 a year for the average family motorist in England, a few dollars more for the sports car addict who likes to charge upon occasions."

Getty's car economy studies come to us by way of the British Motor Corporation (MGB-GT, MGB, Austin Healey, Sprite, etc.) which offers his economy ideas with its new cars . . .

. . . Any race driver, rank amateur or ranking professional, will tell that you can't really appreciate speed and competition until you can appreciate that "split second" race people are always talking about.

"Somebody told me after a race once," says Indianapolis three-time winner A. J. Foyt, "that I shouldn't be so happy, that I had only won the race by two seconds. I just laughed."

No need to explain Foyt's point. Still, the split second in racing is beyond the novice's grasp. Don't believe it? Try rallying. You don't need scads of money to set up a car and you don't even have to go fast.

If you aren't familiar with it, automobile rallying roughly is something like a trip over the meadow and through the woods to grandmother's house when you don't know where she lives or how to get there, but you must be there on time.

It's great sport for people who don't dig Sunday picnics, who like to drive cars but can't or won't race. You don't necessarily need a performance (sports) car and you can even bring along the missus or a date.

In rallying, time, speed and distance traveled—and accuracy in making the correct turns at precisely the right moment—are all-important. The driver-navigator team which completes the course (40 or 50 miles, usually) fastest is not the winner.

Rather, the team which drives off with honors is the one that comes closest to passing all check points and arrives at destination at the fraction of a second nearest the critical moment established by the rally committee.

Safe, precision driving is a must. Speeds are established at or below the posted limits. And average speeds over legs between check points are computed to the hundredth of a mile per hour. A traffic ticket during competition is like grounds for disqualification!

Each driver-navigator team is given a set of instructions—route to follow, turns, check points, prescribed time to complete the course, etc. While the driver concentrates his skills on maintaining proper speed, his/her navigator is occupied with course instructions, accurate timing devices (a watch with sweep second hand as a minimum) and precise computation gear—up to a slide rule or even complex electronic instruments.

If you're interested, check with your local Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) regional office and they'll tell you how, where and when to enter one.

When you lose a nice silver trophy by 1/100th of a second, then, as Foyt suggested, you can really appreciate the difference between a record lap at Indy or a spin-out into the wall.

Many Waterways

Canada's 3,845,744 square miles contain a major portion of the world's fresh water, according to recent research. No other country has so many inland waterways.

STRUMMIN' ON THE OLD BANJO may come to mind upon looking at this apparatus, but it's more like "knit one, purl one" for the technician at right, who is making knitted vinyl for furniture covering, a diversified product of Ford Motor Co. In this operation vinyl film is cut into thin strips, knitted together with nylon thread and completed in the shape of a giant sock. Thousands of miles of the vinyl are produced each year by the company for uses ranging from heavy truck seats to rainwear clothing.

Approval Of Merger Expected

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Frontier Airlines will be the fourth largest air carrier in terms of route miles if its proposed merger with Central Airlines is approved, a Frontier official said in St. Louis Thursday.

Board Chairman and President Lewis Dymond said the Civil Aeronautics Board is expected to approve the merger "sometime in September." Dymond was in St. Louis for a meeting of Frontier's Board of Directors.

The company official also said Frontier is negotiating for the purchase of $50 million in new jet aircraft. Purchase would include a $23-25 million contract with the McDonnell Douglas Corp. of St. Louis for the 115-passenger DC9-30 craft and a $30-31 million contract for the 165-passenger Boeing 727-2.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Now that I have read the letter from the man who wanted a Viking funeral I know I am not crazy. As you will recall, a Viking funeral is when they put the dead person in a boat, set it afire and shove it out to sea.

I am 20 and I want to be buried in a G.T.O., sitting up in the bucket seat with both hands on the wheel. I want a wild combo to play at the funeral so all my friends will be ina happy mood instead of a sad mood, which is what is wrong with most funerals in the dirst place.

I hope you won't tell me this is against the law because if it is, I will be pretty darned mad. After all, don't people have the right to decide what happens to their own remains? — NILES, ILLINOIS

Dear Niles: Sorry, but you are going to be pretty darned mad because I must inform you that states have laws telling people what they can and cannot do with their remains. If you want to be buried n a G.T.O. you'll have to do it someplace else, Buddy Boy, because I have checked and it's no dice in Illinois.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you believe in fate or miracles, or could it be just a lucky coincidence that I read your column yesterday morning and it contained the advice that probably saved my son's marriage? This is what happened:

My son was married three months ago to a very lovely girl. Everything was cream and peaches until tonight when he showed up with a suitcase. I said, 'What's this all about?' He answered, 'Sue and I had a terrible argument and I am spending the night here—maybe several nights.'

Then I remembered your column, the one where you said a mother should not let her son or daughter come home once they marry. You said if they have a fight and try to come home, they should be told, 'Go to your OWN home, where you belong, and work out your problems.'

I told my son he was not welcome, that he was a married oan now and that he should go back to his wife and settle things. He was very angry with me, said I had failed him in his hour of need and that I was a rotten mother. I'll admit I cried my eyes out when he left and I wondered if maybe I had made a mistake.

The next morning at 9:30 a.m. my son called from work. He said, 'Mother, thank you for sending me home. Sue and I are going to get along just fine from now on. I know now that you were right and I want to thank you for having the guts to send me home.'

So, I want to say to you, Ann, thanks a million. You are the one who deserves the credit not me. —PENNSY+ LVANIA READER
PEADER

Dear Reader: Thanks for trying to give me the credit, but t is YOU who deserve it. I hand out a lot of advice, and a lot of it is ignored, I am sure. The person who is able to sort out the ideas that make sense to him, and ally them to his own life is the one who is REALLY smart.

Confidential to Need Him: You
You need him like Johnstown needed more rain. The man was a con artist and he proved it three different times. Forget about him while you still have your health and your looks and a few dollars in the bank.

'The Bride's Guide,' Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

STATUE of the Angel Moroni tops the Hill Cumorah, where the pageant is held. According to Mormon belief, the angel guided Joseph Smith to the "golden plates" on the hill, which told the story of the ancient civilization.

THE PAGEANT depicts the rise and fall of an ancient American civilization and the resurrection of Christ on this continent, according to the "Book of Mormon." Scenes include human sacrifice by an ancient people before their conversion to Christianity, as shown above.

The NOW People: While Others Talk, Mrs. Straus Acts

By AILEEN SNODDY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There are several hundred slum landlords in this city who consider the old saw "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world" electrifying, not trite.

Their reason? They ran head-on into a group of 50 women volunteers guided by Mrs. Peter Straus, wife of the head of WMCA, a New York radio station.

Mrs. Straus, like so many active women in their early 40s with children, wanted to do more than shuffle papers in an office. A Smith graduate, she early channeled her special energies into doing things. First it was a paid job with the New York City League of Women Voters. She earned $18.75 a week with the league and then went to the Atomic Energy Commission and was involved in its school educational campaign.

The year 1949 was a busy and romantic one for her. Active in the campaign for the late Sen. Herbert Lehman, she and Straus "courted on sound trucks."

Throughout her job experiences she had the nagging thought, she says, that energies of volunteer women were wasted. She explains that "I finally decided there were an enormous numbers of people doing good things but most of them were only making reports.

"I was convinced that there was something better for women's civic groups to do other than raise money and sit on boards."

About three years ago Mrs. Straus and the station came up with Call for Action. "We needed a project where mothers could come in at 9, be out at 3:15 to be home by 4 when the children got out of school."

The result was a perfect marriage, she says, and a beginning cleanup of frightening housing conditions in New York's slums. In July 1966, for example, 100 buildings were declared public nuisances, direct result of a new law forced by public interest stirred up by Call for Action.

To make the project work, Mrs. Straus explains, they first sought a crucial area of human need. "We went to agency and community leaders and asked what the major problems were. Topping the list was housing." Early in the phone-in campaign, the women started a file of complaints. It led to a listing of building faults and the departments to call.

Eventually this was collated, reorganized and cross-keyed so a person didn't call five or six agencies before finding someone with authority or jurisdiction over the problem. This was put in book form, called "The Book You Shouldn't Need," sent to neighborhood agencies to aid tenants in distress.

Tenants also were urged to call the Action number with complaints which were sifted and checked. From the resulting cross-reference file the women unexpectedly turned up the true owners of many buildings.

Mrs. Straus appeared at a public hearing in City Hall and heard irate landlords who didn't recognize her say, "Let's boo and throw things at Mrs. Straus."

In capsulizing the few years' work of the Action volunteers, Mrs. Straus urges women in other cities to organize. She feels the secret to correcting many community ills is to snoop around first. Find out the major problem and then "man the phones."

"Our work is based upon the principle of 'have you told anyone, have you complained?'"

Too many feel there is nowhere to turn for help because of bureaucratic red tape or the indifference of departments set up to help, the Action women learned.

Mrs. Straus may be living in Washington, D.C., soon where she plans to extend the Action program (also called People's Lobby). Already keeping the phones jangling in New York is Anne Hartwell. She heads a Medicaid information project. Like many of the volunteers she has four small children. At one post-college stage she "was steamed off about helping underdeveloped areas and felt she was going to save the world."

She finds her volunteer work organizing the information to help others understand and use Medicaid to their advantage is just as rewarding.

"I like it because I feel we can close a deal and see concrete results."

COMMUNITY ACTION starts with women on the telephone. Fifty volunteer women directed by Mrs. Anne Hartwell (seated) and Mrs. R. Peter Straus effected a stiff New York City housing law and help thousands benefit from Medicaid and Medicare.

TENS OF THOUSANDS of New Yorkers get guidance from volunteer homemakers shown here on Medicaid and Medicare. Part of a Call for Action project, the women answer phoned questions and direct callers to correct sources for help.

Discusses Industry Margins

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Rising costs and narrowing profit margins of the seed industry were discussed Thursday at the opening session of the 21st midyear convention of the Kansas Seed Dealers Association.

Nearly 150 seedmen from Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Missouri are registered for the convention, Fred C. Casterline Jr., Dodge City, association president, said.

Verlyn Richards, associate professor in the college of Commerce, Kansas State University, discussed cost accounting procedures and how to interpret financial statements.

John Sherill, Hutchinson, KSDA chairman of the processing committee presented results of a KSDA survey on costs of processing and treating seed.

James Enix, grain marketing specialist, Oklahoma State University, reported on a study of costs of custom cleaning and treating seed.

Today's activities were to include a talk by Tom Hruza, Allied Chemical Co., New York, on "This Business of Running a Business."

Frank Mitchell, manager of air education, Cessna Aircraft Co., was to speak on the effect of space age education on society and industry.

People In The News

LONDON (AP) — Lynda Bird Johnson has met Queen Elizabeth II over a cup of tea.

The occasion was an invitation-only garden party for 8,000 persons at Buckingham Palace Thursday.

While her American Secret Service guard stood by in morning coat and Ascot topper, the 23-year-old daughter of President Johnson chatted briefly with the queen and sipped a cup of tea.

Miss Johnson came with American Ambassador David Bruce and Mrs. Bruce, her hosts on a three-week private visit to London.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — Aviatrix Jerrie Mock has canceled her planned assault on more world flight records after being injured in an auto accident.

The Columbus housewife, who became the only woman to fly solo around the world in a single-engine plane in 1964, was listed in satisfactory condition in Fayette County Hospital today.

She suffered a broken rib, broken collar bone, cuts and possible internal injuries Thursday when her car went out of control and crashed on rain slick Interstate 71.

Mrs. Mock had planned to try for numerous speed and altitude records this fall in a new plane, but it will be "some time before she can do that now," her husband said.

COLCHESTER, England (AP) — Lance Corporal Michael Jeffries captured the world nonstop marching record early today when he completed 155 miles and kept walking.

However, he failed to eclipse the time — 40 hours — established in the previous record believed to have been set in the 1920's.

Jeffries, attached to the Royal Army Medical Corps, took 44 hours to cover the distance. After breaking the record he marched on another two miles back to camp.

First Income Tax

Although the U.S. personal income tax became law by congressional act in 1913, the first income tax was imposed in 1862 to meet Civil War expenditures. Congress allowed it to expire in 1872, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Job Hunt Leads To Loot Site

A ten-year-old boy searching for odd jobs discovered $200 worth of articles which his father reported stolen earlier the same day to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax.

Fairfax went to the house described by Ira DeMois, Jr., and found a television set, tool box, rod and reels, and a sausage grinder, all valued at about 200.25. A juvenile was taken into custody and turned over to Juvenile Officer James Newland.

Ira DeMois, Route 3, reported the theft to Fairfax Thursday. A little later, his son returned saying he had located the missing items.

The moon's diameter has been estimated at about 2,160 miles.

Mrs. Gary Lee Johnson

Cheri Rodick-Gary Johnson Exchange Vows on July 14

Overland Park Christian Church was the scene July 14 for the marriage of Miss Cheri Gayle Rodick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Rodick, Leawood, Kan., formerly of Sedalia., and Mr. Gary Lee Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Johnson, Overland Park, Kan. The Rev. Forrest Haggard officiated.

The bride chose a gown of organza with a lace-scalloped neckline and sleeves in Chantilly lace highlighting the bodice. Her gown was complimented with an organza modified A-line skirt. Her heirloom Bible was topped with white carnations.

A reception was held at the church following the ceremony, after which a champagne cocktail party was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The couple will reside in Manhattan, Kan., where they will both be juniors at Kansas State University, where the groom is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Reds Sell Goods To US Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is buying furniture from Communist Yugoslavia.

It has awarded a 1.58-million contract to Jugoexport of Belgrade for household furniture to equip U.S. Army housing in West Germany.

The Army did not try to buy the needed furniture anywhere else but in Yugoslavia, it said.

The contract was listed in a routine announcement of various purchases by the armed services.

An Army spokesman said there have been other procurement contracts awarded to Yugoslavia, but he did not have the details. He said he did not know whether the Army has done any buying in other Communist nations.

He said the furniture was bought in Yugoslavia in order to use "excess foreign currency owned by the U.S. Treasury Deparrtment."

In other words, the spokesman said, the aim was to spend America - owned money which could not be used outside of Yugoslavia.

Known as counterpart funds, such monies often are accumulated by the United States in nations to which U.S. government food and other supplies are sold. Purpose of payment in local currency—with a restriction against converting the money to dollars—is to avoid driving down the values of the local currencies.

By expending counterpart funds, the spokesman said, the Army could avoid spending dollars—which would contribute to the nation's unfavorable balance of payments and the drain of U.S. gold supplies.

Asked whether the contract had been put up for competitive bids to get the furniture at the lowest possible cost, the Army said there was price competition "by negotiation."

This meant procurement officers, in effect, shopped among various possible Yugoslav suppliers looking for the best deal.

The furniture—to be installed in quarters used by U.S. military men and their families—includes chairs, beds, bedsprings, bookcases, buffets chests of drawers, flat top desks, dressers and china cabinets.

'Handy Women' Build a House

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — You may think you're pretty handy around the house, but don't brag about it to Frances Haigler and Henrietta Pasquale. They're building one.

The two Montgomery women are building a two-bedroom, bath-and-a-half house all by themselves. Well, almost by themselves.

Mrs. Haigler and her sister-in-law hired a carpenter to do the sawing of the lumber and to give them some instructions. But carpenter B. H. Hutchinson says the women have done all the construction work.

"They are as good as any laborers I could find," he said.

They have the frame up now, and once the carpentry is finished, they'll become bricklayers, roofers and electricians. They plan to have the house completed by winter.

Impact On Bones Is Studied

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Scientists and engineers at Franklin Institute are pounding, bending and breaking bones with the aim of making the family car a safer vehicle.

Under a 44,000 contract from the U.S. Department of Transportation, the institute is testing cattle bones and joints—much like engineers have tested steel, concrete and other structural material for years.

The institute said it believes this is one of the first studies to apply structural engineering tests to bones.

"Bone, after all, is a structural material and we think we can help bridge the gap between the medical and engineering sciences and find some numerical values for bone structure," said Dr. Francis W. Cooke, head of the institute' metallurgy laboratory.

The data from the tests will be turned over to the Department of Transportation for studies on how to better guard legs and knees in auto collisions.

"We chose the knee to study," said Cooke, "because it's very complex, it's difficult to repair and failure to repair it properly results in serious impairment of function. There are a lot of jobs a man with a banged up knee can't do."

Besides the engineering studies, pathology studies on the samples will be made by Dr. Donald Negel, chief of orthopedics at Hahnemann Medical School and Hospital.

The bone samples will come from cattle freshly slaughtered at a packing house. They'll be subjected to sharp bends and pulls and impact loads. The scientists will first study bone samples, then joints, and finally joints surrounded by flesh and tissue.

"If we can learn what the reaction to impact loads will be, then we can learn how to predict it and ultimately prevent it," said Melvin Zisfein, associate director of the institute's research laboratories.

Radio Station Goes to Pieces

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The bottom fell out of radio station WITY's programming.

The newsroom broke away a bit Friday. Doors jammed, Walls split. Employes left, and the sun's rays pierced the "quiet-on the air" sign.

It happened when a vacated coal mine, directly underneath the studies, collapsed. The station was forced to terminate programming for more than an hour while inspectors assessed the damage.

"It could sink more," one inkspector said. "Why, it could drop four feet by tomorrow — or two years from now. Then, again, it could stay where it is."

One staff member later returned to the building, resumed programming and hoped that the building would stay put.

Special Hero Given Honors

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Military brass and police snapped to attention as the big C141 Starlifter sat down at Norton Air Force Base.

A one-eyed military hero from overseas was aboard the plane Friday, according to advance word, and he was to be given the full VIP treatment.

The hero was Nemo, the first American sentry dog sent to Vietnam, recently wounded in action with his handler.

The dog, en route to Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., will be retired with the Purple Heart and a unit citation, a military spokesman said.

Nemo alerted U.S. servicemen at the Tan Son Nhut base to Viet Cong intruders last December, the spokesman said.

Betty Canary

Show 'n' Tell Time for Hippies

By BETTY CANARY, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

I received a letter from a young man who says he left his university in order to live with the hippies and the diggers. He enclosed a poem he wrote and frankly, I don't know if it is any good or not. It seems to be in some sort of code. It goes without saying that there is no punctuation and he was very sparse with capital letters also. Naturally, it did not rhyme.

Actually, the only thing I could puzzle out of the entire page-long poem was that Joey was going from store to store trying to get tennis shoes with racing stripes painted on them and he couldn't find any. Maybe it wasn't a poem at all. Maybe it was a lament.

Anyway, Joey's letter helped me solve a problem. I have been trying to figure out what these kids were trying to prove and now I have it. They are trying to prove that young, educated adults can revert to the infancy level.

Joey's letter said that he and some friends had enjoyed a day at the beach.

"We sifted sand through our fingers, glorying in each minute, golden grain," he said, "and we had a frolic in the grass." There is more. "Holding balloons, we merrily chased each other in a game of tag, shared a meager lunch of bread and cheese and sang together as we beckoned to the waves of the Pacific to lap our feet. Then we rested and afterwards showed each other all the gnarled fragments of driftwood and the polished stones and bits of shells we had found on the beach today."

"Dear Betty Canary," he said, "I know that like all your generation, you do not understand this kind of freedom."

You bet your bird I do, Joey! Babs had it just last winter in kindergarten. Why, your day describes one of hers. They had sandbox, games, lunch, singing, rest period and show and tell time. And I am proud to tell you that Babs was promoted and will be in first grade soon. Oh, and Joey, I think you might be interested in knowing something she will learn at home once the fun of Santa and the Tooth Fairy is over. I call it freedom from fantasy.

THE MATURE PARENT

Youth's Actions Suggest He Sees No Worthy Goal

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Since flunking out of college last year my nephew has not tried to continue his education or get a job but hangs around the house all day. The situation is killing my sister. Her husband is a very successful businessman and picks on the boy all the time, trying to shame him into looking for work. Then the boy will lock himself in his room, refusing to come out even for meals. If my sister says anything, my brother-in-law turns on her and accuses her of coddling their son into this condition.

ANSWER: Let her ask her family doctor to recommend a psychiatric consultation for this boy.

Has your sister's home ever been a happy one? Or has it always been one of such secret resentment and discontent? If it has always been such a lonely place, it is not hard to understand your nephew's resistance to effort. Our children are stern moral judges. If we have devoted all our energies to maintaining the material comforts of a home that denies its members human closeness, our children may lose interest in earning the money required to establish homes of their own.

They will resist any effort lest it produce that "success" of which we are so proud. They will flunk out of colleges to express their contempt for the money the colleges cost. They may hang around the house all day doing nothing because doing something has produced no satisfying meaning for anyone.

Psychiatric treatment can help your nephew to separate his resistance to effort from his distrust of the results of his parents' effort.

I am aware that he may not get it. Seeking psychiatric help for a child is always a parent's confession of his own limitations. Your sister and brother-in-law may not be able to entertain the idea that their unhappiness may have made ambition worthless in their child's eyes. Afraid to face their own discontent, they'll run from the idea that he has noted it and has chosen to freeze his own ambitions lest they betray him into similar discontent. Yet to take this idea into themselves might prove a blessing to them.

In the middle age of us all, our failures begin to pile up on us. They pose the awful question: "Why?" We can wonder why our success gives us no joy. And in the child who is refusing to play our game of ambition and success recognize the stern moral judge who is asking, "With all your getting, you two, what have you really got?"

Bishop's Wife Seeks Divorce

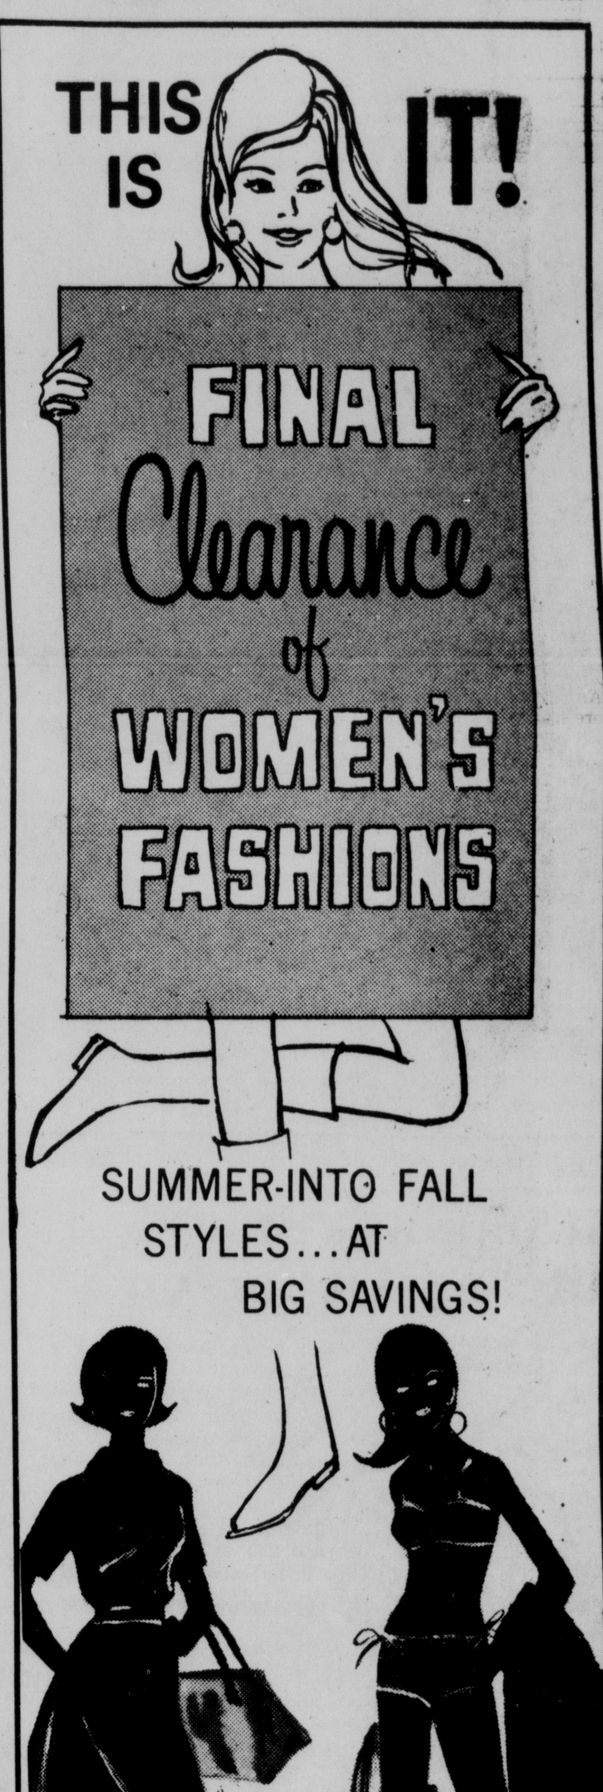

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The wife of the controversial church leader Bishop James A. Pike is divorcing him after 23 years of marriage.

Esther Pike filed the action Friday, charging mental cruelty. She reported a property settlement has been reached and a hearing is scheduled Tuesday before Superior Court Judge Byron Aronold.

Pike, 54, resigned in May 1966 as Episcopal bishop of California and now is theologian in residence at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at San Barbara, Calif.

In a joint statement the bishop and his wife said "outside factors beyond the control of either contributed for some time to our drifting apart." They said neither will seek to remarry and had agreed to say nothing beyond their signed statement.

The Pikes are parents of three children. They are Mrs. Catherine Patterson, 24, Constance, 18, and Christopher 17.

Philosophic View

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 30 years on the Supreme Court bench, Justice Hugo F. Black is still getting advice.

People write you letters, accusing you of not reading the Constitution," he told a visitor recently.

I even got one from a man who couldn't spell ordinary words."

Black leaned back in his black leather chair and smiled. At 81, approaching his Aug. 19 oath-taking anniversary, Black takes a philosophic view of criticism— and of suggestions that he's become more conservative.

I haven't changed a particle," he said.

When I came on the court my role was to interpret the Constitution as I thought it to be. I never thought it my province to make the Constitution fit the times."

And yet, to the casual observer, it would seem that Black's views have been changing.

Twice in the past term which ended in June he was with a bare five-man majority that cracked down hard on civil rights demonstrators who took their cause to the streets.

When the court threw out New York's eavesdropping law in June, Black dissented, saying: "Eavesdroppers are not merely useful, they are frequently a necessity" to combat crime.

He supported police use of anonymous informers, wrote of ruling that the governor of Georgia could be selected by the state legislature rather than in a runoff election, and voted against the finding that California's 4 Proposition 14, giving homeowners 'absolute discretion" in housing sales and rentals, was unconstitutional.

Does this represent a change of heart? A reading of Black's record gives evidence to the contrary.

Case in point: In 1942, his fifth year on the court, the same Justice Black subscribed to a statement by the late Justice Frank Murphy that "the right of free speech is not absolute at all times and under all circumstances."

Another: In 1949 Black said freedom of speech does not include "speech or writing used as an integral part of conduct in violation of a valid criminal statute."

Moreover: Through the years Black has taken a flexible stance in the search-and-seizure area, holding that there are times when the government may invade the privacy of a man's home.

Perhaps the answer, so far as civil rights is concerned, lies in the shift of the struggle from the courtroom to the streets. For, Black warned in 1965, justice and minority groups themselves are apt to suffer "when street mulbitudes are allowed to substitute their pressures for the less glamorous but more dependable and temperate processes of the law."

The story of Black is a story of seeming contradictions.

A onetime member of Robert E. Lee Klan No. 1 of Birmingham, Ala., he became a staunch defender of individual liberties, tolding to the position in the McCarthy era while many libertarians lapsed into silence.

Rural in upbringing—he has referred to himself as a "Clay County Hillbilly"—and with a sketchy education in the law, he became, the words of Yale Law Prof. Fred Rodell, the best-read man on the court.

A zealous investigator as a New Deal senator, he has stood as a rock against the excesses of government investigation and inquiry into beliefs.

In the years since President Franklin D. Roosevelt made the two-term Alabama senator his first appointment to the high court, Black has helped reshape American law, largely by bringing a literal interpretation of the Constitution to bear.

Three integral elements of Black's judicial philosophy are a dedication to logic and rationalism, a belief that the court should meet issues squarely and the seemingly simple but truly profound view that the Bill of Rights means what it says.

Be this liberalism or conservatism, it adds up to an active role for the court — and has made Black the target of criticism that constantly swirls about the rulings that emanate from the majestic, marble building.

Black appears to wear the criticism—and advancing age—well.

Michael A. Brown, 1500 South Beacon, has been placed on the dean's honor roll for the second semester at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

Michael is the son of Mrs. Naomi Brown.

Mrs. Virgil Griffin and son, Steve Madorin, recently returned from Vicksburg, Miss., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. David G. Wilhite, and infant son, David Giddens Wilhite, Jr., born June 21. Mrs. Wilhite is the former Sharon Ann Madorin, daughter of Mrs. Griffin. Mr. Wilhite is the son of Roy A. Wilhite, Sedalia.

Mrs. Griffin and her son toured Vicksburg National Military Park, Ante-Bellum mansions, and boarded the steamer Sprague to attend the stage production, "Gold in the Hills.". They also visited the United States Army Engineers waterways experiment station where David Wilhite is stationed.

Kansas has one of the highest rural population percentages in the United States; nearly half of all Kansans live on farms.

A Sister Of Meredith Dead

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The body of Miss Willie Lou Meredith, 22, sister of civil rights leader James Meredith, was found Friday hanging by a plastic clothes line in the basement of her apartment house.

The medical examiner's office termed the death a suicide.

Miss Meredith, who moved to Milwaukee last December, was employed as a clerk in a brewery.

An uncle, Houston Wilson, 55, told authorities she had been under medical treatment for depression.

Authorities said Miss Meredith left no note and had not

McMahon's Star Hitched To Carson

By ED MCMAHON
For Cynthia Lowry

NEW YORK (AP) — People always ask that question: "What is Johnny Carson like?"

Here goes:

There has to be something a little nuts about a guy who wants to free-fall from an airplane holding the title cards for the "Tonight Show" with a movie photographer free-falling beside him filming an opening for the show. We talked him out of it.

He has played football with the Jets—he suited up and scrimmaged with them. He pitched once to the leadoff man of the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium.

He scuba-dived off Freeport, Grand Bahama. He did some stage flying in a Peter Pan rig. He did a hand-over-hand peg climb some 20 feet up a wall.

He has hand-fed ice cream to a 300-pound jaguar. He has done a Twiggy immitation with a wrap-around boa, only this boa was a boa constrictor, still living and looking hungry to me. He even allowed an American bald eagle to perch on his shoulder.

He learned bravery early, at the age of 16, when he was doing a magic act as The Great Carsoni. Rumor says the act was done from the back of a moving truck.

He can still do magic. On the "Tonight Show" he recreated his old magic act and did a splendid job. He's a ventriloquist and handles cards like a Mississippi gambler. To this day he sits aound his office rolling quarters over his fingers.

He handles bow and arrow like a sharpshooter. He can wield a battle ax. He can flyries (is that the term?) mentalism and cards, he can look at three hands of a bridge game and in an instant tell you the cards of the fourth.

He's a star gazer, and I mean real heavenly bodies, and he uses a telescope. He has learned to fly an airplane.

What is he? He's a perfectionist. He's determined and intent about things. He's outlandish in his demands on himself.

If he had not been a success in television, he would have been a disc jockey doing a marathon seven days in a store window. He would have been a magician sawing not just one woman in half but a whole chorus line. He would have been that Mississippi gambler.

If he isn't a man for all seasons, he is a man of all interests, all hobbies. It's good because it keeps him off the streets. And it keeps him from thinking, much, about free-falling from airplanes.

Sneak Peek At '68s

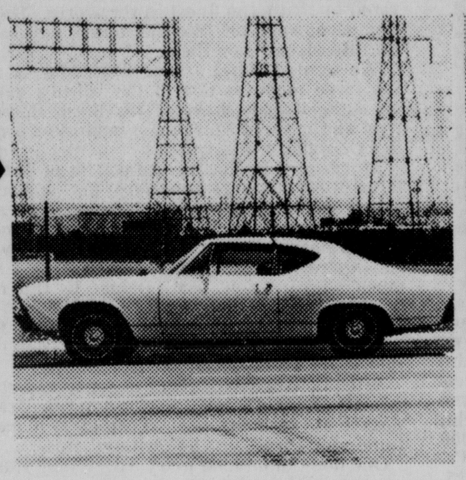

No less zealously than the Pentagon guards its secrets does the automobile industry hide its new creations until official unveiling in early fall. Models that venture beyond sanctioned walls are disguised with an abundance of tape, as shown on the '68 Chevelle at left, or hustled about in covered vans, such as the new Buick above. These pictures seen in the August issue of the magazine Motor Trend, show you can fool some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all nosy cameramen all of the time.

EVEN A SWAMP couldn't hide tests on the new Ford LTD, above, with a lower hood line and lights hidden behind the grille. Below is a new Ford Fairlane in a Mustang-type fastback.

Chevrolet's number two seller, the Chevelle, is completely reworked for '68. Very streamlined, the beltline has been lowered, width is up about two inches and windshield is raked further back.

IN THE LUXURY MARKET is the Lincoln Continental Mark III, whose biggest change appears to be a Rolls Royce-style grille. The new car will be the first to use Ford's "thin-wall" 462-cubic-inch engine with about 350 h.p. Price will be in the $8,500 class.

Reds Try Overthrow In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican authorities say they have squelched a $1,680-a-month plot financed by Red China to overthrow the government and set up a Communist regime.

Acting Atty. Gen. Julio Sanchez Vargas announced the arrest of 13 men Wednesday night, but an alleged leader of the conspiracy apparently was safe in China.

Eleven Mexicans, and two reputed guerrilla experts, a Venezuelan and Salvadorean, faced a court appearance today to answer charges of planning a campaign of sabotage, terrorism and insurrection in cities and across the Mexican countryside.

The government named former Mexican Communist party leader Javier Fuentes Gutierrez as one of the chief plotters but said he had flown to Red China June 30, using aforged passport and an assumed name, in company with another leftist leader, Federico Emery Valla.

Sanchez Vargas told a news conference the group planned to establish a guerrilla school at an isolated jungle spot in Chiapas state in southeast Mexico.

He said Peking was using the Mexican branch of the official New China News Agency to channel $1,680 a month into the conspiracy. Mexico does not maintain diplomatic relations with Red China.

After training, Sanchez Vargas said, the guerrillas were to join others in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

Sanchez Vargas said those arrested included Daniel Camejo Guanche, a veteran guerrilla leader from Venezuela, and Silvestre Enrique Marenco Martinez of El Salvador, who was said to have led guerrilla operations in Nicaragua.

He said the group was behind the dynamiting July 3 of an army personnel carrier in rural Guerrero state. The attack, apparently an effort to steal arms, failed, and soldiers riding in the vehicle escaped uninjured.

Named To FHA County Panel

Russell J. McFatrich, Route 1, Sedalia, a farmer, has been named to the Farmers Home Administration county committee, according to Kenneth F. Fine, the agency's county supervisor here. The appointment is for three years.

The county committee reviews applications for FHA loans, certifies eligibility of applicants and maximum amount of loan, and reviews borrower's progress. Composed of three members, the committee is set up on a rotation basis with one new member appointed each year. Mr. McFatrich succeeds George W. Anderson, Route 1, Smithton, who has served on the committee the past three years. Other committee members are Floyd O. Egbert, Green Ridge, and Harold L. Whittall, LaMonte.

Mockup Is Costly

SEATTLE, Wsh. (AP) — Like a great prehistoric, pointed-beak pterodactyl from some dim Mesozoic era, the block-long SST mockup sits in the cavernous Boeing Development Center, wings folded and spraddled on 18 huge rubber-tired feet.

Made of wood, metal and cloth at a cost of $2 million, the full-scale supersonic transport mockup will never know the element for which it was born: the hostile, cold, nearly airless fringe of space 13 miles above the earth.

But from it, it is hoped, will evolve the first generation of U.S. faster-than-sound commercial airliners, 306-foot giants in which 300 passengers will hurtle through the sky at 65,000 feet and 1,800 m.p.h. The planes, made of titanium, with a movable wing and needle nose, will weigh 337 tons.

Twenty-five miles north of here in another building, is a partial mockup of another gigantic new plane, the Boeing 747 superjet

Biggest of the subsonic jets at 340 tons and 231 feet, with a cabin wider than the average living room, it will carry up to 490 passengers and crews of 17 to 23 at 625 m.p.h.

Both will revolutionize air travel in the next decade, the SST providing speed nearly three times that of sound, the 747 far lower fares than now are possible. They will further shrink the world.

When a U.S. SST starts commercial service late in 1974—the slower, smaller British-French Concord and Russian TU144 supersonics will have been flying several years, according to present plans—the major cities of the world will be at a passenger's doorstep.

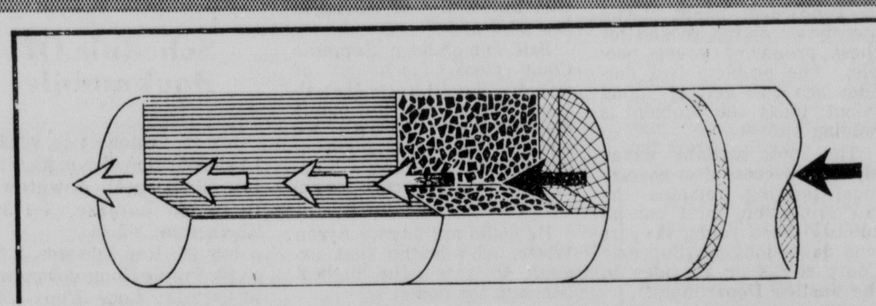

New York-London or New York-Paris in 2 hours, 40 minutes; San Francisco-Honolulu, 2 hours; Honolulu-Tokyo, 2:55; Tokyo-Hong Kong, 1:40; Honolulu-Sydney, 4:10; New York-San Juan, 1:30; San Juan-Rio de Janeiro, 2:30; Rio de Janeiro-Dakar, 2:25.

Of the SST, Arthur D. Lewis, senior vice president and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, said recently: "It will take its place as one of the miraculous new machines in the era of radical change. It will have a fundamental impact on the development of the world."

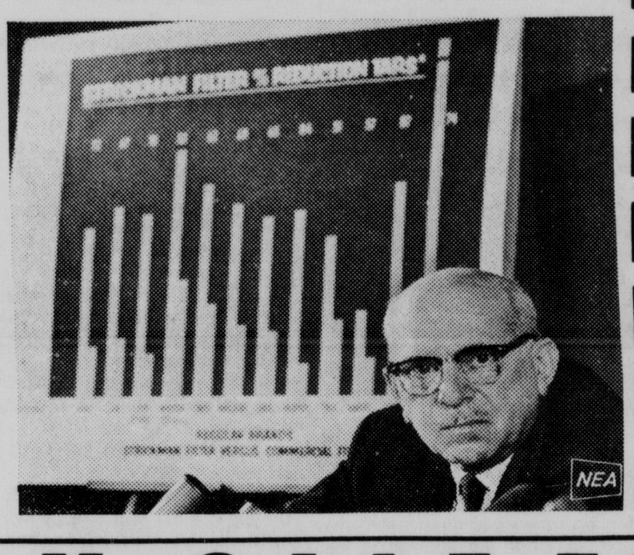

To build the SST and 747, Boeing is faced with what is among the greatest challenges in the world industrial history and is committed to one of the heaviest financial risks ever undertaken by a single company.

Turbulent Channel

Fog, gales and rough water are common in the English Channel. Whirlpools, cross currents and powerful tides are created in the shallow trough by the meeting of the Atlantic Ocean and North Sea.

Smoking Hopes are hinging on the new filter developed by Robert Strickman, New Jersey inventor. Above drawing illustrates passage of smoke through active polymeric substances, followed the usual cellulose filter. The result, says Strickman, with the aid of the chart behind him, is a drastic reduction of tars inhaled from various brands of cigarettes.

Washington Now Target of Raids

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Long hair or short, male or female, it isn't the thinking college student who looks at Washington's job opportunities and goes "blah!"

For certain professions—notably law—this is the place to come when schooling is over. Today Washington is perhaps the country's greatest post-degree training ground for lawyers, engineers, computer programmers, journalists and even doctors and chemists.

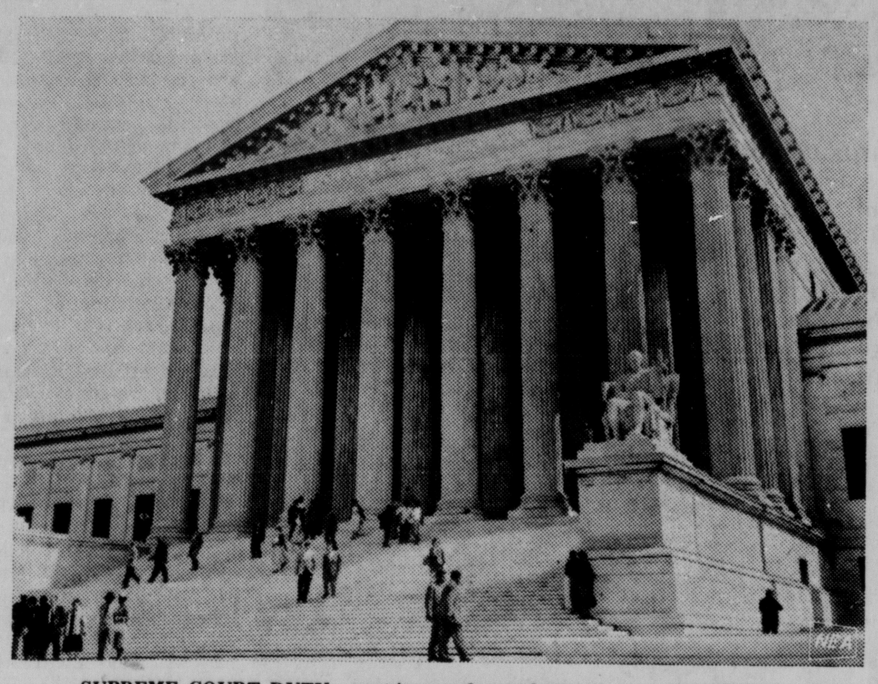

It wasn't that way 20 years ago when the top students were snapped up by private businesses and firms. But now the young are pouring off the campuses waving degrees and high averages and suddenly the federal government is competitive.

"It's more than just competitive," said a Harvard Law School grad and Supreme Court clerk. "I began here at about what I might start with at a private law firm. But you'd be amazed at the bargaining power one year in the court has given me. I turn down offers practically every week."

The point is, government and private industry rub elbows more and more. Private firms raid Washington annually in search of promising youth who have gained good government experience.

An aircraft company, for example, looks at a young engineer who has had two years with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration or the Navy Department as a prize and will pay for it.

Young lawyers come from all over the country—not just Washington's two first-rate law schools (Georgetown and George Washington U.) to work a couple of years for the Commerce Department and elsewhere and then leave for a private firm to specialize.

SUPREME COURT DUTY—opening wedge to better career opportunities.

Medical students interested in research and more training—not to mention good pay—head for slots in the vast medical complex which is the National Institute of Health.

Government journalism is wide open, especially for women. All the federal agencies daily put out reams of booklets, press releases and agency newspapers. Women have cornered this job market here because the reporter jobs on the nation's newspapers go first to men.

Women also are attracted by "Hill" jobs—working for congressmen in the mainstream of politics.

"I don't make much," said a pretty young secretary in Sen. Edward Brooke's (R-Mass.) office. "But the glamor and excitement is great. And look at the contacts I've made."

Randy Paar, summer secretary in the office of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.), agrees. "It's terribly exciting," she said. "I'd like to come back after college." She's the daughter of television's Jack Paar.

Of course the government is concerned about being merely a training ground for these promising young people. The problem two decades ago was getting young talent; today the problem is holding onto it.

The most striking example of success-after-government-training remains the law profession, most conspicuously those young lawyers who land jobs as Supreme Court clerks or as aides in the Justice Department.

"We're like baseball bonus babies," said one Supreme Court clerk who is knocking down $9,614 less than a year out of law school. The median income for all practicing lawyers in 1966 was $13,000. "During this experience, I've turned down offers for $15,000 because I know I can get more in another six months," the University of Michigan law grad added.

Said another Supreme Court clerk, fresh out of UCLA: "We all know that almost any job after this one is disappointing, though we don't like to admit it. I wonder whether anything will approach it again except for actually sitting as a justice."

He could ask Justice Byron White, who is the first ex-clerk to reach the highest bench in the nation.

Food for Americans

Superb Cooking, Russian Style

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

MONTREAL—The Moskva Restaurant in the Soviet Pavilion at Expo 67 is vast and rectangular with a black and white mural of Red Square dominating the far end. Among the provisions to be imported for the duration of the exposition, we were told, are six tons of caviar from the Caspian Sea and Sea of Azov, 30 tons of white-stemmed mushrooms and staggering amounts of sturgeon.

The tables are arranged in straight lines the length of the restaurant, not one even an inch out of place. Aphanasy Travkin, the director who speaks only Russian, German and Persian, sat with us together with his good-looking interpreter, Mrs. Nevraeva. She immediately informed us that we would enjoy our meal because Russians never use frozen foods the way all Americans do. Later, under insistent questioning, she admitted perhaps some Russians do, too.

Baluga caviar came first and with it Stolichnaya vodka, rated by many the finest in the world. The bread was a dark pumpernickel-type. We had blinis, too, because Mr. Travkin said Russians favor them.

We wanted Hazel grouse from Siberia next, described on the large menu as one of the world's delicacies. But, with an authoritarian shake of his head, Comrade Travkin said nyet and ordered Sturgeon a la Moskva for us. Also a rather dry Georgian white wine.

Sturgeon a la Moskva, a favorite of Muscovites, arrived—large fillets of sturgeon poached first and served covered with a rich sauce of sour cream, onions, eggs, spices, flaked crab meat and many white-stemmed mushrooms.

On a nearby platform, four musicians, two with balalaikas, and a strong-voiced young woman, thrust forth Russian folk music with insistent beat. Helped by this rhythmic push, we finished our sturgeon. Travkin and Mrs. Nevraeva, who had eaten nothing because "they were on duty," left us after ordering our dessert, Pastry Sputnik, described as a "delectable space age flight of fancy."

After the space age flight of fancy and strong coffee, came the bill. Expo 67 guide books describe prices at Restaurant Moskva as "fashionable." In capitalist money that meant our dinner for three cost $49 without tips.

One non-Communist note: At the long Russian bar near the entrance, Eddie Sullivan from Texas mixes excellent vodka drinks.

Asks For Cancellation Of Election

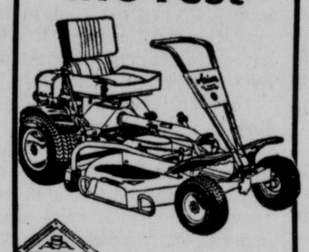

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A spokesman for some 400 machinists employed at the McDonnell Douglas Corp. said Thursday night he will ask the National Labor Relations Board to cancel an election scheduled for July 25.

The machinists voted Thursday to accept a proposal which would form the International Association of Machinists Local 837 into an autonomous district. The local now is organized under IAM District Nine.

The July 25 election was to be on the question of union decertification. As a separate district, the McDonnell machinists would negotiate and police their own contract and generally manage their own affairs.

Surprised Over USSR Blunders

By MAX HARRELSON . .

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Western diplomats are not as surprised by the Soviet Union's failure to win the diplomatic battle at the United Nations over the Middle East as by the string of blunders that caused the Russians to lose the skirmishes as well as the war itself.

No one can recall a time when the Kremlin got into so many untenable positions and suffered so many rebuffs in any similar two-month period.

This raises some questions whether Soviet diplomats suddenly lost their touch, and if so who was to blame for the step-by-step lapses.

There has been widespread speculation that Nikolai T. Fedorenko was the central figure and that he may be replaced, but it would be an oversimplification to pin the whole thing on Moscow's delegate to the U.N.

At least part of the trouble can be traced to top-level officials in Moscow. Some of it stemmed from faulty intelligence and some from diplomatic necessity which required the Soviet Union to take losing positions.

Most U.N. officials don't think Fedorenko initiated the idea of the emergency session of the General Assembly, overriding the long-held Soviet doctrine that peacekeeping matters should be handled by the Security Council.

Since 1950 the Soviet Union had insisted that the "uniting for peace" procedure for calling emergency assembly sessions was illegal, but that is the way the current session was convened. This procedure was first proposed by the United States to get around persistent Soviet vetoes in the Security Council

The decision on this seemed to be one for the highest level. This is true also on the personal participation of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in the assembly session.

That is one reason why the failure of the Soviet Union to get a clear-cut assembly demand for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab territory is a blow to the Russians and helps explain why they have kept Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in New York for more than four weeks trying to find a face-saving formula.

As the permanent representative of the Soviet Union at U.N. headquarters, Fedorenko was the man in the middle during most of the debate, and he was responsible for carrying out the Kremlin's decisions. It is generally agreed that his bitter attacks on Israel and his sniping at various individuals, including Secretary-General U Thant and three Security Council presidents, contributed to an unfavorable image presented by the Russians.

When the war broke out June 5, most council members were ready to vote an immediate cease-fire appeal. Fedorenko insisted that the appeal be linked with a demand for Israeli troops to pull back to their June 4 positions. The Soviet position apparently was based on intelligence reports which failed to show the extent of Egyptian military losses.

Eventually the Russians and the Arabs accepted the cease-fire resolutions without any call for troop withdrawals — but by that time Israeli troops had made further gains against Egypt and had inflicted heavy losses on Jordan and Syria as well.

The biggest single mistake made by the Russians, diplomats suggest, was to call the assembly into emergency session. They apparently believed they would win support for Soviet demands already rejected by the Security Council. These included condemnation of Israel and the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory. They first dropped their demand for condemnation and then agreed to a watered-down resolution on troop withdrawal, but they were unable to win the required two-thirds majority even then.

Arab sources express the belief that the Soviet Union was the biggest loser in the session because it staked Moscow's prestige on it. The Arabs, they say, came out at least as well off as they went in.

Speech Is Termed Slanguate

DETROIT (AP) — Bring your bod over tomorrow and we'll hop in my pig, catch the rays and have a boss time.

If that makes sense to you, then you're hip (which is an outdated word) to the latest in teen-age talk, which they call slanguate.

The bod is the body—yourself; the pig is a car that looks powerful but has a small engine; catching the rays is getting a suntan; and boss is the same as great.

A Detroit News survey of teen-age talk uncovered these gems, and more.

For example: "I'm weak means I'm shocked; bag it means forget it; freak means fine; jacked up means ruined; just can't cut it means just can't bear it.

If you're in your pig and you hang a Louie, you've just turned left, man. If you hang a Ralph, it's a right turn, hang a Sam is go straight and hang a Ulysses means make a U-turn.

If you understand it all, then you're groovy—which is what cool and neat used to mean.

All Vote 'Aye' For Cherry Tarts

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Cherry tarts are notoriously seductive. Poets love to write about them, artists to paint them, and there's a rumor that those famous tarts the Queen of Hearts once made were stacked with fresh red cherries.

FRESH CHERRY TARTS

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 cup sliced fresh sweet cherries
- ½ cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 8 baked tart shells
- 1 cup pitted fresh sweet cherries, cut in half
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon cornstarch
- Whipped cream for garnish

Soften gelatin in cold water and set aside. Combine ⅔-cup sugar, salt and eggs in saucepan or top part of double boiler. Stir in milk. Cook over very low heat or hot water (not boiling) until mixture coats metal spoon. Remove from heat. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in 1 cup sliced cherries, whipped cream and vanilla. Turn into baked tart shells. Chill until ready to serve. Mix remaining 1 cup cherries (halved) with the 2 tablespoons sugar. Let stand 1 hour. Drain juice into a measuring cup and add water to make ½-cup. Add cornstarch and mix until smooth. Cook until clear and slightly thick. Cool. Arrange cherries over tops of tarts; spoon over cherry glaze. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream if desired. 8 servings.

Watermelon Is for Pleasure

By GAYNOR MADDOX, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—All my family love watermelon as a cookout dessert. How much food value does it have?

A—Not much. Watermelon is about 92 per cent water with only very minor amounts of vitamins A and C. But it is relatively low in calories and certainly very high in hot weather eating enjoyment.

Q—Is it true that pink grapefruit are more nutritious than white grapefruit?

A—They are both very fine sources of vitamin C but, as a source of vitamin A, pink grapefruit is out in front.

Eggplant Balls--- Vegetable Treat

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Wonderful color combination—purple eggplant and ripe red tomatoes—and that's for eating all on a summer's day. So treat your family to this unusual and delicious vegetable dish.

When selecting an eggplant, heft it. It should be firm, and heavy in relation to size, with a uniform dark, rich purple color, and free from scars or cuts. Choose pear-shaped eggplants from three to six inches in diameter when possible. Store it in the refrigerator. If you must keep it, slip it into a film bag. This will prevent wilting for several days.

EGGPLANT BALLS

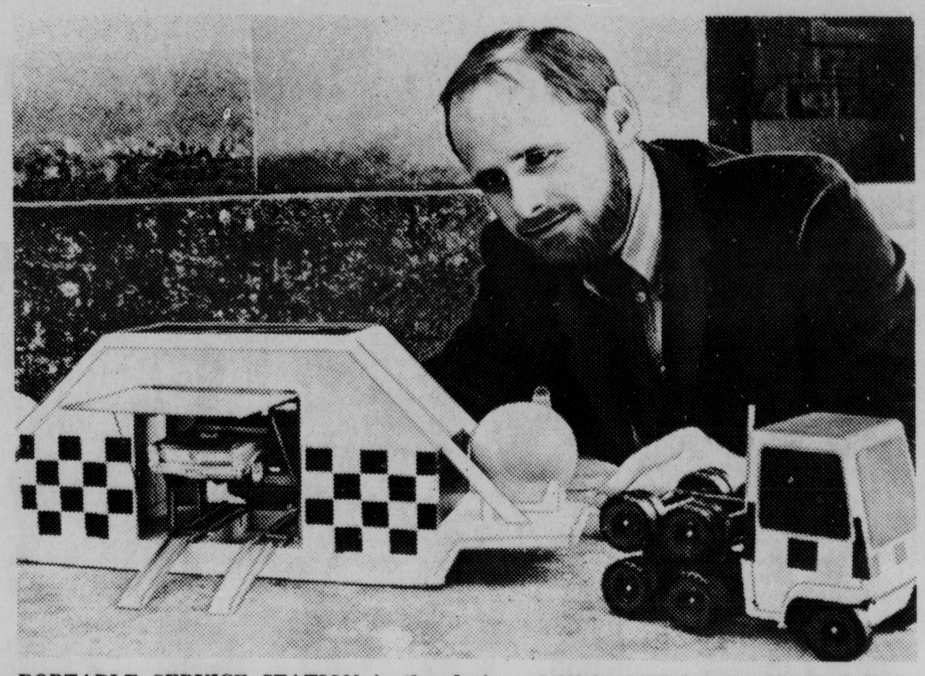

- 1 pound eggplant
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup finely chopped fresh onion
- ¾ cup finely chopped fresh green pepper
- 1½ cups dry bread crumbs
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon grated sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 egg, beaten
- Tomato Sauce, optional

Peel and dice eggplant. Place in saucepan and fill with ½-inch boiling water and salt. Cover and cook 15 minutes or until tender. Drain off water and discard. Cool eggplant and mix with onion, green pepper, ½-cup of bread crumbs, one egg, cheese, salt, paprika and pepper. Cool until thoroughly chilled (2 to 3 hours or overnight). Drop a heaping teaspoonful at a time into flour and roll to coat completely. Using two forks, dip into beaten egg and into remaining fine bread crumbs, being careful to keep as round as possible. Fry in hot salad oil until browned. Drain on brown paper. Serve with tomato sauce, if desired. 18—1½ inch balls.

FRESH TOMATO SAUCE

- ½ cup sliced onion
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup water
- 1 teaspoon cider vinegar
- 1 small bay leaf
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon whole black pepper
- 2 cups diced peeled fresh tomatoes
- ¼ teaspoon ground thyme
- Dash cayenne

Saute onions until lightly browned in butter or margarine. Stir in flour and cook until browned roux is obtained, stirring constantly. Add water, vinegar, bay leaf, salt, pepper and tomatoes. Simmer 10 minutes. Add thyme and cayenne 5 minutes before cooking time is up. Put through sieve, if desired. Serve over eggplant balls.

PORTABLE SERVICE STATION is the design of Michael Nielsen, a Stanford University design student, who sees it as a solution for servicing cars for customers while they're at the office. The answer, he says, is a service station on wheels, towed to a parking lot so cars can be ready for their owners at the end of the day.

Hand Kissing Brings Assorted Reactions

By KELLY SMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ambassador kisses a woman's hand.

One woman, surprised, dumps champagne down her front at the White House. A congressman's wife claims she's bitten. One man gets glove in his mouth. A lady says a stone from her ring is missing.

Chivalry has its drawbacks.

Hand kissing, a custom from feudal Europe, is common on Washington social circuit. Those accustomed to the practice, such as Mrs. Dean Rusk, wife of the secretary of state, say they'd rather have their hand kissed than shaken.

At cocktails and dinner, any woman can expect to have her hand bussed. But alas the lady is not forewarned.

Envoys, used to kissing a woman's hand in greeting at home, practice it here. But they say American women are difficult.

There's the Peruvian ambassador, dapper, handsome Celso Pastor who kisses with a swift, quick peck. Gracious and debonair, he nonetheless frightens women who don't see him coming.

There's the French ambassador, Charles Lucet, who cups each woman's hand in both of his as if it's a soft, breakable object. But if a lady doesn't relax she's inclined to punch him in the nose and jolt his glasses.

There's the dean of the diplomatic corps, Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa of Nicaragua, who has spent years kissing the hands of president's wives, premier's wives and American wives.

Often asked for advice, Sevilla-Sacasa has formed a sure-fire approach.

He advises a man not to bow to the American, but to raise her hand and look straight into her eyes "to see if she makes a face. If she does, then you will know not to do it again."

Austrian Ambassador Dr. Ernest Lemberger says American women tend to back into walls, people, or anything else in the path of retreat.

This sort of reaction, naturally enough, discourages any man.

There's one diplomat who dealt so often with what he calls the baseball fist, he only nods now. And there's an Iron Curtain minister with a goatee who frequently gets his whiskers caught in jewelry.

The protocol office at the State Department has to answer the inevitable questions from new ambassadors? Who does one kiss? When? How? Are the American women really mad? Who makes the first move, man or woman?

George Abell, assistant to the chief of protocol, says, "I can tell if a woman is European or American because the former instinctively raises her hand."

The other, he says, sits on it.

Traditionally, a man kissed only a married woman's hand. It was considered too risque for a single girl. That, too, has changed in Washington. An ambassador kisses any woman's hand.

"By the time you figured out whether a woman in a reception line was married," says an old hand, "you would have missed the cocktail hour."

Archaeology Work Near Sedalia

Students from the Hamilton School at the Lyman Research Center for Archaeology worked last week at an Archaic Indian site about 10 miles west of Sedalia, according to Robert T. Bray, director of the school.

The site is one of several which is located in the area.

Students have also been working on the gun shop location of John Sites, a widely known gunsmith of the Santa Fe Trail period. The site is located near Arow Rock.

Bray said that an open house at the Lyman Center and Hamilton School has been set for Sunday, Aug. 30. Visitors will be shown the work which the students have been doing.

Secretarial Alert On Male 'Fridays'

DETROIT (AP) — Robinson Crusoe had his "Man Friday," so what's all the fuss about?

The fuss may come from your Girl Friday who is concerned over a male invasion of a feminine stronghold—the National Secretaries Association.

"Now we'll just have to wait and see," says Lenore S. Forti, newly elected president of the 25,000-member international association.

Mrs. Forti, who lives in suburban St. Clair Shores, won the top post in the 25-year-old association at the NSA's convention in Toronto last week.

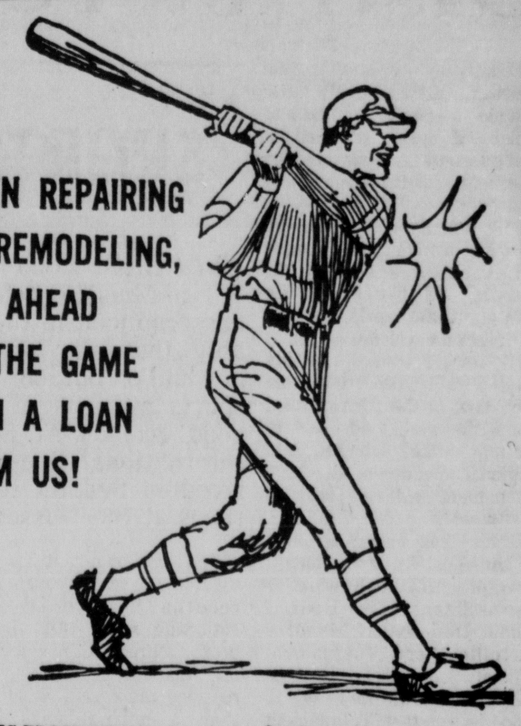

"Male secretaries are interested in our fine educational program and have been trying to join us for years," she says. "Nine men have passed our Certified Professional Secretary exam, but they couldn't join the association."

In their fight for equality, the men organized the Male Secretaries of America, headquartered in New York and with about 1,000 members. But naturally they would like to join the girls.

Mrs. Forti says the men have even implied that they would bring action against her organization for discrimination, but the girls' attorneys assured them all was legal.

What really rocked the ladies back on their high heels was the accusation that they "wanted equal rights but didn't want to give them."

The issue was resolved at the convention in a bylaw amendment calling for "deleting all references to woman, women, her and she."

Hula Hoop Is Staging A Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — The hula hoop, which sent the nation reeling nine summers ago, is back—this time with sound to match the gyrations.

"It has been fantastic," said a toy salesman in New York. "It's a whole new generation of kids. They never have seen them before."

The Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., donated hundreds of new toys for a play-in in Central Park this summer, and it turned into a hoop-in.

Children passed up war toys—and even a swimming pool—to swish the yellow and red plastic hoops around-around their waists, around their hips, around their necks.

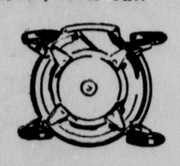

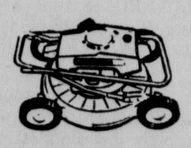

The new hoops have small particles like BB's rattling around inside, giving them a shoop-shoop sound when the backfield is in motion.

They are made by a California toy company, Wham-O Manufacturing Co. of San Gabriel, which hopes to sell five million this year.

The last time around, dozens of companies leaped in to make them, swamping the country with hoops, cutting prices, and leaving stores with thousands of hoops to use as backyard fences.

It tested the new shoop-shoop hoops at a chain of department stores in Miami, and sold 14,000 in the first two months.

SPORTS SCRAPS

BY DKS

PROBABLY no better people than those in Missouri realize what the rainy season has produced in the Midwest, but what probably they do not know is what effect it has had on outdoor sports. It has cost outdoor sports millions of dollars, according to our good friend, Al Sweeney, president of the International Speedways, Inc., who has arrived in Sedalia to start promotion for auto races at the Missouri State Fair.

Believe it or not, it has been the rainiest season ever since records have been kept nationally since 1872. It has broken all records. Sweney tells me that some areas have received more rain in 30 days than a normal year. One example is Nebraska where it rained every day for 24 straight days and measured an inch a day.

Baseball is down nationally in attendance, down what is estimated at 350,000 due primarily to weather. Race tracks which start early in the spring for an example had several tracks closed down in New York and Maryland because of snow, later other tracks lost their meets when rivers overflowed and washed them out.

Auto racing is down, although week before last the International Motor Car Association experienced three good events up north which were scanctioned for the National Speedways. In Iowa which has experienced not only rain but cool to cold weather, lost several scheduled events, but the three brought them out of the "hole."

A "still date" at Des Moines, on July 9th, was the surprise for Sweeney when the event although with threatening skies drew 20,321 paid customers, the second largest crowd in history there, for a "still date." Not only that according to Sweeney, the weather man also predicted a 40-per cent chance of rain that day.

"The economy is good, people are seeking relaxation and sports is what they seek, when weather permits," Sweeney said.

"Speaking of auto racing, it was up 390,000 over any recorded year before 1966, and should break another record this year," continued Sweeney, "and I predict this due to the many many new speedways that are being built throughout the country. If weather permits the remainder of the season attendance should pass last years national record of 39,000,000 and should break the 40-million mark by mid-September."

Sweeney who watches the sports magazines, papers and such keeps a finger on all the outdoor sports activities. He even named new race tracks being built in Missouri this year, as well as mentioning some which reopened this year after several seasons lay-off.

"Give us good weather this August fair week, 19th through the 27th, and I venture to say Wilbert C. Askew, the fair Secretary, will be the happiest man in Missouri with record breaking attendance," Sweeney concluded.

THE Khoury League in Sedalia is getting on shaky ground if the turmoil which has been reported to me does not quiet down. Seems the rules and regulations have been by-passed or something and has become such one member of the local Board of Directors has given up and resigned. The Board consists of nine good men, now, it did have ten and if things do not get back in line the Board may lose others.

Who will suffer from such acts and should the "rug" be jerked out from under Sedalia by the National organization, I can only say several hundred girls and boys. If it is "jerked" it will also mean the loss of the soccer program as well as the girl's softball program.

The Board is elected by the team managers and others interested in the program and they are given the power to set up the rules and regulations as prescribed by the National Khoury organization. If the program is to continue to succeed, those rules must be followed by all who are in the program. Not only that but they must also abide by the rules and regulations set forth by the Central Missouri Circuit Council, who set up their rules and regulations by the "book." The Council has 12 members with Paul Klover, director, who was appointed by the Khoury organizations whose national headquarters are in St. Louis.

Just some friendly advice, abide by the Sedalia Khoury League Board of Directors and the Central Missouri Circuit Council, and there'll be no trouble. We certainly do not want to see anything to happen to this wonderful program. It's going good and should continue so.

MOST generally I do not pay any attention to an unsigned letter, but the other day I received one, which I am going to pass on. It deserves to printed, as it apparently was written by one of the Little League mothers.

"As you know the Little League season is about to close. I would like to point out a fact that isn't much known, but a fact to be proud of.

"There is a team ("C" League) Chaplin Sales, Paul Waldrop is manager, Neil Kirchner, coach and Bernie Guenther, assistant coach, who deserve honorable mention for one fact. They have two handicapped boys on this team. One boy has a deformed arm, the other boy is totally deaf. I just want to point out that these children can get out and participate with other children in sports and that more boys should be brought out that are or have a handicap.

"I am very proud of the (all) boys on this team because they have learned how to talk and be understood as well as understand the boy who is deaf. Also they have learned these children aren't freaks. Just because the little boy with the deformed arm has a little trouble catching because he has to take his glove off the hand he has to throw with, he can still swing a mean bat.

"But I do think something should be said for this team, manager and coaches for the work and sportsmanship, and to show that these boys (and children) can be taught.

"Thank you,

"Mother of a Little Leaguer.

"P.S. Congratulations to the managers and coaches are due to all teams for their time."

I imagine there are numerous other incidents in Little League which could be brought out, but I could not help but run this letter to let all Sedalia know what fine work these volunteer men are doing in these coaching and manager jobs. Incidentally there are a great many mothers who are doing I would say just as much to see the program is a success.

Thrillcade Set For Marshall

The famous Swenson Thrillcade, which acknowledges no peer in its unique field of thrill entertainment, will have its cavalcade of daredevils, clowns and circus acts at the Sportsman Speedway east of Marshall, Monday night. The thrills will begin at 8:15 p.m.

This 1967 is the 16th international tour for the Thrillcade, which has become a fixture at many fairs and arenas throughout the midwest, southwest, along the eastern seaboard and Canada, because of its tremendous spectator appeal.

Thrillcade offers much competition especially the Gold Cup point award of $10,000 at the end of the season for those who have gained the most points throughout the season. Points are awarded for performances to the daredevils gambling with their lives in efforts to wreck old cars by various methods.

Back in full force are the Thrillcadettes, a group of women demonstrating, they too, daredevils are not all men.

The Thrillcades is owned and directed by Aut Swenson who is well known in Sedalia for his appearances as an auto racing official as well as his thrill shows shown at the Missouri State Fair in years past.

BR Title Goes To Jeff. City

The Sedalia Babe Ruth All-Stars were beaten twice in the District Tournament at Jefferson City, by Jefferson City which took the final game for the Championship. The local team won their first two rounds before meeting the Jefferson City aggregation the first time to lose by a well played game 0-2. Dropping to the loser bracket the Sedalians met Clinton which they won 3-2 to again advance to the finals. A most exciting contest developed in the Championship when the Capital City team took a one-run lead in the third inning, to be tied in the fifth, and both scored single runs in the eighth, to be deadlocked at the end of the ninth.

A six-run tenth inning rally at the top by Jefferson City broke the ice and the Sedalians were able to only pick up four in the bottom half, and lost the honors to win to Jefferson City 8 to 4.

In the first meeting with Jefferson City, Terry Hudson for the Sedalians and Danny Hart for Jefferson City provided a pitchers battle, both allowed only three hits. Steve Eck for Sedalia and Jim Palmer of Clinton also worked a good game, both allowed five hits, but Sedalia won 3-2.

Sedalia Protests BJ Game

The Sedalia Lions of the Ban Johnson league ran in to a problem at Marshall this past week, when they lost the game to Marshall after an umpire thumbed Manager Jim "Salty" Schumaker from the game, then cleaned the bench, then ordered the game halted and forfeited. Manager Schumaker immediately notified the officials he was protesting the umpires decision.

It happened this way—In the bottom of the seventh inning Manager "Salty" Schumaker went out to the mound to talk to pitcher Jim Johnson. After the conference he started back to the dugout, but turned and said something to the Marshall Manager, at this point for no reason that could be seen from the stands the base umpire thumbed him out of the game.

"Salty" had his back to the umpire and had not spoken to him during his brief trip to the mound. On protesting this call the umpire then thumbed the entire bench from the playing field. This caused a rhubarb and the umpire then stopped the game and ruled that Marshall had won by a forfeit. Needless to say there were some unhappy players on the Lions side of the field. After a great deal of argument the decision stood and the Lions left the playing field for their sad return home.

When the game was terminated Marshall was at bat with score 8 to 7 in favor of the Lions, but with two men on base and no outs. Ordinarily after a manager and his bench are ejected the remaining players finish the game under the handicap of having no substitutes. This is the basis of the formal protest by the Lions management.

The Sedalians at this point had a 12-2 record and one-game edge on the lead in the league. If the protest is upheld then the game will be resumed at the point it was stopped and the Lions could still win the game, they having an 8-7 lead at the time it was called. If the protest is refused the Lions have no further recourse.

Marshall and the Lions have a "rained out" game to be played in Sedalia on Aug. 7 with starting time 8 p.m.

Friday night the Lions lost an exhibition game to the Jefferson City Red Birds at Liberty Park 5-0. Both these temas will participate in the State Non-Pro tournament opening here, Tuesday night.

National League Results

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manny Mota, Roberto Clemente and Bill Mazeroski each crashed a two-run homer Saturday and led Pittsburgh to a 15-2 rout of the Houston Astros.

The free-swinging Pirates backed Woody Fryman's five-hit pitching with an 18-hit attack off five Houston pitchers, including starter and loser Bo Belinsky, who didn't last the first inning.

Jim Pagliaroni, who sparked a five-run Pirates first inning with a two-run single, Clemente and Mota each had three hits.

Fryman, making his first start since June 26, notched his first victory in four decisions. After Julio Gotay nicked Fryman for a lead off single in the first, the big left-hander retired 16 batters in a row before Dan Schneider singled in the sixth.

The Pirates picked up two runs in the second, one of them unearned, then relied on the home run ball. Mota's inside-the-park drive in the seventh accounted for two, while Clemente and Mazeroski highlighted the six-run eighth with their homers.

Joe Morgan had a two-run homer for Houston in the eighth.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Tito Francona's run-scoring single in the 13th inning lifted the surging Atlanta Braves past St. Louis 5-4 Saturday, dropping the Cardinals into a tie with Chicago for the National League lead.

The Cardinals fifth loss in their last seven games left them in a flat-footed deadlock with the Cubs, who edged San Francisco 6-5.

The Braves, who have won three in a row and 11 of their last 15, blew a 4-1 lead in the ninth before pushing over the tie-breaking run in the 13th against reliever Jack Lamabe, the sixth St. Louis pitcher.

Orlando Martinez started the rally with a one-out single and winning pitcher Cecil Upshaw sacrificed before Francona bounced a single up the middle, scoring Martinez.

Tim McCarver drove in two runs with a two-out single in the ninth off Dick Kelley, the fourth of five Atlanta pitchers in the inning, to cap a three-run rally and lift the Cardinals into a 4-4 deadlock.

American League Results

CLEVELAND (AP) — Solo homers by Mike Andrews and Carl Yastrzemski and Lee Stange's three-hit pitching led the Boston Red Sox to their eighth straight victory, a 4-0 decision over Cleveland Saturday.

Andrews led off the game by slamming loser Steve Hargan's second pitch over the left field fence for his fifth homer of the season.

The Sox added another run in the first when George Scott singled home Tony Conigliaro who had reached on a forceout and advanced on a throwing error.

In the third inning, Andrews singled to left and when Leon Wagner bobbled the ball he went to second. Andrews scored on Joe Foy's single.

Yastrzemski's homer in the eighth was his 23rd of the season.

Stange (6-6) gave up singles to Wagner in the second, Hargan in the third and Vic Davalillo in the sixth. He struck out four and walked none.

DETROIT (AP) — Norm Cash clubbed a grand slam homer in the eighth inning for his fourth hit in the game, completing a 12-hit Detroit attack that buried New York 11-4 Saturday and extended the Yankees' losing streak to six games.

Cash, who connected off reliever Joe Verbanic with the bases loaded in the eighth, drove in five runs in all and Willie Horton smashed a three-run homer as the Tigers rolled to their third straight victory.

Earl Wilson, who pitched six innings in muggy, 90-degree heat, was credited with his 12th victory in 20 decisions, with relief help from rookie Mike Marshall.

Mickey Mantle and Steve Whitaker accounted for two of the Yankees' runs with homers. Whitaker and Manager Ralph Houk were ejected from the game in the eighth for arguing over a strike call.

(NEA Telephoto)

TIRED of losing money, Boston Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey has demanded a new ball park from the city within five years or he'll move the team, he says. Yawkey said the club has lost $3 million over the past five years.

CHICAGO (AP) — Randy Hundley lashed a tie-breaking bases-loaded single in the ninth inning Saturday, giving the Chicago Cubs a 6-5 comeback victory over San Francisco and moving them into a tie for first place in the National League.

The Cubs' seventh triumph in eight games pulled them even with St. Louis, which lost to Atlanta 5-4 in 13 innings.

'B' Event Won By Schultz

Sedalia's Steve Schultz, continues to win in the "B" class events of modified car racing, his latest win the Fast Heat at Woody's Speedway near California. Don Cooper, also of Sedalia wheeled the track in the Fast "A" class heat to become a winner, Friday night.

The Comstock Chevy driven by a new driver, Roy Hibbard, of Marshall took the number one spot over a field of 15 Central Missouri racing cars. This race gave the crowd a real finishing touch of the evenings program. Dave Ferguson, Odessa, finished second, Eddie Evitt, Kansas City, third, Guy Martin of California, fourth, and Stan Borofshy, Kansas City was fifth in the "A" feature.

In the "A" feature, as pole setter Dave Ferguson and Jim Jenkins, came speeding down the back stretch, Ferguson getting down low and Jenkins went too high getting in the heavy dirt, went into trouble resulting being scratched for the remainder of the event. Ferguson took over the lead on the first lap and held for four when Roy Hibbard pushed into the lead on the fifth lap and was never to be passed in the following laps.

Jack Hunt of Windsor took the Class B feature followed by his fellow townsman, Shorty Ackers, with Doug Crank, Sedalia third, and Steve Schultz, fourth.

The "B" Trophy dash was won by "Flea" Atkins of Jefferson City while the "A" Trophy event went to Jack Leady, Carrollton driving a fuel injection Chevrolet.

In the Slow B Heat, Mike Sterling, Tipton was the winner, taking the event by hard driving to stave off a threat by Harold Schroeder, Blackburn. The Slow A Heat was won by a Jamestown boy, Junior Deitzel, driving the Schwench Special Chevy, and was pushed all the way by threats of Ken Harper, of Carrollton.

Fast B Heat saw Sedalia's Steveie Schultz beat out another Sedalian Doug Crank for the honors. Then in Class A another Sedalian was a winner in Donnie Cooper driving the Cole-Cooper Chevy, beating off threats by two Kansas City drivers, Stan Borofsky and Ed Lfoitt.

The time trails saw Jack Hunt spin the track in the Class B in :14.52, while leading the fast time for the "A" division was Dave Ferguson of Odessa burning the track in :13.97. Ferguson's time was challenged by Jim Jenkins driving the McCowns Chevy Special who had a :14.18. It was Jenkins first trip in the McCown car.

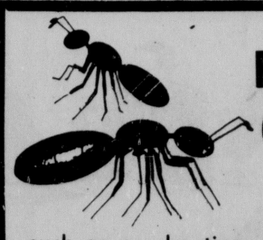

TIRED BUT HAPPY Patty Caretto of Whittier, Calif., catches her breath after another win in her specialty.

Crossroads Comment...

While viewing microfilms of copies of the Sedalia Democrat we noted this item in our column 25 years ago on the subject of lightning which may still be of interest to many of our new readers. Incidentally they have increased to 15,000, a lot more than we had over two decades ago.

Here's the item:

The best way to determine how close lightning comes is to start counting slowly, by the seconds, one-two-three-four-five and so on. If you count up to five before you hear thunder, then the lightning was one mile away; ten count, two miles, etc. If this formula gives anyone reassurance during heavenly bombardments, he or she is welcome to it. The explanation for the gap between lightning flash and thunder is that light travels 186.000 miles per second, while sound p l o d s along at 1,056 feet per second.

Running across this item was a coincidence because Keith Yount just delivered me a check for $119.49 to pay for lightning damage to our house. The bolt burned an aerial and guy wire in two, damaged the roof, jumped to a vent pipe, tore a hole in the metal ceiling below the bathroom, knocked out a lamp switch, the telephones, put the television out of business, blew out and melted two line fuses not to mention scaring the living daylights out of the two of us sitting in the front room waiting for the storm to subside.

Rereading the item above about determining how close lightning comes is rather amusing now in view of the fact that it says to start counting slowly after the flash until you hear the thunder. Thunder, there was no time to count that evening. One deafening crack sounded a million times louder than the snap of a bullwhack.

Hereafter we prefer not to collect insurance to pay for damage but rather to sit back and be able to count up to ten and hear the thunder two miles away, or better, five.

A fascinating sign seen in Sedalia is the one on the glass of the post office front door reading:

"No Dogs Allowed (Except Seeing-Eye Dogs.)"

Now a blind man can't read the sign so, we are asked, have the seeing-eye dogs been taught to read?

Ah, the marvels of this electronic age as we continue to be shocked by recurrent bugs in the production processes.Now we have discovered them in our brand new system of 20 telephones throughout the building. Anyone at any station can overhear the conversation on the four lines simply by lifting a receiver; and snooping, if they care to.

They tell us that's the way it is supposed to work. We wouldn't believe it, except it's a fact.

Must be an adaptation of the newspaper profession's anti-secrecy slogan: "The Public's Right to Know."

There's nothing secret about our conversations in the Democrat-Capital departments. Real socializing. So, everyone w a t c h your language when calling in or out.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

LBJ Chose Mediators With Care

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—The President acted with characteristic telephonic speed to assemble his mediation board to act on the railway controversy.

He phoned Fred Kappel, retired chairman of American Telephone and Telegraph, in Switzerland and reached George Meany in Miami. Meany immediately got on a train to return to Washington. The strike ended a few hours before train-time, which was fortunate because George likes to use trains, not planes, whenever possible.

What the President is hoping to do is get a wage agreement acceptable to both the shop-craft unions and the railways long before the two year deadline expires in 1969.

To this end he picked the mediation board carefully. Ex-senator Everett Saltonstall is a Republican moderate who had a record of being fair to labor. Ted Kheel of New York is one of the top labor mediatros in the nation.

Finally, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., knows labor problems better than any other member of Congress, having served as chairman of the war labor board, and as a Senator having mediated the end of four national strikes.

One man, however, blew his top at Morse's appointment–Roy Siemiller, head of the machinists. He was sore because Morse had led the Senate fight for the limited arbitration act which ended the strike, the first compulsory arbitration act which ended the strike, the first compulsory arbitration act in American history.

Other labor leaders did not share Siemiller's indignation. They have known Morse for 30 years, respect him as a man who calls the shots as he sees them for the best interest of the country.

There were a few labor leaders who preferred that Meany not serve on the board, but the majority felt that, since mediation-arbitration was now a law, the best thing to do was go along with the law and have Meany help carry it out as a representative for labor.

Note: The President's stamp of approval on Morse by making him chairman of the board probably means that Morse's Democratic opposition in Oregon will evaporate. Ex-Congressman Dan Duncan was making noises about running in the Democratic primary against Morse on a pro-Vietnam platform, hoping to get LBJ's support. LBJ's appointment of Morse for the top mediation job in the nation means the President is for Morse's reelection regardless of Vietnam.

—HIGH INTEREST HASSLE—

One of the factors contributing to ghetto window smashing–loan sharks and high interest rates–is due shortly for a hassle in Congress.

The argument will be between the Senate, which has just passed a truth-in-lending bill, and the House Banking and Currency Committee, which, despite the Senate vote of 92-0, doesn't consider this bill adequate.

Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana, Tex., Chairman of the committee, and Rep. Leonor Sullivan of St. Louis, long-time consumer protector, don't think the Senate bill will do much to protect small-time installment buyers and victims of high interest rates.

Here are a few of the flaws in the Senate bill, which they think the lending lobbies put across on the Senators:

"Full disclosure" requirements do not cover first mortgage real estate loans. Thus on a $20,000 home loan at 6 per cent interest a bank or loan comapny is required to state the interest is 6 per cent, but is not required to disclose numerous settlement charges—such as placement fees—sometimes running the interest rate up to 8 or 10 per cent.

Credit charges of 10 or less also are exempt from disclosure under the Senate bill. Thus if a slum dweller buys $300 worth of appliances and is charged a high interest rate on installment, this interest rate would have to be disclosed.

However, if the seller is smart, he can, by offering small discounts on purchases, fix it so the buyer will split up the $300 purchase into separate transactions, so the credit charge on each transaction is less than 10. In this case, disclosure of the interest rate is not mandatory under the Senate truth-in-lending bill.

The Senate bill also does not cover certain advertising gimmicks, as when a loan company operating in Washington, D. C., and Silver Spring, Md., recently sent out an enticing letter to prospective customers, offering a $2,500 home improvement loan at 6 per cent interest.

Investigation by Patman's committee revealed that the 6 per cent was a fraudulent come-on. Actually, a customer would have to pay a number of hidden charges, including life and disability insurance, also a credit check fee, bringing the interest up to 19 per cent—not 6 per cent.

Herbert L. Zoerning and Charles L. Hanley were appointed members of the Pettis county Rationing Board by the state administrator to succeed Judge J. E. Smith, resigned, and Lon E. Leslie, deceased.

FORTY YEARS AGO

About 400 persons, grocers and their families, gathered at Liberty Park to celebrate the first annual picnic to be given by the Pettis County Retail Merchants' Association. E. C. Thompson is president of the association.

—1927—

The Eta Beta Pi Sorority gave a picnic in honor of Mrs. C. E. Livingston of Muskogee, Okla., and Mrs. Rucker Triplett of Kansas City, who are former members, and Miss Laveta Hicks of Doniphan, Mo., who is a guest of Miss Orene Parker. A swimming party was enjoyed. Those attending were: Miss Hicks, Corda McMullin, Miss Parker, Katherine Urban, Hazel Lang, Elizabeth Lobaugh, Parmelia Fowler, Gretna Smith, Marian Smith, Opal Lamm, Mrs. Livingston, Mrs. C. O. Democrat Pickups

Children have vivid imaginations and do a lot of pretending in their play. Two little boys like to pretend they are mechanics and fix their cars and trucks. One day one of them was busy fixing one of his trucks when someone asked "What is the matter with it?"

"It's the carbuertor–" said the child and then remembering it was a truck not a car he was working on, added quickly: "I mean it's the truckburetor."H.L.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: Invasion of Privacy.- - -

It has become a fairly common practice for the Commissioner or Registrar of Motor Vehicles to sell the names of registrants, say to the highest bidder. It is apparently done in 19 states.

Some feel strongly that this is not the business of the government, that it invades the privacy of the individual for the government to sell his name to commercial interests who intend to solicit him for their own profit.

A citizen sued to enjoin the New York State Commissioner from selling the names of registrants in this fashion. A federal judge held that the commissioner's action was no invasion of privacy. He saw it as a legitimate revenue- raising activity of the state. But he did note that "This may not be the most inspired kind of governmnent function."

The State of New York, to make about $7,000 a year, is subjecting millions of motorists and their families to a mass onslaught of salesmanship geared to the automobile ownership market. It brings to their mailboxes, doorsteps, and telephones the potentiality for a vast increase in annoying solicitations.

This use of their names is totally unanticipated by registrants and we believe would be overwhelmingly opposed by them, were they given the opportunity to voice their opinion. As a matter of public policy, the state should have no part in providing such lists for commercial interests of any kind.

WASHINGTON (Ia.) JOURNAL: Horrible Thought.--A lady recently wrote to her local newspaper about a frightful warning to the effect that the Soviet Union could completely kill us off without firing a single shot.

All the Russians would have to do, she warned, would be to poison the glue on our trading stamps.

MONEY CLIPS

The Kennedy half-dollar

(Last of two related columns.)

Through March, 1967, some 703,241,000 Kennedy half-dollars were struck in U.S. mints. A total of 433,460,212 of these were the 90 per cent silver coins and the balance were of the clad type with a 40 per cent silver content. This is a record number of 50 cent pieces, since the most ever produced in any one year, except the war years, was 40 million.

But where are they?

Probably one of the hardest coins to find in circulation is a half-dollar of any kind. But there is a reason for it. It is a coin of some intrinsic value, even the clad type but, most of all, it contains the likeness of a man who was admired the world over. The latter seems to be the logical answer to the disappearance of the Kennedy coin.

As an investment it can not be recommended because of its high p r o d u c t i o n rate. Those who have accumulated rolls in the hopes that future demands will command a premium are suddenly finding that possibility remote. The top value of a 1964 Kennedy half-dollar is s o m e w h e r e around 80¢ cents and many of our coins attained that value the first year they were minted.

The silver market is fixed at $1.29 per ounce and hoarding coins of any denomination for the purpose of speculating in the silver market is a waste of time and could lead to federal action prohibiting the holding of coins containing any amount of silver.

The Treasury Department presently is holding 539 million ounces of silver—432 million ounces for backing silver certificates still in circulation and 107 million ounces considered as stock. The Silver Users Association which consumes about 75 per cent of the silver used in the United States, would like to have the government's stock directed its way, and if this happens it isn't likely that we ever again will have a coinage that is worth its weight.

One of the reasons the Treasury Department may have decided to issue the Kennedy half instead of another denomination is that it gives us a complete set of presidential portrait coins. Not that they had anything against Benjamin Franklin, but it does make a fine-looking set of coins in a collection.

You can stay abreast of the silver coin market in Jim Kelly's column in Coin World.

South's Squeeze Works Smoothly

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The late Edward Hymes was just about as good a dummy player as there ever has been. In addition Eddie was somewhat of a show-off when he could afford to be.

He sat South and let West's king of spades hold the first trick. This gave up the overtrick if hearts and diamonds both broke 3-3 but Eddie had bid six, not seven. He didn't think that West would continue the suit but stranger things have happened and a spade continuation would give him 12 tricks in high cards.

West didn't fall into that trap. He shifted to the jack of diamonds. Eddie won with dummy's king and led the ace of diamonds. West discarded a spade. Eddie thought awhile and claimed the balance of the tricks. He said, "Perfect squeeze, if I need it."

East and West both protested so Eddie showed his hand and played it out as fast as he could get his opponents to play.

He ran off four club tricks, discarding his six of hearts. Each opponent had no trouble discarding on that trick. West threw a spade; East a diamond.

Then Eddie led to his queen of diamonds. West was down to queen-ten of spades and four hearts but he discarded a heart as nonchalantly as he could considering that it was just as if Eddie had pulled his last tooth.

Eddie remarked to West, "I don't know if you have already been squeezed or not but you can't have more than three hearts, come what may. I am now going to lead my ace of spades. If East started with one spade, four hearts; five diamonds and three clubs this will force him to jettison his own heart stopper."

"O.K.," said West. "We concede."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Alaska, the 49th state, is a land of superlatives. According to The World Almanac, it reaches farther north and west than any other state. Life

Life is a fuzzy sort of thing,
One never knows what a day will bring;
Dreams are dreamed and plans are made,
Sometimes we watch them grow and fade,
Other times life's like a busy day in spring
When the first flowers bloom and the first birds sing.
Every tomorrow glows brightly today
Yesterdays treasures stowed carefully away,
Joys unexpected, places to go,
Interesting people we're happy to know;
Other days filled with sorrow, disappointment, distress,
Troubles around us so tightly press,
Clouds suddenly gather to darken the day,
That is the time we sincerely pray;
Some people's lives look smooth the way through
And yet, down deep, they have their troubles, too,
Maybe too much of world's goods they possess
Yet when added all up they really have less,
Less to enjoy for they never have learned
That the fullness of life must always be earned;
Yes, life is fuzzy, we're never quite certain
What lies beyond each bright morning curtain,
Never quite sure as the hours pass
Are our rainbows of raindrops or prisms of glass,
What is each moment—fancy or real?
Sometimes life's only fancy, we feel.

Letters to Editor

DONALD L. SMITH (608 North Stewart) — I want to inform citizens and taxpayers what is going on in regard to the trash hauling and sanitation in our town.

The City Council proposes to close the city dump (which was bought with tax money) to the use of the trash haulers and any citizens wishing to dispose of trash which accumulates.

There has been no consideration of how the home owners or merchants in Sedalia will dispose of their accumulated paper, tree limbs, and rubbish of any sort other than garbage which you pay for now and let me say, an increase is being considered even on that.

About 15 or 20 truck haulers are now hauling and dumping in the land fill. If this is abolished, these families, dependent on their trucks for a livlihood, will be out of work and thousands of people will then wonder how to dispose of all the trash. Rats mosquitos and disease, plus fire hazards will be the result.

We ask the council to give consideration to these aspects of the situation. If the City hauls all the trash it could cost as much as $5.00 a month or more for the merchants. Then this will have to reflect in the prices of merchandise sold.

I urge taxpayers to contact their councilman and express their feelings about this before it is too late.

JOHN C. RYAN (Senator, 28th District) — I want to thank you for the courtesy shown me for the personal tour of the new Sedalia Democrat-Capital building. I know that you and your entire organization are proud of your new facilities.

I hope all citizens of Sedalia and Pettis county will have the opportunity to tour your plant and see first hand the progress being made in our community. They might be inspired to help promote other new projects in the community, such as a new city hall, and other public improvements.

H. C. (Jack) ROGERS (1408 South Moniteau) — I am very much at a loss to understand the lack of congratulatory letters with regard to your new plant.

Personally I think that the City of Sedalia and the townspeople should certainly appreciate what this means to our community.

After the publishers have seen fit to invest nearly One Million dollars installing this new plant, this indicates to me they have a wonderful faith in the growth of this city. This plant is built 25 years ahead of the times and requirements now. The investors of this plant surely see far enough ahead for the City of Sedalia to determine what we are going to have here in the next 25 years.

I think we owe the investors a lot of appreciation for setting up this new plant here.

I understand there have been some complaints on several accounts about the new form of printing and issuing the paper. Sure they have lots of bugs to iron out and as this is all new to the employees let us give them a chance to get the paper going to the satisfaction of all concerned.

HAROLD G. HUTCHESON (Publisher, Lincoln New Era) — I like what you are doing to the Democrat-Capital.

THOMAS G. MONROE (General Manager, Collinsville, Ill., Herald) — Thanks for the tour of your fine plant. The systems and work flow show a great deal of planning, and the equipment and atmosphere are a joy to look at.

PAUL L. ZENO (Allen-Klapp Co., Newspaper Representatives, New York) — I have just gone through your first offset edition. It looks very good.

J. S. McANULTY (Allen-Klapp, Chicago) — We have been looking over your new offset production and feel it is wonderful.

WALTER M. DEAR (Publisher, Gleaner and Journal, Henderson, Ky., and Director of Sedalia Democrat) — Welcome to the offset printing club. I have just seen the July 11 edition and I think it is a splendid start. The first ten months are the hardest, so pace yourself.

ROBERT W. KISHBOUGH (Ass't Technical Service Manager, Abitibi Paper Co.) — I am truly impressed with your new publishing facilities after an expertly guided tour of the plant. Good wishes for continued success and growth of the Democrat and Capital.

Capital's Slums Nurture Seeds of Violence

'. . . A Crummy Place to Visit.'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The nation's capital hangs its head, sticks out the lower lip and pouts when that dirty word crime is mentioned.

On the surface, except for news reports, the thousands of tourists (American and foreign) flocking here this summer do not see or feel the fear which grips, of all places, the seat of American government.

That's because tourists see only the show-place Northwest section of the city, the area which is home for most of the important business and 80 per cent of the government buildings and tourist attractions.

But fully three-fourths of Washington is seething. It has its share of out-right slums, the crime-breeding ghetto. It is full of areas which when mentioned, invariably invite the line, "You can't go there at night, Charley."

And all of it is a source of great embarrassment to Washingtonians — Negro and white, official and unofficial.

"It's horrible and deplorable," said Rep. Donald ("Buz") Lukens (R.-Ohio). "Such a beautiful city and such a crummy place to visit." And then he adds, unwittingly underscoring the city's frustrated outlook toward the crime and racial tension. "Something has to be done."

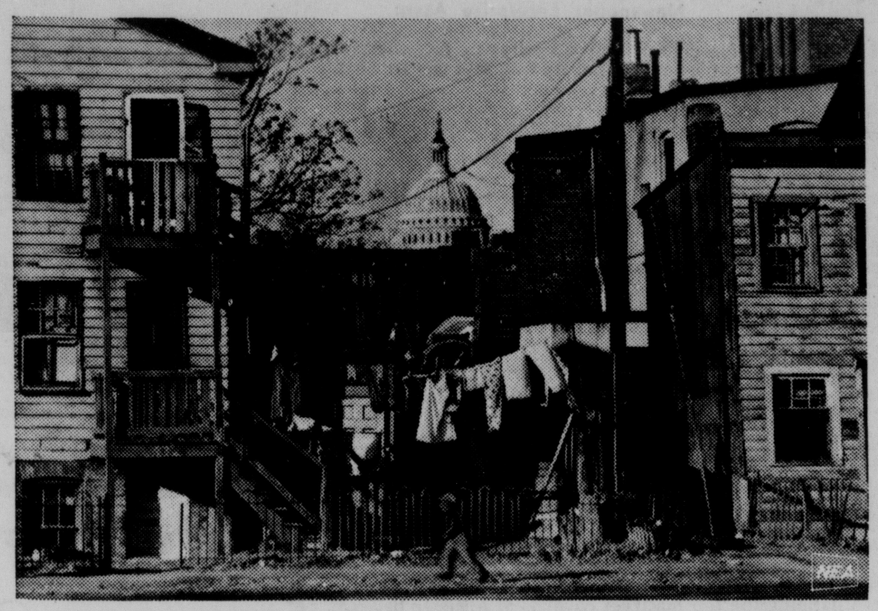

"You name it and we'll try it," says the undermanned Police Department. "Congress rules the city and Congress doesn't care," says the citizenry.

Congress, in turn, makes all the obvious counter charges but its frustration with the District of Columbia's ills, notably rocketing crime figures, is seen in the fact that it appears increasingly ready to get out from under the ugly responsibility. It may someday grant D.C. home rule.

"If this ever comes," says Rick Fraley, a student at Howard University and civil rights activist, "crime here should drop sharply. Tensions that caused Newark to blow would disappear."

The District (which people who live in the metropolitan area refer to as Washington) Negro population is now at about 75 per cent of the total. Negroes account for 92 per cent of the District public school enrollment.

Moderate civil rights leaders believe that if the Negro gets his proportionate responsibility in city affairs, he will react strongly to it. As a matter of pride, they say, it will touch the ghetto, giving heavy crime areas a sense of responsibility never known before anywhere in Washington, or even anywhere in the United States.

THIS IS WASHINGTON, but not the part that tourists see. The scene is just a few blocks from the Capitol in an area occupied by many of Washington's Negroes.

"Negroes here are well aware our brethren are responsible for most of the crime," Fraley said. "But you have to remember we're most of the population. It's not exactly accurate when whites read about another hold-up and then say, 'Well, another nigger did it.'"

Fraley and his Howard University colleagues are hard at work this summer in the ghettoes promoting "Negro pride and a sense of responsibility."

"Pride in all matters," Fraley added. "Pride in the race, heritage, this country, this city, the community . . .

"Negroes here know they have an overwhelming population advantage. If we ever rose up here we could practically wreck the city in one night — make Newark look like a picnic—not to mention the worldwide embarrassment it would cause the government.

"But I don't think we'll ever have any big rioting here. In the first place, we'd be destroying ourselves. We own a lot of property and business here, unlike situations in Watts, Harlem, Newark. Also, many Negroes here have achieved middle class and beyond."

Fraley's good friend, Stokely Carmichael, has told other Negro leaders here, "Don't bet on it."

Though official confirmation could not be obtained, the White House reportedly is keenly aware of ramifications of a Newark-Watts type riot, and thus has put men and women in the field to check pulses. And indeed riot control precautions have been taken.

"I said I don't think Washington will erupt," Fraley continued. "Perhaps I mean I hope it won't, because I've been to other U.S. ghettoes and all the signs are here.

"The Negro in Washington is just as fed up as the Negro in Harlem. He may be better off in some social respects, but he's no less indignant. As good an indicator of unrest as any is rising crime. Crime is up here, up big. This means disrespect for the law is up, hatred for white power is up . . .

"I think President Johnson and some members of Congress have clearly seen all these same signs. The Negro here senses it and this, coupled with our overwhelming numbers, has kept things pretty cool.

"But it wouldn't take much for the District to blow, higher even than Harlem or Watts.

"Responsible white civil rights leaders here have learned to play on the Negro sense of responsibility, our strong desire to have it. If we ever got home rule, Washington would be one big chocolate grin. We're under pressure, too, you know."

As Lukens, Fraley and the entire city are saying, "Something's got to be done." But if not, as Carmichael's warning suggests, the serene and lily-white show places of the nation's capital could be scarred and, worse yet, bloodstained.

To Build Training School

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Trans World Airlines announced plans Thursday to build a training school for hostesses on a 34-acre campus in Overland Park, a Kansas suburb of Kansas City.

Overland Park is to issue $15 million worth of industrial development bonds to construct the school, and TWA will lease it.

The plan is to have it ready in 1969 and train about 4,000 hostesses a year. Half a dozen buildings are involved — residence halls, a dining hall, classrooms, administrative offices and recreation facilities. The site is at U. S. 50 and Lamar Avenue, about 7½ miles southwest of downtown Kansas City.

The decision to build at Overland Park represented a change in plans. TWA had talked of including it in a new office building. The office building still is under consideration.

Kansas City is operating headquarters for the air line. It has nearly 10,000 employes in the Kansas City area, most of them at its overhaul base at Mid-Continent International Airport at the northwest edge of the city.

A fierce clash results between Michael Caine, John Phillip Law, and Robert Hooks over land ownership in Otto Preminger's explosive new drama "Hurry Sundown" in Technicolor and Panavision now showing at the Fox Theatre thru Tuesday. The picture also stars Jane Fonda, Diahann Carroll, Faye Dunaway and Burgess Meredith.

Extra Piece of Pie Reward for Finding Pit

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

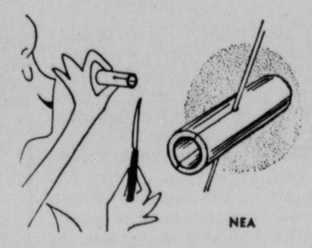

DEAR POLLY—No matter how carefully one pits cherries for a pie a pit always seems to find its way into the finished product. Our rule now is that whoever finds a pit in his serving gets an extra piece. Everyone is on the watch and instead of tears it's cheers when a pit is found.—MRS. L. J. C.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I do cleaning for other people and one lady has two love seats covered with cocoa brown velvet. These are always covered with lint. The pillows are stuffed with goose feathers and seem to shed and collect lint from clothing. These sofas are beautiful but quite a nuisance as it takes a lot of my time trying to remove this lint. I hope someone can give me an idea of something I could do.—MRS. S. J.

DEAR POLLY—For years I have struggled switching mattresses around. They are real back-breakers and almost impossible to turn over alone. I finally solved this so simply it is amazing. I bought fitted vinyl mattress covers (made like fitted bottom sheets) and placed them on the box springs. Now I just slide a mattress around, head to foot, and turn it over. To turn one, I slide it off the bed to the side, flip it over and slide back on the bed again with the greatest of ease. Changing the top mattress cover is also easier because it slides on.—LORRY

DEAR POLLY—To keep the television antenna stay wires from making rusty streaks on the house take a two-or three-inch piece of garden hose, punch a hole through the center (the size of the wire or smaller) then cut a slot on the side to the center hole and slide in the wire.—RAYMOND

Rejection of Troublesome Boy Intensifies Problem

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

My 6-year-old boy's school is closing from March through to September. That means he'll be at home all day for nearly six months. Oh God, where can I turn for help with him? He's impossible to handle. He still wets the bed. If he isn't fighting his younger brother, he's teasing his older sister. Can you recommend a child guidance clinic for him?

ANSWER: No, but your Community Chest people can. However as such clinics are as overloaded as your youngster's school, the one recommended may not be able to help you for some time.

So, for the meanwhile, I want to ask you a question. Could you at this obstreperous child's wildest moment go to him and without speaking, but controlling his arms and legs, just hold him until he quiets down? No matter how long it takes? No matter how he wriggles and fights?

The best thing that could happen to you would be to discover that your body can transfer quietness to the turbulent body of your little son.

I use the word "body" deliberately, because mothers of enuretic children too often allow physical distance to come between them and their youngsters without realizing what has happened. This is not odd. The body of our bed-wetting child is a trouble to us, causing us much extra and unpleasant work.

What we don't register is that he senses our recoil from physical contact with him. We can't see the look of disappointment and disgust with his body that has appeared on our faces a thousand times. BUT HE HAS SEEN IT. It renders him desperate.

Unable to bear the knowledge that we find him physically offensive, he will try to punish us by using his body as a weapon of general war, not only increasing his enuresis, but by using it to overwhelm our other children, teasing, fighting, depriving them whenever possible. His feeling is, "All right, if you choose to find my body so revolting, I will make it more revolting—as nasty as I possibly can."

If at his wildest moment we walk over to him and hold him to us as I have suggested, our body speaking to his in the original language of mother and child will reach his despair—and begin to reduce it.

But you must NOT try to follow my suggestion unless you feel what I am talking about. IF YOU DON'T WANT PHYSICAL CLOSENESS TO YOUR SON, DON'T FAKE IT.

You say that his younger brother is 4 years old. He was then allowed two years to enjoy being your baby. That's not very long. He had, I think, to release your body to his brother's demands too soon. I advise you to give some thought to how you withdrew it from him in those bewildered weeks after his brother's birth and perhaps in the final ones of your pregnancy. If you can remember, your heart may break with sudden understanding of what he is doing. In all this wildness you will see his terrified conviction that his mother withdrew her body from him because she found his disgusting—and perceive what her sure embrace might mean to him at the moment when he is trying to make himself supremely objectionable.

US May Resume Shipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is considering resuming arms shipments to the Middle East — and publicly announcing the quantities it supplies.

In announcing consideration of resuming arms shipments — suspended during the Israeli-Arab war — State Department officials said Friday the Soviet Union apparently still is supplying such Arab nations as Egypt and Algeria with weapons.

The officials said unless Soviet shipments to the Middle East cease, the United States also should sell armaments. They said U.S. failure to do so would shift powers balances in the tinderbox area and perhaps contribute to another outbreak of war.

The State Department officials, who declined identification, made their disclosures amid a congressional controversy over U.S. arms sales to foreign nations.

A bill to extend the life of the Export-Import Bank has been under fire from congressmen who oppose use of the bank to extend credit to nations for purchase of U.S. weaponry.

A number of congressmen have criticized arms sales in the wake of the Israeli-Arab war, which found the opposing sides using weapons made in and sold by the United States.

Noting the Soviet Union so far has spurned U.S. proposals for an agreement to hold down Middle East arms deliveries, State Department officials said Friday publication of U.S. shipments now is being considered.

Looks To American Stage

MARINO, Italy (AP) — At 32, having conquered the cinema world like no other Italian actress ever, Sophia Loren wants to try the stage.

It won't be classical drama. It won't even be Italian. As far as she's concerned, modern American theater is more relevant than anything being done in Italy. And for her as an actress the top playwright is Tennessee Williams.

"It's because he writes real roles for women," she says.

"In his plays women are highly developed and important characters.

"I like Edward Albee, too. I saw "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf' in New York and it was wonderful. But that part is so American it would be impossible for me, like asking Elizabeth Taylor to play a Neopolitan wife.

"I've never met Tennessee Williams and he probably doesn't know how I feel. But if I should try the stage I would like it to be a part written by him."

At this point in her career, Miss Loren believes the urge for stage acting comes naturally.

"Movie actors eventually want to try the stage and stage actors eventually want to try the movies. It's norml," she says.

This does not mean she is tiring of the cinema. Working in films since she came out of the Neopolitan slums for an extra's part at the age of 15, she hopes to continue as long as she can foresee.

Her work and her marriage to producer Carlo Ponti, who guided her to fame and international respect as an actress, are everything in her life.

Despite her fabulous wealth and her brilliant professional reputation, her way of life is markedly simple.

She and Ponti are now settled permanently at their sumptious villa at Marino, outside Rome, not far from the summer papal rssidence at Castel Gandolfo.

But the couple live in semiseclusion, seldom entertain and rarely go out.

Except to accompany Ponti to Paris on his business trips she seldom goes anywhere unless a picture demands it.

"In Paris occasionally we go to a nightclub," Miss Loren explains, "but in Rome never. Carlo is from Milan and work is very important to him. I'm that way myself. We work and when we don't work we stay home."

"I've enjoyed working with a lot of actors," Miss Loren observes. "Cary Grant, Peter Sellers and others. But I have always felt a special closeness to Marcello Mastroianni. In a way it's because we came up in this business at the same time.

"I have the feeling that we have come along together. We understand each other like brother and sister. When we are doing a picture we don't even have to explain to each other. We both understand what's needed. Acting like that is pure simplicity, the best way. When I act with him I feel fine, really fine. Fine with a capital F."

Week In Business

By JACK LEFLER . . . .
AP Business Writer . . . .

NEW YORK (AP) — A brief nationwide railroad strike dealt the economy a glancing blow this past week.

The result was a taste of what would have happened had the walkout of 25,000 members of the International Association of Machinists union been prolonged beyond two days.

Congress nipped the strike by passing legislation authorizing President Johnson to appoint a five-member board which would dictate terms for settling the wage dispute if a voluntary agreement wasn't reached in 90 days.

The strike tied up 72 of the nation's 76 railroads. It halted shipments of military supplies destined for Vietnam, sidetracked industrial and food shipments and disrupted the travel routine of hundreds of thousands of commuters.

Short as the strike turned out to be, some plants closed or curtailed operations. Some wholesale meat prices rose one-half cent a pound. Fresh vegetables were less available.

In pressing for legislation to halt the strike, President Johnson said, "We are faced with a national crisis."

The effect on movement of supplies for Vietnam was an overriding factor in the action by Congress, which had debated the strike threat for three months without being able to agree on a solution.

On another labor front, a strike by 37,000 workers stopped 90 per cent of the nation's copper production and a substantial portion of its lead and zinc output.

The government indicated it would stay on the sidelines as long as possible. Officials said defense contractors wouldn't feel the pinch of a copper shortage for about a month. It was estimated that brass mills, major users of copper, have about a 60-day supply on hand.

The United Steelworkers of America, which claims to represent 80 per cent of the strikers, and Phelps Dodge Corp., one of the biggest producers, resumed negotiations Thursday for the first time since the strike began July 14.

The Commerce Department reported this past week that the economy resumed its expansion during the second quarter of the year after a pause during the first quarter.

The gross national product—total of all goods and services—increased at an annual rate of 9 billion, compared with 4.2 billion in the first quarter. The GNP in the second quarter totaled 775.3 billion at an annual rate. Much of the increase was due to rebounding automobile sales, the department said.

HITCHING A RIDE on the wing of a Navy Skyhawk attack bomber may not seem the safest way to get somewhere, but it's one way to put the plane in the right place. This member of the flight deck crew on the aircraft carrier Hancock off Vietnam was helping maneuver the plane to its parking place after landing, since the nose wheel is not controllable from the cockpit.

The Aviation Hall Of Fame

Samuel Pierpont Langley
(1834-1906)

A distinguished astronomer, Langley was challenged by the possibilities of flight. In 1891 he constructed the first of his model "Aerodromes" and in 1896 built and successfully flew, for three-quarters of a mile, a quarter-scale steam-driven model.

HIS HALL OF FAME CITATION READS:

"To Samuel Pierpont Langley, for outstanding contribution to aviation through his studies of air and space, his demonstrations of the practicability of mechanical flight, and his inspirational guidance to others. . . ."

Claims Organizer Is Alive

CAMIRI, Bolivia (AP) — Regis Debray, a young French writer awaiting trial in Southeast Bolivia, says Ernesto "Che" Guevara organized the Bolivian guerrilla movement but is no longer in the country.

Debray, 26, an admirer of Fidel Castro, told newsmen he did not see Castro's Argentine associate whose whereabouts have been a mystery since the spring of 1965. But he emphasized, that Guevara is "very much alive" and in Latin America.

Contradicting Debray, Ciro Roberto Bustos, an Argentina painter, said he and Debray met and spoke with Guevara in Bolivia earlier this year.

Bustos, 35, and Debray were arrested April 20 as they emerged from a guerrilla camp. Bustos is expected to be the government's chief witness at Debray's military trial on charges of collaborating with the Communist guerrillas.

The two men were interviewed separately at 4th Division military headquarters here where they are being held in different buildings.

Debray, who could get a maximum sentence of 30 years if convicted, said he entered Bolivia early in March to do a newspaper report on the Bolivian "Army of National Liberation," the Communist name for guerrilla movements in the hemisphere.

Bustos said he arrived Feb. 28 and met Debray en route to this oil town 360 miles southeast of La Paz. The first guerrilla clash with Bolivian troops occurred March 23.

Bustos said he was invited to Bolivia to attend "a political reunion" but on arrival was taken from one city to another until he arrived in Camiri and went deep into the mountains to the guerrillas' first camp.

The Argentine refused to say more about the meeting to which he had been invited and also was reluctant to say how many foreigners were with the guerrillas.

"Che came with his people," he said.

Asked if he meant Cubans, he nodded affirmatively.

Reports that Guevara has been murdered or died are not true, Debray declared.

"Che Guevara is alive, very much alive. He's in Latin America and even if he was in Bolivia at a certain moment, his mission is continentwide."

THE IRON HAND of "Mr. Robot" holds the mail every day for Mrs. E. H. Setter of St. Petersburg, Fla. The barrel-bodied body with the stove-pipe arms and the ventilator head is also colorfully painted.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Give House a Physical Before You Buy

By MR. FIX, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you are buying your own home, you must plan to tie up some of your future time with maintenance work. This is normal. But there is no point in buying for yourself a lot of major repair problems.

Before you sign that purchase agreement is the time to take one more very close look at the house you are buying.

Even a new house should be carefully examined, since problems are still to develop.

Start your inspection in the basement. Check for a damp, musty odor. Dampness is normal in a new house until all the moisture in the fresh concrete has evaporated. In an older house it is the result of a leak or condensation. If too damp forget about getting much use from the basement.

Examine the foundation inside and out. If made of poured concrete, look for structural cracks. Don't be concerned over hairline cracks, but larger cracks may indicate heavy settling which will damage the rest of the house.

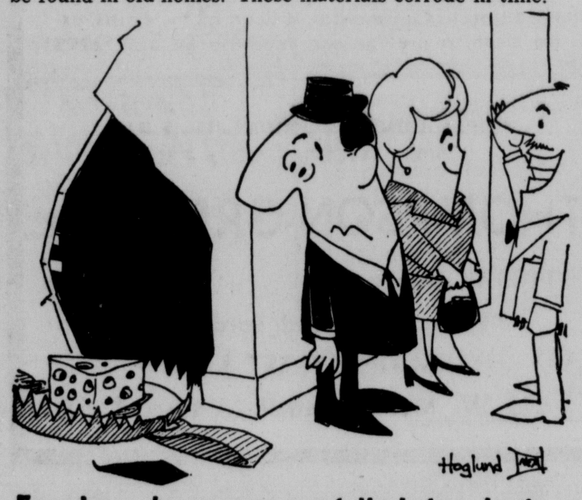

If foundation walls are constructed of block, scrape mortar joints with a knife or nail. If it comes out easily it indicates poor quality mortar.

Look at exposed joists and sills while you are in the basement. If a knife blade enters the wood easily, it indicates termite infestation or dry rot.

Joists should be of 2-by-8 or 2-by-10 lumber. If the builder skimped here he may have done so somewhere else, too.

Examine the furnace. Look for rust, cracked insulation. If it has a boiler, look for signs of leaks—rust around fittings is a giveaway.

Look at the plumbing where it is exposed. Water pipes should be of copper or brass. Iron and steel pipes can still be found in old homes. These materials corrode in time.

Examine a house very carefully before buying.

Check the water heater. Open the door at the base and look for rust or signs of leaking.

When you get upstairs, walk around listening for squeaks and groans and observe if the floor sags. A few squeaks mean nothing, but excessive noises may indicate warped floors, gaps in the flooring and insufficient bracing.

Examine the walls. If the house is new and dry wall construction has been used, examine carefully to see that the joints do not show.

In an older home, look for cracks in ceilings and walls. Hairline cracks can be taken care of when painting. Large cracks may mean structural trouble.

Examine walls for water stains, especially outside walls. These indicate leaks from the roof or through the siding. A stain in the ceiling could be a roof or wall leak or it could be a bad pipe running through the ceiling.

Try windows and doors to see how well they work. Sticking may be due to paint. But if this is not the case and you really have to work at opening the windows, then they may be out of plumb.

Examine the outside. If paint is blistering and peeling it will need scraping and a completely new coat. Blistering may indicate moisture in the walls.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

FOR R. SARGENT SHRIVER

● What made you interested in helping poor people?—Mrs. Frances Fenton, Columbia, Mo.

● Every major religious leader in history has taught us that all men are brothers. Thus, no person who has what he wants can be at ease while another person lacks what he needs. Anyone who has received more than his share—whether in the form of good health, a happy family, a devoted wife, or success in business—must use his life for the sake of other lives. That's why I'm interested in helping poor people.

FOR PETER ALLEN, singer

● When your wife Liza Minelli (at left with Peter) tours with you and your brother Chris, will you all sing together?—P. H., Anderson, S.C.

● Not on your life. We tried it once, and we sounded like Roy Rogers and the Sons of the Pioneers. Chris and I will sing together, and Liza will sing separately.

FOR SANDY KOUFAX

● Which of the Phillies batters bothered you most?—Melanie Drumsta, Kingston, Pa.

● Richie Allen may be the game's outstanding hitter. But all hitters are tough. If I faced a lifetime .300 hitter for 10 years, I might have been lucky enough to have him hit only .150 against me for the first five years, but over the next five years he would have batted at a .450 pace.

FOR BARBRA STREISAND

● Since you're going to star in two movies besides "Hello, Dolly!" are you looking forward to a motion-picture career?—Mrs. H. E. White, Carthage, Ill.

● To me, being a star has always meant being a movie star. So making a movie brings me full circle, since it was movies that inspired me to become an actress in the first place. The singing was extra.

FOR MICHAEL LANDON, tv actor and occasional script writer

● I understand an unknown free-lance writer can rarely sell a tv script. Why?—Ann Taylor, Boise, Idaho

● Unsolicited scripts aren't read unless they're submitted by an agent. Since there are just so many plot ideas, there's bound to be duplication between the professional's scripts and the amateur's. If the latter's stories were read, he could claim his idea had been used in the television show. A beginner's main hope is to start writing for local stations until he can convince an agent to handle his work.

FOR PETE ROZELLE, commissioner of the National Football League

● Why don't ushers and police ring the football fields after NFL games (as they do in baseball) to protect players, coaches, and officials from exuberant and hostile fans?—David Hinshaw, Neenah, Wis.

● Most NFL clubs lease stadiums and have no direct control over policing. But many hire extra policemen. Philadelphia has assisted us considerably with a law that fines a spectator $50 if he goes on the field.

FOR JEANE DIXON

● I read conflicting reports that you made a prediction about an accident involving the collapse of a stand at Expo 67 this August. Would you clear up the matter?—A. E., Indio, Calif.

● This is a rumor that is running rampant. I have never made any remarks pertaining to the collapse of a stand at Expo 67.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

By ALLEN GARVIN

Money Talk U.S. officials are worried about the flood of Canadian coins coming south in the pockets of Expo 67 visitors. Canadian pennies, dimes, and quarters work in most laundermats, cigarette machines, and pay telephones. The major problem is they are worth about eight percent less than American coins of the same denomination.

Curves Are Out "Women with bodies like Sophia Loren have had it," says Marshall McLuhan, the Canadian communications professor who is widely hailed as the prophet of our era. Who's in? "Twiggy," McLuhan answers. "She is not a picture, she's an X ray. She's geometrical, she's abstract."

Flying Ambulances Medical know-how picked up in Vietnam is being made available to civilians. Methodist Hospital in Memphis has just received FAA approval to build a heliport on its roof. "We anticipate the age of the flying ambulance," says a hospital spokesman about this first-ever hospital airstrip. "It is already here as far as military hospitals are concerned, and it is only a matter of time until many civilian hospitals will avail themselves of the useful service."

Stardom's Drawback One of John Wayne's complaints about stardom is being constantly challenged to prove his valor. John reports: "Guys keep saying, 'So you think you're tough, do you?' I know they're just showing off in front of their girl friends, so I go along with it—as long as they don't push me too far."

Ex-Tarzan's Return The most famous film Tarzan, Johnny Weissmuller, holder of 67 swim records and five Olympic gold medals, may play a guest shot as Tarzan's father in a future tv show. He admits the tv version is different. "Today's Tarzan talks a lot more than he did when I played him. I think it was more realistic the way we did it in the old days."

Twice mauled, one of the world's great animal trainers tells

Why I Go Back in the Cage with

By JON ZERBINI as told to Jack Ryan

MY LIONS PACED their cages last Feb. 18 no more nervous than usual before a circus performance. Yet in my mind was the memory that exactly three years before in this same city, Cleveland, one had suddenly gone berserk.

He had leaped at me suddenly during our performance and pinned me against the cage. I can still see him lunging with outstretched claws and feel them rip my flesh.

I had flailed at him, but he had the smell of blood by then and was enraged. Al Dobritch, impresario of Dobritch International Circus, grabbed a water pail and pounded noisily on the cage bars. The trick worked, and the lion turned, roaring angrily at him.

I staggered to the center of the cage, grabbed my stake, and when the lion turned, I shouted and brandished the stake. As always in the handling of animals, it became a matter of who would be master. My lion hesitated, then with a toss of his mane turned and fled down the chute.

I took 70 stitches that evening and went back to work, for I am a Zerbini. My family has been training lions for 204 years. My father lost his right leg 50 years ago when a lion clamped his jaws on him and swung him mercilessly about a cage.

Dressed only in a loin cloth, I work without chair, whip, or blank-loaded pistol—just a stake and voice commands. The highlight of my act is to force open a lion's jaw and stick my head in its mouth.

Al Dobritch recalls that after that 1964 mauling, he went to see my father, expecting that he would shoot the enraged lion. Instead, he found my father cooing in French: "Bad baby. Why did you do that to Jonny? Are you in love with our lioness?"

When Dobritch asked why he wasn't punishing the lion, my father said: "Why should I shoot him? When Jonny gets upset and does a bad thing, you want me to shoot him? Our lions are our family, too."

The Zerbinis work with trained lions, but we know there is no such thing as a tame lion. They are our family and friends—but they are untamed animals. They cannot be blamed for acting as untamed animals.

But I put those thoughts out of my mind Feb. 18 and prepared for the next show. The house was filled, and as I made my appearance riding on an elephant, I could hear a hush fall in anticipation of the age-old man-versus-beast contest.

My first six animals bounded from the chute into the cage without trouble and jumped on their perches. Then I watched Prince slink sullenly from the chute. Something in the way he moved and cocked his massive head alarmed me. He's out to get me, I remember thinking.

Suddenly all 300 pounds of male lion were coming at me. I saw only a tawny blur before he hit me full force, his claws ripping a chunk out of my scalp. I tumbled backward into sawdust, blinded by the huge spotlights above and hearing terrified screams from the grandstand.

Then I was aware only of Prince as we heaved back and forth in the sawdust. I tried to roll free of him, but his teeth drove into my right arm like a vise and all but paralyzed me. Then, unexpectedly, he let me go.

I staggered to my feet and saw Prince on top of my father. My father had rushed into the cage with a long stake and hammered at Prince until he let go of me. But the lion was so fast that my father wasn't able to dodge his attack.

I picked up my stake and prodded Prince until he stopped mauling my father. I thought I could dominate Prince, but he sprung back with such fury I never got a chance to get set. We tumbled to the floor so hard I was left breathless. Prince bit into my arm again and began to shake it like a playful dog does a bone.

My father rose and took a pitchfork we use to feed the animals. My sister Mimi, an aerialist, also came into the cage with a stake. Together, they drove Prince off me and into the center of the cage where, with a frenzied roar, he crouched for a murderous final attack. "Out! Out!" my father shouted.

Stunned, I found myself outside the cage. But I could hear hysterical cries from some of the audience, and inside the cage our other animals were nervously snapping and roaring at each other. "I must go back before they hurt each other," I said.

My father grabbed me and pointed to my body. I was drenched in blood. When I tried to move, my muscles seemed blubbery. "We'll take care of them," my father shouted, and he and Mimi went back to herd the lions into the chutes, then to their cages.

Two men pulled me through the exit, and I saw policemen running to the cage. Suddenly there was a series of gunshots. I pulled away from the men. "They're killing my lions!" No, they assured me; they were firing only blanks to force the lions back.

"I won't leave until I'm sure they don't hurt my animals," I said. Moments later, my father told me they were all safe in their cages, then I went to the hospital where surgeons took 500 stitches in my head and body. That night I argued with the doctors until they allowed me to appear at the evening performance. I only took a bow to the standing ovation, but I wanted the world to see the lions hadn't stopped a Zerbini.

Three days later, however, we were scheduled to open in Milwaukee. My hand was infected and in a sling; my body was an aching mass of bandages; I had a fever of 104. "You'll have to stay out of the cage —weeks, maybe months," the doctors said.

I tried to explain why I must perform opening night. Maybe you can call it family pride, tradition, responsibility. I don't know. But while we are relative newcomers to America, in Europe, the Zerbini name has been famous for eight generations. Circus people would understand what this means, but the doctors didn't.

My wife Sylvia, an aerialist, was in Sarasota, Fla., expecting our second baby. We talked by phone, and she suggested I rest two weeks. "Dobritch says the house has been sold out to see the Zerbinis," I said. "They expect us."

"Then you must go on," she agreed.

I hobbled into the ring that night before 14,000 people. I wondered how the lions would react to my bandages, and at first they seemed skittish. Then I stared at them and commanded obedience, and they leaped through the act without faltering. For five days I left the hospital bed only to perform.

It was many days before we allowed Prince to perform again. I admit I tensed a bit when his turn came to bound into the cage. Prince looked around, seemingly happy to be back, and then leaped on his perch without incident.

"Good, Prince," I shouted. "We are both back where we belong!" ◆

Partly crippled, a fever of 104, Zerbini faces lions three days after being mauled.

Why Husbands—and Teen-Agers—

More than a million people turn up "missing" each year. Here are the surprising facts on why

By STEPHEN A. FRANZMEIER

CARL LAMB was one of an estimated 1,100,000 persons officially reported missing last year.

He left his wife and four children just before Christmas in 1965. Trying to make them think he drowned, he pushed his car over a cliff above the Suislaw River near his home in Florence, Ore. For the next 13 months he found work in a half-dozen states.

By Jan. 6, 1967, he was in Pittsburgh, standing outside a police station. Finally he walked in and gave himself up.

The number of Americans who disappeared last year and the physical and emotional hardship they caused those they left behind has elevated the missing-persons problem to the status of a national crisis.

The largest group of runaways was 225,000 teenagers, according to police officers, private detectives, and other officials of missing-persons agencies interviewed by the Family Economics Bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co.

The number of deserting husbands was close to 100,000, substantially more, interviewees believe, than the number of deserting wives. Yet, most missing-persons files include more married than single women. The number of disappearances increases before storms—and also at the onset of spring and fall.

Mobility is one reason for the rapid increase in disappearances—up 10 to 35 percent, depending on marital and age classification and geographical area. Cheaper, faster, more convenient transportation makes it much easier for a person to flee to a distant point where he is not known.

At the same time that more people are disappearing than ever before, the difficulty of staying lost also has increased. That's because information on most Americans is more readily available in many places. Few persons exist whose background, habits, and reputation have not been reported on, card-indexed, and evaluated; or have not been photographed, fingerprinted, numbered, ranked, or listed; or who have not completed numerous forms, such as employment and credit applications, and signed them.

The pressures that prompt teen-agers to leave home often stem from the generation gap. Florence Donahue, a social worker at a large metropolitan high school, says that more young students, only 12 and 13 years old, are leaving home now.

She says they run away because of (1) dissatisfaction with themselves—with their inability to relate to people or to compete successfully in school or the family and (2) the pressure to achieve a high-school record good enough to get them into college. Teen-agers believe that "good jobs" (those that pay adequate or high salaries) are available only to college graduates. The majority of runaways disappear in May, near examination time.

At one time, the popular stereotype of a runaway child was a barefoot boy in ragged dungarees. Nowadays runaway youngsters are likely to be well-dressed, and they travel on trains and planes.

One typical 15-year-old boy hocked his father's rifle, stole the rent money, and took off for Miami. He rented a room in a cheap boardinghouse and washed dishes in a "greasy spoon" restaurant. Hard work came as a shock to him, though, and the evenings were a "drag" without his buddies. Within a month he was talking to his mother on the phone, asking her for bus fare home.

Teen-agers in flight stay away longer today because they have more money. Most of them, though, either return or are found within two days to two weeks. Runaways usually have a furtive, frightened manner that attracts the attention of the police.

they run away—and how they can be found

Most husbands who leave home go for three reasons: money problems, marital friction, and the "other woman."

According to Ed Goldfader, general manager of New York-based Tracers Company of America, the errant husband who flees his money problem usually is an executive, age 44 to 51, with an expense account, five-figure income, suburban home, and a fanatic's faith in credit and credit cards. (The spurt in the number of runaway husbands in recent years coincides with the rise in the use of credit cards.)

The suburbanite husband who disappears usually is an "ideal husband and father," according to his friends and family. He feels trapped under pressure, disillusioned, and confused. Goldfader estimates that the number of husbands who deserted their wives in 1966 increased 35 percent over 1965.

Most wives, judging by results of the Northwestern National Life survey, let their deserting husbands get away with it. They are too proud or ashamed to admit that their husbands left them. Most husbands, on the other hand, have their wives pursued.

When the wife disappears, her reason usually is one or more of these three: (1) boredom, (2) another man, or (3) her mother-in-law.

When a person breaks away from his accustomed surroundings, he may do something he yearned all his life to do. Norman H. Briggs of Troy, N.Y., was an insurance salesman who became a cowboy. When he was finally found near Newcastle, Wyo., he'd selected a name, Clay Hollister, straight out of a tv Western.

Some people feign loss of memory, although true amnesia is rare. The claim of amnesia, however, is frequently used as a cover-up for a lost weekend or as an excuse to return home.

The strange disappearance of Laurence Bader apparently resulted from one of the rare cases of true amnesia. Bader was discovered in February, 1965, competing as John F. (Fritz) Johnson in an archery tournament in Chicago's McCormick Place exposition hall. Psychiatrists failed to disprove his claim that he remembered nothing about his life before he disappeared on May 17, 1957, while boating near his home in Akron, Ohio. He died of cancer in September, 1966.

To demonstrate how private operatives go about searching for missing persons, let us say that a business executive has disappeared. Police are satisfied that he hasn't met with foul play and the police missing-persons' bureau hasn't been able to locate him in a month. Apparently the husband has left the jurisdiction of the local police, so his wife retains a private detective.

First, the detective interviews people who knew the man's habits and preferences—his physician, bartender, barber, neighbors, and others. The detective knows that the missing husband will take his habits with him and that his habits will betray him as surely as his scent would attract a bloodhound.

The detective well knows geographical preferences of people trying to escape their past. Easterners usually head for California or Florida. Westerners like New York. Southwesterners end up in Illinois; and people from the upper Midwest seem to be attracted to California as inevitably as a moth is attracted to a light.

For instance, a Cleveland insurance salesman's habit of eating Chinese food every Sunday tripped him up. The detective headed for the largest Chinese community in America. Sure enough, one Sunday the insurance salesman was found behind a plate of pork chow mein in a San Francisco restaurant.

A detective also tracks missing persons through records, knowing that they seldom change their names. He contacts alumni associations when his quarry is a college graduate. In most states, 50 cents to a state motor-vehicle division yields the address of a missing person who is a licensed driver.

People apply to oil companies, hotel, restaurant, and motel chains to have new credit cards issued. Other sources of information are voter lists and school, census, and armed-forces rolls.

The most important ploy for the missing person who wants to stay that way is avoiding all contact with anyone out of his past. This is extremely difficult. A man may be tempted to inquire about his family when he passes through the town in which his family lives.

Sometimes people seemingly want to be found, often because they are homesick and want a face-saving reason to return. One man wrote his wife's friend and ended the letter by appealing to her not to tell his wife where he was. The letter bore his return address!

A national clearing house of information on missing persons and also a counseling service have been suggested. To give the service dramatic appeal, it might be called Runaways Anonymous. People who feel pressures mounting, who are about to abandon their families, could consult the counseling service.

The millions who have run away and regretted it and those they left behind would agree that it's worth a try. ◆

Delicious Good Fortune Chicken with Pineapple Piquant and sesame seeds is served with Oriental flair as an appetizer.

After clearing thicket in hostile jungle, a Pathfinder waves in first troop helicopter.

Army Pathfinders—

They Lead the Way for Our GIs in Vietnam

AS THE UH1D (Huey) helicopter hovered over an enemy ridge south of Bong Son, Vietnam, a rope ladder dropped from its belly, and GIs, laden with chain saws, radios, and dynamite, began scampering down. Then the Viet Cong opened fire.

The first Pathfinders were still dangling 15 feet above ground when a shout penetrated the roar of the Huey's engine. "The ship's hit . . . Here we go!" From the wildly spinning ladder, the GIs plunged to earth, looking up long enough to see the chopper dive over the ridge, with a Pathfinder buddy still hanging to its skid.

With VCs sniping away, the Pathfinders helped engineers hack away underbrush and blast tree stumps to clear a landing zone for a score of troop-carrying helicopters enroute to the area for Operation White Wing. Next, they set up radio communications to guide in the main airborne force.

"A routine Pathfinder operation—except for losing the chopper," says Maj. Richard D. Gillen, who commanded the detachment. "We held the ridge without casualties. The man on the skid? Oh, we found him hanging upside down from a tree—sore, but he still could do his job."

The job of Army Pathfinders is to lead the way for surprise airborne assaults. They are selected from infantry volunteers with one primary characteristic: the ability to operate on their own in complex and dangerous situations. Usually they go in with the first helicopter, but frequently they precede all other units by anywhere from 20 minutes to 24 hours.

In effect, they are air-traffic controllers, charged with setting up visual and/or radio contact with chopper aviators flying attack troops into new landing zones. A secondary job is to clear these LZs of obstructions, ranging from jungle growth to giant anthills—usually while under fire.

Pathfinders not only often are the first GIs in but also the last out. For instance, during the bloody battle of the Ia Drang Valley in the Central Highlands, three Pathfinders landed with a rifle company ordered to rescue a pinned-down reconnaissance unit and some downed aircraft crewmen. The Pathfinders cleared a small LZ, set up communications, and prepared for an extraction at last light.

By dusk, however, rescuers and rescued were surrounded by North Vietnamese regulars, and the first Chinook extraction ship was shot down, blocking the 100x50-meter LZ. Ammunition began running low, and bad weather closed in, jeopardizing future air strikes against the surrounding enemy.

It was up to the Pathfinders to "talk in" a Caribou helicopter with a resupply of ammunition. In blackest night and under heavy fire, the three Pathfinders set up lights near the downed Chinook and radioed such precise reference points to the resupply chopper that its crew dropped two heavy loads of ammo from 300-feet altitude into an area not much larger than the average back yard.

That was the turning point. The North Vietnamese, facing a renewed fire fight, broke contact. The next morning the Pathfinders cleared a larger LZ and guided in the extraction ships.

Then, as the last chopper lifted upward, they clambered aboard—with radios, lamps, chain saws, and the units they'd come to help rescue. —JACK RYAN

How to get rich

How can you get rich some day? Make a hit record . . . a killing on the stock market . . . or invent a gadget like the hula hoop?

For most of us, these are just dreams. But have you ever stopped to think that there is a way to get rich—possibly only one sure way? Most fortunes, as you know, are made by people who own their own business.

Perhaps you've thought of starting a small business of your own . . . a franchised drive-in, or maybe a service business. Trouble is, you need $10,000 to $15,000 to get started and even then it's a gamble—with slim chance of ever making really big money.

But there is one business which could make you rich—almost overnight! And the beauty of it is, you can start on a shoestring during your spare time, even while holding your regular job.

Cash by Mail

The business is Mail Order—and it's fabulous! Come up with a 'hot' new item . . . and WHAM!

It strikes like a bolt of lightning!

Suddenly, you are deluged with cash orders from all over the country . . . MORE MONEY than you could ever make in a lifetime!

Like the Vermont dealer who ran one ad in Sports Afield Magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders—over A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN CASH!

There is no other business where you can make a fortune so quickly!

• A beginner from Newark, N.J. ran his first small ad in House Beautiful—offering an auto clothes rack. Business Week reported that his ad brought in $5,000 in orders. By the end of his first year in Mail Order, he had grossed over $100,000!

• Another beginner—a lawyer from the midwest, sold an idea by mail to fisherman. Specialty Salesman Magazine reveals, "he made $70,000 the first three months!"

Proof

It's a fascinating business! Running ads in newspapers and magazines . . . mailing gift catalogs . . . getting cash orders in your daily mail—steady as clockwork.

There is no other business where you can start on a shoestring and pyramid your profits—without investing in merchandise! One husband and wife mail order team took in $40,000 selling one item. They obtained FREE ads in national magazines . . . didn't invest a cent in merchandise, and even got the supplier to ship all orders for them!

These exceptional cases are absolute proof that you can get rich in your own Mail Order business. Very rich. Even a U.S. Gov. Report stated: "A number of one-man Mail Order enterprises make up to $50,000!"

Pick up any magazine. Notice how the same mail order ads are repeated . . . month after month? That's concrete proof! You know those ads wouldn't be repeated over and over again—unless they were bringing in big cash profits to their owners.

The Secret

The secret of getting rich in Mail Order lies in financial leverage. It's a little-known, almost secret method—using other people's capital to make money for you!

You can get thousands of dollars worth of advertising in big national magazines—without investing your own money! And you don't have to write a single ad. Tested and proven ads are prepared for you by experts. Reinvest the profits from your first successful ad—to get more, larger ads, and the profits begin to snowball! It's like building a chain of stores . . . each new store puts more money in your pocket.

You mail out beautiful catalogs which offer hundreds of dollars worth of fine, quality gifts—yet you don't invest one cent of your own money in merchandise! Your catalogs are printed with your name and address, so all orders come to you. Everything is "drop-shipped" for you, and there's up to 100% mark-up! You pocket the cash profits immediately—even before the orders are shipped to your customers!

Repeat orders alone, just from mailing catalogs, could bring you a steady income for the rest of your life!

Yes, Mail Order is the fastest-growing, most profitable business in America! And now, with more people moving to the suburbs . . . the population explosion . . . and the expanding teenage market . . . we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history!

Now, with the help and backing of Mail Order Associates, Inc., of Montvale, N.J., you can follow the same proven steps to Mail Order success—using the 'secret' of financial leverage!

It's mutually profitable!

A recent feature article in Income Opportunities Magazine stated, "Mail Order Associates Inc., offers the most comprehensive Mail Order program ever offered to beginners." Teach Your Baby to Swim

A successful instructor says: infants are born without fear of water—so take advantage of it

By NINA HILLS THOMAS

HOW CAN an infant who can't even walk be taught to swim? By imitation—and comprehension!

"Babies are a lot smarter than we give them credit for," says Mary Ann Sears, swim-school instructor at a resort hotel on Honolulu's Waikiki Beach. "They are born with a swimming instinct and without fear of the water. This is what I work with."

The youngest student Mary Ann has had in her 10 years of teaching was a six-week-old tot. But she believes that between two and five months is the best age to begin. By the time children are 15 months old, they have become suspicious of strange situations.

"Babies must be handled gently and with complete assurance and be made to feel secure at all times," she says. "Never throw them in. While they must be taught to have genuine respect for and a knowledgeable fear of water, they should never be deliberately frightened by any water experience."

Mrs. Sears usually has one or both of the parents of an infant with her in the pool when teaching the child. She explains what she is doing so that the parents may work with the child at home.

The following suggestions for teaching are very generalized. Remember that each child is different and that parents must learn to deal with their youngster's individual reactions and capabilities. Use your imagination and let it be fun for him to learn.

■ BLOWING BUBBLES: Enter the pool slowly, talking gently, telling the baby how nice the water is. Sit on the steps with him and say, "Bubbles!" as you blow bubbles for him repeatedly. Blow on his arm so he can feel your breath. When you have established the word's meaning in his mind, say to him in a positive, pleasant, but demanding voice:

"Now, Jimmy, blow bubbles."

Hold him under the armpits, facing you in the water. Put your face into the water in front of him. Blow bubbles, lift your face, spit out water. Scoop up water in your hand and put it in his mouth. Tell him to spit it out.

Then, gently bob him up and down showing him how nice the water is. Don't duck his head, just bounce him. After he's accustomed to being in the water, tell him to blow bubbles.

Keep his face close to yours, his chin near the water. First blow through the mouth only, then through the nose. Make a noise through your nose so he will notice the difference.

Tell him to blink the water out of his eyes, saying: "Blink, blink, blink, Jimmy."

To help him learn not to swallow water, "dive him." That is, hold his hips, count, "One, two, three, dive!" and swoop him in head first (not too far down), then swoop him right up again.

If he does swallow water and chokes, teach him to put his head under water. To choke is the same as to exhale. It doesn't last long, and when he comes up he is ready for new air. Blame him for drinking the water! Let him know it was his fault. Then show him how to take a mouthful and spit it out. Make a game to see who can squirt water the farthest.

A four-month-old child blows bubbles—and learns that water's fun.

If he takes water up his nose, scold him, saying: "No, now you did it wrong, Jimmy!" Show him how to blow out. Rub your finger down his nose saying, "Sniff out the water."

Once he learns that it is his fault, he just blows or sniffs, coughs, and forgets it, accepting it quite philosophically without panic.

■ KICKING: Hold the baby over your shoulder and kick his legs

for him or put his hands on the pool's steps. Hold his calves and say, "Kick, kick, kick," seeing that he kicks from the hips, having knees and ankles relaxed. Count to six repeatedly; tell him to make a churning noise like a motorboat.

Pass the child between the parents (who stand three to four feet apart in the water). Say, "Kick, kick, kick." Praise him when he does well.

■ PADDLING: Hold the child firmly against your side. With your free arm, guide his hands in a dog-paddle motion. Say, "Pull, pull, pull, Jimmy," starting the pull in front of his chest. Then, when he has learned to paddle, urge him to try it together with his kicking.

Next, release him for brief periods, saying, "Kick, pull, kick, pull," and guide him to the pool side or steps. Hold his legs the first few times and steer him so he won't bump his head.

■ COMING UP FOR AIR: This is the most important step to assure water safety.

Once a child has learned the rudiments of kicking and paddling he will prefer to swim underwater. You must insist that he comes up for air. After he gets the feeling of the glide, he must be taught to come up and breathe.

It can be done in this way. Release him in the water. Urge him to "pull, pull" and "kick, kick." Grasp his calves from behind and push them down. This forces his head up. Say, 'Look up and point your mouth to the sky." He will automatically take a breath. If he has a tendency to go too deep, control this by grasping his thighs rather than calves.

If he starts to roll over when swimming underwater, bring him up and turn his head face-up so water will come out his nose.

■ FLOATING: A child who can float becomes water-safe sooner. Teach him to float at the beginning of his lessons. Help him to lie back with ears submerged. Tell him to point his mouth to the sky. Hold his head behind his ears to be sure it stays down in the water.

Put your other hand at the small of his back till he learns to keep his bottom up. Tell him to stretch his arms out like airplane wings. When he's floating easily, take your hand from his back first, then from his head.

Scold him if his legs drop under him. Make him keep them straight up whether floating or swimming.

Even when a child has mastered these steps, never leave him in a pool unattended. Nobody should ever swim alone. Have fun, but remember water is the master and must be respected. Play it safe. Make your baby (and your whole family) water-safe. ◆

Face of this 16-month-old swimmer reflects her confidence in herself.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

After days on the critical list with a near-fatal stroke, the patient rallied. "You had a pretty close call," the doctor told him. "It's only your strong constitution that pulled you through."

"Well, Doc," the patient said, "I hope you'll keep that in mind when you make out your bill."

—Dorothea Kent

There are two kinds of children —those who have wealthy parents and those who merely act as if they do. —Dan Bennett

One woman spotted another as she was leaving the beauty parlor. She hurried over, grasped the second woman's hand, and said, "Mary Brown! It's been ages since I saw you. Do tell me what you've been up to. Why, the last time we met you were short and dark-haired; now you're blonde and much taller."

The other woman interrupted. "See here," she said, "my name is not Mary Brown."

"Well, for goodness sakes," said the first woman. "So you've changed your name, too."

—Gloria Bier

Marriage is where you learn how uncommon it is to have things in common.

They were approaching the seventh hole when the duffer turned to his friend and asked, "What do you think of my game?"

"Oh, I guess it's all right," the friend answered. Then, shifting his bag of clubs, he added, "But I still prefer golf."

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—When hanging a number of clothes hangers on the clothesline I first pin a strong straight cloth over the line. Pin a clothespin to the cloth between each hanger and they will not blow off, slide down the line or bunch up. Hang all the hanger hooks facing the same way to save tangling and your temper.—MRS. H. E. A.

DEAR POLLY---I made a wonderful substitute for a chopping board which I needed badly. Just cover a thick magazine with heavy duty aluminum foil. It can be discarded until you have use for one again or the foil can be washed off to be ready for the next time. New foil can always be added when needed.---MRS. H. D.

DEAR POLLY—My teen-age daughter put a new orlon sweater in the wash and made the mistake of letting it go through the regular cycle with a large load of clothes. It came out looking ruined and I could not get the creases out until I thought of holding it over a kettle of boiling water. After that it looked almost us good as new.—MRS. H. L. H.

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—Those who are always in a hurry in the morning should like this pointer. I keep a small jar of cold coffee in the refrigerator and use it to cool my morning coffee so I do not have to waste any time waiting for it to cool.—CATHERINE.

DEAR POLLY---I fold an old piece of screen wire into the shape of a basket and hang it in a corner of the garage. All during the summer we dump cantaloupe seeds into this basket. When winter comes there is a big bag of dry seed which birds love.---OLIVER

DEAR POLLY—So that my son gives all his white shirts equal wear I numbered each of them—1, 2, 3 and so on on the inside of each collar with a laundry marker. After ironing his shirts I hang them in the closet in order. This is easy for me and easy for him even when he is in a rush to get to work. It assures me that all the shirts are being worn rather than some yellowing on the hangers.—ALLIE.

DEAR POLLY---Your Pointers have worked so well for me that I would like to share one. If your pencil sharpener is so dull you are ready to throw it away and buy a new one, try this first. Remove the shaving holder and apply OILY fingernail polish remover with a stiff bristle brush. Let it remain on the blades for 24 hours. Then clean well with a clean brush and it will sharpen pencils like new.---MRS. J. R. C.
